LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

CARD SECTION

No. 1 BULLETIN JULY 1, 1902[1]

PRINTED INFORMATION

§1. Information in regard to the card distribution work of the Library of Congress will hereafter be issued in two forms. The relatively permanent printed matter pertaining to the work will be incorporated in a Handbook. A new edition of this will be issued only when the changes in the regulations as to card distribution have become so numerous and important that a restatement of them is required for the economical administration of the work. New regulations as to the work, information as to the additions to the stock of cards, suggestions as to use of the cards, and additional miscellaneous information of any kind found necessary, will be published in successive issues of this Bulletin.

The Bulletin will be issued at irregular intervals whenever required.

In order to have in convenient form all the information necessary to the intelligent ordering and use of the cards, it is recommended that the latest issue of the Handbook be kept in a temporary binder and that successive issues of the Bulletin be kept in the same binder.

OBSERVING PRINTED REGULATIONS

In the present developing state of the card distribution work the issue of bulletins for temporary purposes seems unavoidable. Librarians who wish to order the cards intelligently must note carefuliy all the regulations in the Handbook and the supplementary information contained in the Bulletin. The Handbook and Bulletin will be supplied gratis to all who contemplate the ordering of cards. Mistakes made in ordering cards for lack of attention to the information given in the Handbook and the successive issues of the Bulletin cannot be made good except by furnishing new cards at regular prices.

THE HANDBOOK OF CARD DISTRIBUTION

§2. Advance sheets from the Handbook, containing full directions as to the ordering of cards, subscriptions to cards and proofsheets, prices, suggestions as to the use of the cards, etc., are being prepared, and it is expected that they will be ready for distribution by July 15th.

CHANGES IN THE PRICE OF CARDS

§3. The chief change in the price of cards so far as current orders are concerned is the addition of $\frac{1}{2}$ cent to the cost of the first card in the case of orders sent in by author and title. This change will be made in filling all orders on and after July 1st. Other minor changes will not be put into effect until the advance sheets of the Handbook are in the hands of subscribers.

University of Illinois

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO CARDS AND PROOFS

§4. The advance sheets of the Handbook will contain full directions as to such subscriptions. Full subscriptions to proof must extend from July 1st to June 30th of the following year. The price is $30 per year, with a rebate of 15 per cent on cards purchased by serial number, up to the full value of the proof. All subscriptions to proof other than for the full fiscal year named will be at the rate of $3.00 per month. The initial deposit for subscription to proof must not be less than $3.00. Libraries already having this amount to their credit need not at once make an additional deposit for proof. Subscriptions to cards may begin at any date or at any serial number desired. The present free distribution of proof will be discontinued after July 20th. Subscribers to proof for the current fiscal year must regard the proof issued between July 1st and July 20th as a part of their subscription. No discount can be made on the ground that the proof has already been received free or was not received currently. Libraries which have already received one copy free will not be entitled to a second copy.

ACCOUNT SLIP IN PACKAGE

§5. Some libraries have expressed a desire to have the account slip included in the package, so as to insure that the slip will be at hand when it is desired to check the cards. Such inclusion will slightly diminish clerical work, and the slip will be included hereafter unless evidence is received that it is better on the whole to have it sent separately.

ROUTINE FOR ORDERING AND USING THE CARDS

§6. One of the chief difficulties in the use of the cards seems to lie in the failure of libraries to hit upon a satisfactory routine for ordering and using the printed cards which will adapt itself to the established routine of the library. The Card Distribution Section wishes to obtain further information from those who have special difficulty in this matter and from those who have solved the problem to their satisfaction.

USE OF THE CARDS FOR ANALYTICALS

§7. It appears that there is considerable variation in the use of the cards for analyticals. Further information is desired from those who have been especially successful or unsuccessful in using the cards for analyticals.

No. 2. BULLETIN. SEPT. 15, 1902.

TRAVELING CATALOGS.

§ 1. The purpose of these catalogs is to facilitate the recataloging of libraries with L. C. cards by enabling them to order the cards by serial number.

LIMITATIONS TO THEIR USE.

The expense of transporting and handling the catalogs will be considerable. Except in the case of the catalog for American history, the area covered by each is, at present, comparatively small. The time required in the transportation and use of the catalogs is an important item from the point of view of the Library of Congress. A catalog will not be loaned unless the number of cards ordered from it is likely to be considerable. For the above reasons, libraries are requested to consider carefully, before applying for the use of a traveling catalog, whether the usual method of ordering cards, on slips by author and title, is not sufficient for their purpose. In this connection the scope of the present stock of L. C. cards, as given in the Handbook, should be carefully noted; also the statements below as to the four catalogs now in preparation.

CATALOGS IN PREPARATION.

§ 2. The following traveling catalogs will be ready by September 30th:

1. General Catalog.

About 85,000 cards, representing all the printed cards now in stock. For details as to the scope of the stock see the Handbook, p. 37–46.

2. American history.

About 25,000 cards. This section being now completely recataloged, the collection of printed cards is representative of the collection of books on this subject at the Library of Congress, with the exception of unfinished serial publications. Besides the general history and description of the United States, this class includes local history and description. In addition to the United States, it covers British, Central, and South America and the outlying islands. It does not include the constitutional history of the United States, nor American biography.

3. Bibliography.

About 3,000 cards, representing works in bibliography and library science which have come by copyright since June, 1898, and by purchase since January 1, 1901; also a selection of the books in most common use, of various dates, from the shelves of the bibliographical section of the Library.

4. Law.

About 1,200 cards. Covers cards for copyright books received since June, 1898, and books received by purchase since January, 1901. Includes cards for books on common law, constitutional law, and history and theory of law.

METHOD OF TRANSPORTATION.

§ 3. Catalogs nos. 1 and 2 will be sent in metal cases, each case containing about 10,000 cards and weighing approximately 150 pounds. Nos. 3 and 4 will be sent in ordinary trays. Owing to the bulk of nos. 1 and 2, they will be sent by freight. The freight from the Library of Congress to the first library using the catalog will be paid by that library. The freight from the first library to the second must be paid by the second library, and so on. The freight from the library last using the catalog back to the Library of Congress will be paid by the Library of Congress. Any library will be at liberty to have one of the catalogs forwarded to it by express, if the time saved will warrant the extra expense. Nos. 3 and 4 will be forwarded to the first library under L. C. frank, but they must be forwarded to the next library by express paid by the latter. From the library last using them they will be franked back to the Library of Congress.

RECORD CARDS.

§ 4. In order to keep track of the traveling catalogs, record cards will be placed in the last drawer of each catalog. These are to be filled out as indicated by the form. One record card should be mailed at the time the catalog is received and another when it is forwarded to the next library.

TIME DURING WHICH CATALOG MAY BE RETAINED.

§ 5. In order that the catalogs may make a reasonably long circuit and yet be returned to the Library of Congress at frequent intervals, it will be essential for libraries to use the catalogs quickly. It is hoped that they can be used within the following periods: No. 1, three weeks; nos. 2–4, one week.

MAKING UP ORDERS.

§ 6. Orders from traveling catalogs are to be made up in the same way as those from the proof sheets. In order to avoid extra charges, they should be arranged in increasing order of the serial numbers. They may be sent in on slips (one serial number on each slip) or sheets, as preferred. Slips are slightly preferable from the point of view of the Card Distribution Section.

TIME REQUIRED FOR FILLING ORDERS.

§ 7. For very large orders made up from no. 1, two weeks may be required; in other cases one week will usually suffice.

REQUESTS FOR THE CATALOGS.

§ 8. In order to economize in the matter of transportation charges as well as in the time required for transportation, circuits will be arranged for the catalogs whenever possible. Libraries making application for either of the catalogs before September 30th will be included in the first circuit, except in case the library applying happens to be far removed from other libraries desiring to use the catalog in question. Applications received later than September 30th can be included in the first circuit only when the application comes from a library which happens to be in the vicinity of a portion of the circuit not yet covered by the catalog desired.

SCOPE OF THE STOCK.

(May 1, 1903)

§ 1. In order that this bulletin may contain a complete statement as to the scope of the stock of printed catalog cards now at the Library of Congress, the matter contained on p. 37 of the Handbook is here restated. Classes 1–4, repeated from the Handbook, represent books covered by the stock on September 1, 1902. Classes 5–7 represent additional sections of the Library now brought within the scope of the stock by recataloging.

1. Books received by copyright since June, 1898.

As the printing of catalog cards did not begin until June, 1898, only part of the copyrighted books for 1898 are represented. Consequently, if cards are not in stock for a book copyrighted in 1898, it is assumed that the book was copyrighted in the earlier part of 1898 and no further investigation of the case is made.

Books are constantly being reprinted by American publishers, with change of date of publication, which are not recopyrighted; the date given on the title-page can not therefore be relied on to show whether the book is within the scope of the stock. When order slip is made out from the book, the copyright date should also be consulted. If the copyright date, or one of them, is not as late as 1898, the title should not be included in the order.

2. Non-copyrighted books received by gift or purchase since January, 1901.

As the Library of Congress obtains by purchase and gift only a part of the non-copyrighted books currently published, no assurance can be given that cards will be in stock for a certain book falling in this class. The chances for obtaining cards are especially good for books on the following subjects: (a) Bibliography and library science; (b) History (including biography and genealogy) of any country in the Western Hemisphere; (c) Books on Columbus, Burns, Dante, Goethe, and Shakespeare.

3. Bibliography and Library Science.

The collection on this subject is only partially recataloged, but cards will be made at once for any book now in the Library for which cards are ordered, and any book of considerable importance not found to be in the Library is quite sure to be purchased and cataloged.

4. American history (i. e. the history of all countries in the Western Hemisphere)

The books now recataloged under this head do not include the following, and such should not be included in orders unless they were copyrighted as recently as 1898, and so fall within the scope of class 1:

(a) American constitutional history and works on American government, general and local.
(b) American biography and genealogy.
(c) Religious history of America.
(d) Washingtonia (i. e. books on Washington the city and Washington the man)

5. History of England, and of the British Isles as a whole, including description and travel.

The books now recataloged under this head do not include the following, and such should not be included in orders unless they have publication date 1901 or later, and so come within the scope of class 2:

(a) Constitutional and institutional history.
(b) Religious history.
(c) Army and navy histories.
(d) Biography and genealogy.
(e) History, both general and local, of Scotland, Ireland, Wales.

6. History of Austria-Hungary.
7. Mathematics.

STANDING EXCEPTIONS FROM THE SCOPE OF THE STOCK.

§ 2. 1. Unfinished publications of all kinds (periodicals and works appearing in parts). Cards will not regularly be printed for these until the periodical or work is completed or changes its name or form so much as to render it desirable to make a separate entry for the earlier form. An open entry card will, however, be printed for the first number or part of an unfinished publication received by copyright.

2. Less important trade catalogs and advertising pamphlets and leaflets.
3. Less important pamphlets and leaflets of any class which are not wanted on the shelves of the Library of Congress.

ADDITIONAL TRAVELING CATALOGS.

§ 3. A traveling catalog will be made for either of classes 5–7 if request for the same is received from a number of libraries having large collections in this class.

Librarians applying for traveling catalogs should state approximately the number of titles which they have in the class covered by the catalog. The regulations in regard to the loan of these catalogs are given in Bulletin no. 2.

No. 4. BULLETIN. JANUARY 15, 1904.

ORDERS BY SERIES FOR CARDS FOR BOOKS AND MONOGRAPHS IN SERIES.

§ 1. The Card Section is now prepared to handle more advantageously orders by series for cards for books and monographs in series.

§ 2. Those ordering cards according to the terms of this bulletin should distinguish carefully between cards for monographs in series and those for articles in ordinary periodicals. The cards issued for monographs in series cover the monograph as a whole and are the same in form as cards for books in series. The Library of Congress does not issue analytical cards for articles in periodicals.

§ 3. The statements in this circular are intended to apply only to general orders for cards for the whole series, for a considerable portion of it, or for a portion with continuation. Cards for individual volumes in a series should be ordered by serial number or by author and title, in the usual manner.

§ 4. The scope of the stock of printed cards for books and monographs in series is, as a rule, the same as for other books; it may be defined as covering, on January 1, 1904, the following classes of publications in the Library of Congress:

(a) Books of any date which are classed in the recataloged sections, viz: American history, English history, Bibliography, and Mathematics.

(b) Books copyrighted in the United States which have been published since July, 1898.

(c) Books received by purchase since January, 1901.

§ 5. Numerous series of monographs constitute exceptions to the general scope of the stock, because they have been treated as periodicals and sent to the shelves without being cataloged. Consequently cards which would otherwise be in stock for them are not in stock; and, the publications now having been shelved, it is advantageous to delay the cataloging of them until they are reached in recataloging the section in which they are classed.

§ 6. The exceptions noted in § 5 which tend to diminish the scope of the stock for publications in series are offset to some extent, however, by the following, which tend to increase it:

(a) A considerable number of series have been cataloged entire as purchased, or as found convenient in the general work of recataloging the library. A list of the more important of such "additional recataloged series" will be published in a later bulletin.

(b) It has been decided that hereafter, when cards for any series are desired by numerous libraries, the series will be cataloged entire, unless there is some special reason for delaying the work, such as that noted in § 7. The titles of several important series, largely outside the scope of the stock, which are now being recataloged, will be included in the list of "additional recataloged series" mentioned above.

§ 7. In July, 1903, an arrangement was made with the A. L. A. Publishing Board whereby printed cards were thereafter to be furnished by the Library of Congress for the current issues of 48 series of monographs for which cards had formerly been issued by the Publishing Board.

§ 8. Commencing with January, 1904, it has been decided that all monographs in series which the Library receives shall be cataloged with printed cards as promptly as practicable, and that orders for cards for publications in series shall receive as careful attention as orders for cards by title or subject.

§ 9. In view of the work contemplated by the Superintendent of Documents in the cataloging of the U. S. Government documents, nothing will be done by the Library of Congress at present toward the recataloging of series of monographs published by departments of the U. S. Government. Cards will, however, be supplied for current issues in these series until the work of printing cards has been taken up by the Superintendent of Documents.

§ 10. As cards have thus far been ordered by series only to a limited extent, it is probable that further experience will lead to improvements in the method of ordering. The Card Section will be pleased to receive at any time suggestions looking to such improvements. The method of ordering outlined below is recommended merely as being based on experience to date:

(a) Make out a No. 33 slip in the form shown below for each series for which cards are desired, providing that it is a current series, a series included within the scope of the stock, or in a list of "additional recataloged series."

_____ Library. Jan. 15, 1904.

(b) Indicate by a hyphen placed after a number that cards in stock and current cards are wanted for publications in the series after and including that number.

(d) Indicate the number of cards wanted for each publication in the series by a number or formula placed at the upper right corner of the slip.

(e) Indicate on the left margin the number of the week in the year (ascertained from the "calendar card") up to which your library is willing to wait to obtain cards missing within the limits of the order. The sign ∞ should be used to indicate that it can wait indefinitely. If cards for recent publications cannot be waited for so long as those for earlier publications, use two numbers, and indicate at the right of the earlier week number the portion of the series for which cards are desired within the shorter period. The period for which missing cards can be awaited should be indicated in each case; otherwise only cards actually in stock or in process of being made (as indicated by checks "C," "Out," or "R") will be sent, excepting current cards sent in continuation of the order.

(f) Give name of library and date of the order at the lower edge.

(g) In designating publications in series, use the continuous numbering ("whole number") of the series in preference to any other. When the continuous numbering is used, the designations "volume," "number," "part" (or their equivalents) may be omitted; but if there is no continuous numbering, give the designations in the vernacular or as they occur on the publications.

(h) If the publications in a series are not numbered and cards are not desired for the entire series, give title of the first and last volume in the series for which cards are desired or indicate in some definite way the volumes for which cards are wanted.

§ 11. In ordering cards by series it is not possible to indicate the number of cards wanted with the same exactness that is possible when cards are ordered by a method which lists each publication in the series. Libraries which think it very important to obtain exactly the number of cards needed will probably prefer to order by author and title or serial number in the usual way, or by the method outlined in the following section; but those which decide to give a general order by series must choose between a simple number and a number combined with one of the formulas "+ s," or "+ x." These formulas, are designed to cover cards wanted for subject entries with provision for the fact that subject headings are indicated on but a part of the L. C. cards. The method of using them is explained in the Handbook, p. 21–23.

§ 12. Libraries which find it necessary to indicate the number of cards wanted more specifically than it is possible in a general order by series can order cards for publications in series which are already in print by the number of the publication. In such orders the figures denoting the number of cards wanted should follow the number of the publication, with a slanting line between. Thus 1/4, 2/3, 3/5 will be understood to mean that 4, 3, and 5 cards are wanted for publications Nos. 1, 2 and 3, respectively.

§ 13. The price of cards ordered by series (see § 3) will be the same as for cards ordered by serial number, viz., 2 cents for the first card for each publication in the series and ½ cent for each additional card for the same publication, furnished at the same time with the first.

§ 14. Those not already subscribers to the L. C. printed cards who wish to purchase cards for a series with continuation should make a deposit of a sum sufficient to cover the cost of cards for publications thus far issued in the series and leave a margin against which cards supplied in continuation of the order may be charged. If order is for a complete set, if continuation is not desired, or if for any reason it is not desired to deposit money in advance, the cost of the set should be ascertained before sending money, so that the exact sum may be sent.

§ 15. Cards sent out in continuation of orders by series will be sent usually on Saturday of the week during which they are received in the Card Section. They will be sent with the weekly accumulation of cards for titles held.

§ 16. The usual period must be allowed for obtaining books and monographs and preparing the printed cards for them (see Handbook, p. 30). If cards are not received with reasonable promptness, libraries are requested to notify the Card Section. If no notice has been received to the effect that cards for a volume in the series can not longer be waited for, the cards will be sent when ready.

§ 17. Certain series of transactions of foreign societies and publications of foreign governments, received by the Library of Congress through the International Exchange of the Smithsonian Institution, are received months and occasionally years after publication. Libraries which order cards for current publications in such series will be notified that there will be delay in furnishing the cards and informed that orders will be accepted only on the understanding that they will wait for cards the length of time ordinarily required for them to reach the stock.

§ 18. In checking orders for cards by series the ordinary checks used for author and title orders will be used (see Handbook, p. 30).

§ 19. The Library of Congress has found it impracticable thus far, except in a few cases, to issue printed series cards giving the list of the publications included in a series. Whenever a series card is printed for any series, libraries ordering cards for publications in this series will be notified that a series card can also be obtained.

SPECIAL SETS—Nos. 1 and 2.

§ 1. Through volunteer work by Mr. J. C. Bay, an assistant in the Catalog Division, full sets of analytical cards have been prepared for the works named below. Subject entries and other necessary added entries have been indicated and great pains taken to obtain the original date of publication of each article. It was thought that such analyticals would be useful to both libraries and specialists who possess copies of these important works. Cards for both sets are now in press and will be in stock by January 31, 1904. Orders for sets will be accepted at once.

§ 2. The price of cards for "special sets," ii sold in less than full sets or furnished in continuation of full sets, will be 2 cents for the first copy of any card and ½ cent for each additional copy of the same card furnished at the same time with the first. But complete sets of cards for the work so far as published will be sold at the rate of 1 cent for the first copy of any card and ½ cent for each additional copy of the same card furnished at the same time.

§ 3. Those ordering cards for sets should be careful to state which of the sets hereafter described they desire.

(a) "Author entry set," which will be held to include one copy of every different card included in the set.

(b) "Complete set," which will be held to include, in addition to the "author entry set," all the cards required to bring out the subject entries and added entries suggested on cards in the author entry set.

§ 4. Orders for special sets with continuation may be expressed in the form indicated by the following example:

(Die) Natürlichen pflanzenfamilien, hrsg. von A. Engler und K. Prantl, 1887–

"Author entry set," complete to date.

Continuation till publication is completed or order countermanded.

§ 5. Those desiring to order cards for a "special set" with continuation should deposit a sum sufficient to pay for the set complete to date, with a margin to cover the cost of cards to be furnished currently.

SPECIAL SETS—NOS. 1 & 2.

(Die) Natürlichen pflanzenfamilien, hrsg. von A. Engler und K. Prantl, 1887–

(Das) Pflanzenreich, hrsg. von A. Engler, 1901–

Main entry requires 2 cards; 21 different analyticals are required for the work so far as issued to the end of 1903; 20 subject entries and other added entries have been suggested. Price for "author entry set" complete to end of 1903, 20 cents. Price for "complete set" to end of 1903, 40 cents.

[Full instructions as to the ordering of cards by subject for bibliographical purposes or by title for cataloging purposes will be found in the Handbook of Card Distribution. Instructions for the ordering of cards by series will be found in Bulletin No. 4.]

No. 6 BULLETIN MARCH 1, 1904

CATALOG CARDS FOR BOOKS TO BE INCLUDED IN THE NEW EDITION OF THE A. L. A. CATALOG

§1. The new edition of the A. L. A. Catalog of books for small libraries, which is being prepared for the St. Louis Exposition, is expected to be ready for distribution in May, 1904. It will probably contain about 5,000 different entries, representing about 8,000 volumes. Subscribers to the L. C. printed cards will be notified when the publication is ready for distribution, and full information will be given as to methods of ordering printed cards from it.

§2. The Library of Congress will print during March and April catalog cards corresponding to titles in this new edition of the A. L. A. Catalog. A sample of the form of card which will be issued for this selection of books is enclosed herewith.

§3. The statements in the following sections of this bulletin refer only to cards for books listed in the A. L. A. Catalog, edition of 1904.

§4. Subject entries for a dictionary catalog will be suggested on all the cards, instead of being limited as heretofore to those which fall within the reclassified sections of the Library of Congress. As these cards are expected to be used extensively in the smaller libraries, it has been decided to print on them in many cases subject headings shorter and simpler than those which are required for the catalogs of the Library of Congress. In the assignment of subject headings the A. L. A. list of subject headings will be followed quite closely.

It will be noticed that the words "subject entries" are omitted and the entries simply numbered with Arabic figures.

§5. Such "added entries" as will be used in the public catalog of the Library of Congress are indicated on the cards. They are placed after the subject entries and, to render them easily distinguishable from subject entries, are numbered with Roman numerals.

§6. The serial numbers on the cards will be those regularly used on the L. C. cards. Cards which are merely reprints of those now in stock will have the original serial number. Those which represent books now cataloged for the first time will have numbers assigned from the regular series of 1904.

§7. The number of cards needed for the main entry and for the suggested subject and added entries is indicated on the cards after the serial number, the two being separated by a slanting line. The same number, indicating number of cards needed, will also be affixed to the corresponding entry in the A. L. A. Catalog.

Librarians who order cards by author and title for books in the A. L. A. Catalog, in advance of the publication of the catalog, can obtain the number of copies indicated on any card by filling out and returning the enclosed standing order blank marked "Number of cards = number indicated." Subscribers must note carefully, however, that at present such a standing statement is applicable only to cards which are being printed for books listed in the A. L. A. Catalog. Number of cards wanted for other books must be indicated in the usual way (see Handbook, p. 21–23).

§8. Libraries which desire to order cards for books in the A. L. A. Catalog by number, in advance of the publication of the catalog, should subscribe to the proofsheets of these cards as issued. A few titles included in these proofsheets will not appear in the catalog when published in book form. The subscription price for these proofsheets will be $5 for the complete set of about 1,000 strips on white paper, and $6 for the same on manila paper. Samples of the two kinds of proofsheets are enclosed.

Subscribers to complete sets of the proof will receive the proof of cards for books in the A. L. A. Catalog as a part of their set. Subscribers to partial sets of the proof will receive only such portion of them as would naturally come within the limits of their order.

§9. About one-half of the cards for books in the A. L. A. Catalog were already in stock in the Card Section. The original cards will be kept in stock and can be furnished until the original stock is exhausted. They will afterwards be furnished only in the new form. Librarians who have a preference for either the regular form of L. C. card or for the form shown by the enclosed sample should indicate their preference by filling out the enclosed form marked "Form of card, A. L. A. Catalog." If no preference is expressed, orders for cards for books included in the A. L. A. Catalog will ordinarily be filled with cards of the old form until the stock of old-style cards is exhausted. Orders will afterwards be filled with cards of the new form only.

§10. The price for complete sets of cards for all the books listed in the A. L. A. Catalog will be as follows:

For an "author entry set," consisting of one card only for each separate publication entered in the catalog, the price will be $1\frac{1}{2}$ cents per card, or about $75 for the set of about 5,000 cards.

For a "complete set," consisting of the author entry set and all additional cards required to bring out the subject and added entries suggested on the cards, the price will be at the rate of $1\frac{1}{2}$ cents for the first card and $\frac{1}{2}$ cent for each additional card, or about $125 for the complete set, assuming that the catalog will list about 5,000 different titles and that about three cards will be required, on the average, for each title.

The prices of cards for books in the A. L. A. Catalog will otherwise be the same as those for other cards.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

CARD SECTION

No. 7. BULLETIN June 15, 1904

AN ACCOUNT OF THE CATALOGS, CLASSIFICATIONS, AND CARD DISTRIBUTION WORK OF THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS.[1]

THE OLD CATALOGS

§1. Until 1864 the catalogs of the Library of Congress, like those of other American and European libraries of the period, were in book form. Catalogs covering the collection were printed at intervals of about ten years on the average. Between the printing of one catalog and the printing of another several supplements or lists of accessions were issued.

In the printed catalogs of 1802, 1804, and 1808 the books were divided into classes according to size, and those of each class were numbered in the order of the accession of books of that size. This arrangement corresponded to that of the books on the shelves. The entries were shortened to an average of about a half dozen words.

In the catalog of 1812 the entries were divided into eighteen classes. Under each class they were subdivided by size and then alphabetized by the surnames of authors, or by the first word in the case of title entries. In this and the earlier catalogs authors' surnames only were given and articles were not disregarded in the entry or arrangement of titles.

The catalog of 1815 is the most notable of the collection. It was in effect a catalog of the library of Thomas Jefferson which had been bought in 1814 to replace the one burned by the British. It was compiled by Jefferson himself. In it the entries were divided according to Bacon's scheme for the classification of knowledge, into forty-four classes or chapters. Under the class the books were arranged alphabetically and an alphabetical index of authors' names for the whole catalog provided.

Jefferson's classification, with some modification and an increasing number of subdivisions, was retained in the catalog of 1830, 1839, 1849, and 1861. The catalog of 1830 had no author index, but it was reprinted in 1831 with a supplement and an author index to the whole. An author index was provided in the catalog of 1839, but not in those of 1849 and 1861. By 1861 the number of classes and subclasses had increased so that the entries in the catalog of that date were distributed in 179 alphabets.

The single chapter of a catalog covering Ancient history, printed in 1854, is notable as being the result of an experiment conducted by the Smithsonian institution and the Library of Congress in preparing a catalog from stereotyped blocks, according to the plan of Prof. Charles C. Jewett. The ultimate aim of the plan was to inaugurate a system of cooperative cataloging between the Library of Congress and other American libraries. An edition of this chapter of the catalog was also printed in folio form.

The catalog of 1864 was the last complete author catalog issued. In it the classed arrangement was abandoned and the entries arranged in one alphabet.

In 1870–80 an attempt was made to issue another printed book catalog covering the collection. Two volumes, including titles alphabetized between A and Craigin, were printed. The work of preparing the manuscript proceeded slowly on account of the care exercised in the work and the small force available for it. The titles were usually given in full, and the expense of issuing the volume was large. The result was that the appropriation for printing the catalog was found to be totally inadequate. Accordingly the work was abandoned. In order to facilitate the rapid consultation of entries in these volumes they were pasted into a single scrapbook. This book included the entries between A and Drei, inasmuch as a portion of the sheets for the third volume of the catalog were then available in unbound form.

After the catalog of 1864 had been issued the attempt was made to maintain a catalog in a single volume by the "scrapbook" method. The titles in the 1864 catalog were distributed through a large manila scrapbook at such intervals as were deemed proper to admit of the insertion of future accessions in their alphabetical place. Titles clipped from the annual list of accessions issued between 1864 and 1876 were pasted in the space left for accessions. The space allowed, while ample at some points, proved to be very inadequate at others, with the result that printed slips had sometimes to be tipped in a half dozen deep. Although much ingenuity was shown in maintaining an approximate alphabetical arrangement of titles, within twelve years the pasted-slip catalog had become so congested that the addition of further titles was judged impracticable. It was until very recently consulted occasionally and referred to as a check on cards missing from the official card catalog of the Library.

Concurrently with the formation of the pasted-slip book catalog the Old official catalog of the Library was in course of compilation. This was compiled for the most part by pasting on cards, 4½ by 7 inches, entries clipped from the catalog of 1864, from the subsequent annual list of accessions, and later from the Catalog of copyright entries. The titles of accessions not available in printed form were written in the usual way. A considerable portion of the entries in this catalog are full and accurate, with the result that the cards are often used as copy for the printed cards. The Old official catalog was kept up until the end of 1899. (For further information as to the old catalogs see Johnston, W. D., History of the Library of Congress, 1800–1860.)

THE NEW CARD CATALOG

§2. Beginning with July, 1898, fifty copies of the entry for each book received by copyright were printed. With these cards the compilation was begun of three dictionary catalogs, viz, the Public catalog, the New official catalog, or Second official catalog, intended for the use of the Catalog division, and the Third official catalog, designed to be placed eventually at the Capitol. The accessions of the Library received by purchase and gift continued to be cataloged on the large cards and filed in the Old official catalog until the end of 1899. During 1900 ms. author cards for these were made for the Second official catalog and typewritten copies of the same for the Public catalog.

In the first part of 1900 the entries in the catalog of 1864 and the twelve supplements issued between 1864 and 1876, about 160,000 titles, were mounted on cards and filed in the Public catalog. Since January, 1901, at which date the Library began to print cards for all books cataloged or recataloged, practically the same entries are inserted in the three catalogs.

Some of the entries required for a complete dictionary catalog are not at present inserted in the three catalogs. Full subject entries are usually made only for books classified according to the new scheme and for books in biography.

The difference in the scope of the three catalogs may be indicated as follows:

Excepting typewritten cross reference cards, the Third official catalog contains nothing but printed cards. It is the same in scope as the stock of printed cards and covers the following:

(a) Books received by copyright since July, 1898.

(b) Books received by purchase or gift since January 1, 1901.

(c) Books in recataloged sections, viz: General history; American history and description; British history and description (i. e. history and description of England, Scotland, Ireland, and Wales); general history and description of Europe; history and description of Austria-Hungary; bibliography; mathematics.

The Second official catalog contains, in addition to the entries in the Third official catalog, ms. author cards for books received by purchase or gift in 1900. On the other hand, it is less complete than the Third official catalog in the matter of title entries. It contains title entries for anonymous books only, whereas the Third official catalog, like the Public catalog, contains title entries for striking or memorable titles in addition to those for anonymous books.

The Public catalog contains the following entries not represented in either the Second official catalog or the Third official catalog:

(a) Main entry cards for serial, incomplete, and ephemeral publications.

(b) Pasted slip entries for books listed in the catalog of 1864 and the accession lists of 1865–1876, which have not yet been recataloged.

The Second official catalog differs from the other two as follows:

(a) It contains the original manuscript cards, which have served as copy for the printer, these being retained in preference to printed copies in order to preserve the original record of each entry. When large cards from the Old official catalog are used as copy for the printer, a printed copy is necessarily used in the Second official catalog, the various checks and other records not printed being transferred in manuscript.

(b) All tracing of cards for the three catalogs is done on the cards in the Second official catalog.

THE CLASSIFICATION

§3. During the first decade of the existence of the Library of Congress the books were classified by size into folios, octavos, and duodecimos. In the catalog of 1812 the books were divided by subjects into eighteen chapters, with subdivisions of the chapters by size of volumes.

When, in 1815, Jefferson's library became the Library of Congress, the classification used by Jefferson was adopted. This was an adaptation by Jefferson himself of Bacon's well-known scheme for the classification of knowledge, resulting in the division of the library into forty-four chapters. The classification thus inaugurated was retained with some changes and an increasing number of subdivisions down to 1898, when a new classification began to be applied. (For additional information on the old system of classification see Johnston, W. D., History of the Library of Congress, 1800–1864.)

The new system of classification is devised from a comparison of existing schemes (including the "decimal" and the "expansive") and a consideration of the particular conditions in this library, the character of its present and probable collections, and its probable use. It is assumed that the departments of history, political and social science, and certain others will be unusually large. It is assumed that investigators will be freely admitted to the shelves.

The system devised has not sought to follow strictly the scientific order of subjects. It has sought rather convenient sequence of the various groups, considering them as groups of books, not as groups of mere subjects. It has sought to avoid technical, foreign, or unusual terms in the designation of these groups. It has selected for the symbols to denote them: (1) for the classes, a capital letter or a double letter; (2) for the subclasses, these letters combined with a numeral in ordinary sequence. Provision for the insertion of future groups is: (1) in intervening numbers as yet unused; (2) in the use of decimals.

The main classes are as follows:

A. General works. Polygraphy.
B. Philosophy. Religion.
C. History, auxiliary sciences.
D. History and topography (except America).
E. America (general) and United States (general).
F. United States (local) and America outside of United States.
G. Geography. Anthropology.
H. Statistics. Economics. Sociology.
J. Political science.
K. Law.
L. Education.
M. Music.
N. Fine arts.
P. Language and literature.
Q. Science.
R. Medicine.
S. Agriculture, plant and animal industry.
T. Technology.
U. Military science.
V. Naval science.
Z. Bibliography.

On June 1, 1904, the classification of D, E, F, M, Q, R, S, T, U, Z had been completed; classes A, C, G, H, V were in process of reclassification.

SHELFLISTS

§4. The shelflists are written on sheets 32 x 25 cm. The entries are made in strict order alphabetical or chronological, as the case may be, with liberal provisions of space between them at the start for additions, varying according to subject. Up to 50 entries of single works may be made on a page, while a single serial entry may fill a whole page. Additions may also be entered for a time on the verso of the preceding sheet, opposite the regular place. When that space is exhausted the entries are copied, being transferred to several new sheets with fresh provision of room for new entries. The sheets are kept loose in covers, forming portfolios of convenient size for handling. These covers are preferred to temporary binders, because sheets may be withdrawn or replaced without any delay, saving much time when additions are made frequently.

After catalog cards have been printed for a classified section of the library a printed card shelflist or classified catalog is formed for reference use by filing these cards in systematic order.

THE L. C. PRINTED CARDS

§5. The following are some of the general characteristics of the cards:

1. One form of card only is printed for a book, viz, the main-entry card. All the cards needed for secondary entries are to be made from this main-entry card by the addition of headings.
2. So far as practicable, the real name of the author is given in full, with dates of birth and death.
3. The title of the book is usually given in full.
4. The paging of the book and its bibliographical peculiarities are carefully indicated.
5. Contents are usually reproduced when they contain several works by the same author or works by several authors or works on several subjects, especially if the collective title does not sufficiently describe them.
6. Notes are given when necessary to explain the title or to correct any misapprehension to which it might lead, or to supply essential information or bibliographical details not stated in the title, imprint, or collation.

As will be seen from examination of any file of the L. C. cards, numerous changes have been made in the form of these cards in the five years during which they have been issued. Changes and additions have been made whenever it was thought that they would render the cards more effective. The following are the principal changes and additions made to date.

(a) AUTHOR'S NAME IN THE HEADING

Type changed from roman, spaced, to black face in May, 1901; increasing effort made to secure full names and dates of authors.

(b) AUTHOR'S NAME IN THE TITLE

After July, 1901, the author's name was repeated in the title, pursuant to a decision of the A. L. A. committee on cataloging.

(c) COPYRIGHT NOTE

In December, 1901, at the request of libraries subscribing to printed cards, the two-line note containing information as to copyright was shortened to the single word "copyright" and placed at the bottom of the card.

(d) SUBJECT HEADINGS FOR DICTIONARY CATALOGS

Previous to September, 1901, no subject entries were suggested. From September, 1901, to August, 1902, subject headings were suggested on cards for copyrighted books and for books in reclassified sections of the Library. Since August, 1902, subject headings have been suggested on cards for books in reclassified sections only, with an exception in the case of cards issued for books in the new edition of the A. L. A. Catalog. Subject headings are indicated on all the cards for books listed in this catalog. Of the 140,000 cards in stock about 55,000 have subject headings indicated on them; about 30,000 are for books in fiction and other form classes which require no subject headings; the remaining 55,000 cards have no subject headings indicated on them, because they represent books which at the time of the printing of the entry were still classified according to the old system.

(e) ADDED ENTRIES

Since March, 1904, the necessary added entries have been indicated on all cards, names of joint authors, editors, etc., being given in full when practicable. To distinguish added entries from subject entries they are given in a second series and numbered with roman numerals.

(f) NUMBER OF CARDS WANTED

To facilitate the ordering of cards for books listed in the new edition of the A. L. A. Catalog, the number of cards needed for cataloging the book in a dictionary catalog of medium fullness is indicated after the serial number.

(g) TABLE OF CONTENTS

To save space on the card it was decided March, 1901, to give table of contents in one paragraph and usually in their natural order instead of rearranging them. At the request of libraries subscribing to cards, black-faced figures have been used since March, 1903, for volume numbers in table of contents.

(h) CLASS MARKS

The class marks of the Library of Congress have been given uniformly on cards for books in the reclassified sections of the Library, but on no others. The class marks for the "expansive" and "decimal" systems have been given on cards for books in the new edition of the A. L. A. Catalog.

(i) SERIAL NUMBER

Most of the cards printed for copyrighted books during the years 1898–1901 were dated and numbered to correspond to the order of their entry in a certain number of the Catalog of copyright entries. In December, 1900, and the early part of 1901, various short series were started by way of experiment. After July, 1901, all these different series of numbering were abandoned and all cards printed were numbered consecutively in a single series throughout the year, the series for each year being designated by the final figures in the date. For example, the four-hundredth card printed in 1902 is numbered 2–400.

As the earlier cards are reprinted they are changed to the later form, so far as practicable; consequently the stock of cards tends to become more uniform. While variations in the form of the card are admitted to be objectionable, experience seems to show that they do not essentially impair the effectiveness of a catalog made up from the L. C. printed cards. Such a catalog is believed to be far more satisfactory to the users of it than any catalog made from handwritten or typewritten cards.

The scope of the present stock of printed cards is as follows:

(1) All copyrighted books received since July 1, 1898.

(2) All books received by gift or purchase since January, 1901.

(3) Books in the recataloged sections of the Library, viz: General history; American history and description; British history and description (i. e. history and description of England, Scotland, Ireland, and Wales); general history and description of Europe; history and description of Austria-Hungary; bibliography; mathematics.

CARD DISTRIBUTION WORK

§6. When the Library of Congress began to print cards in July, 1898, extra copies were printed with a view to future distribution of these to other libraries. In December, 1900, a branch of the Government printing office was installed in the Library, and in January, 1901, cards began to be printed for all the current accessions to the Library and for all books reached in the process of recataloging the Library.

In the latter part of October, 1901, a circular was sent out announcing that: (1) The Library of Congress would sell copies of any card which it had printed or might print in the future to libraries which cared to purchase them; (2) to promote the advancement of bibliography and library economy, and to facilitate the ordering of printed cards by number, copies of the cards would be deposited in twenty-five of the leading libraries of the country; (3) to further facilitate the ordering of cards by number proof sheets of cards in process of printing would be distributed to leading libraries, library commissions, and departments of the United States Government.

At the beginning of the work, orders for cards were restricted to libraries. At present no restriction whatever is made, except that, in addition to the cost of the cards themselves, a fair price will be charged for the time required to select and ship them. Cards may be ordered in any way that identifies those desired with reasonable exactness.

In order that orders of various kinds might be handled to advantage, special catalogs had to be compiled from the printed cards in stock. An author catalog was first compiled and methods devised for holding in it orders for cards for books not yet received or in process of recataloging. Provision was next made for orders by subject, by rearranging a set of the cards in the form of an alphabetico-classed catalog made up of broad classes from which orders by subject could be advantageously filled. The latest addition to the working catalogs of the Card section, is made up of all the cards containing a series note. By the help of this catalog orders for cards for books and monographs in series can be advantageously filled.

To facilitate the recataloging of libraries with the printed cards, traveling catalogs have been compiled of cards covering sections of the Library of Congress which have been recataloged, also a traveling catalog of the whole collection of cards, and others for certain topics not yet recataloged. These catalogs are sent to libraries by freight, express, or mail, according to the size of the catalog. They enable libraries using them to find out in advance whether cards are in stock for certain books and, if so, to order copies by the serial number of the card instead of being obliged to write out author, title, and imprint facts for the book.

The orders now currently received for cards may be divided into five classes, according to the method of ordering:

(1) ORDERS BY AUTHOR AND TITLE

Author, title, and imprint facts necessary to the identification of the book are copied from the title-page of the book or from some list and submitted as an order for cards. About three-fifths of the cards sold are ordered in this way. The smaller public libraries find this method of ordering the most practical.

Experience has shown that such orders can be made out rapidly and yet with accuracy sufficient for the purpose intended.

(2) ORDERS BY SERIAL NUMBER

As each card contains a serial number, cards can be ordered by number whenever it is possible to obtain access to a copy of the card or to the proof sheets of cards in process of printing. The L. C. serial numbers can now be obtained from the following sources: (a) Depository catalogues (see p. 11); (b) proof sheets of catalog cards in process of printing; (c) traveling catalogs; (d) bibliographical publications which have the L. C. card numbers attached. The following give L. C. numbers so far as practicable; Catalog of the A. L. A. Library, 1904; "Best books of the year," issued by the New York state library; "Buying list," issued by the Wisconsin library commission; "Accessions to the department library" of the U. S. Department of agriculture; "Writings in American history," compiled by E. C. Richardson; "Cumulative book index," published by H. W. Wilson, Minneapolis; Catalog of copyright entries, issued by the Copyright office.

(3) ORDERS BY SUBJECT

This method of ordering is used chiefly by specialists, commercial firms, bibliographers, and libraries having special collections.

(4) ORDERS BY SERIES

Cards may be ordered for any series or portion of a series of publications which is within the scope of the stock, and cards will be sent for current issues in the series, if desired.

(5) BY SUBSCRIPTION

For the benefit of libraries which desire to obtain from the cards suggestions as to books to be purchased, or to use them for bibliographical purposes, as well as a means of ordering additional cards by number, certain selections of cards are sold on subscription, e. g., "cards for new books," "cards for the more important new books," etc. Subscription to cards on any subject is also provided for.

The percentage of cards which will ordinarily be obtained from orders by author and title depends on the character of the library. In the case of orders from small public libraries the average is about 90 per cent. The percentage is less for larger libraries which buy a considerable percentage of foreign books. It is still smaller for college libraries, and is smallest of all for university libraries, which buy a large percentage of foreign books in highly specialized lines.

The cards can be used to special advantage by libraries just starting and by libraries recataloging, because the cards needed by them, which are already in stock, can be ordered in large installments, and the manuscript cards made thereafter can be varied, if desired, to correspond with the printed cards received from the Library of Congress. The experience of libraries now subscribing to cards seems to prove that it is advantageous also for libraries to use the printed cards for current accessions even when no recataloging is contemplated. Libraries have found that the ordering of printed cards and the fitting of them to the catalog, although somewhat difficult at first, can be reduced to a routine requiring much less skilled labor than good manuscript cataloging.

The affixing of the L. C. card numbers to titles in the new edition of the A. L. A. Catalog, as well as to titles in other bibliographical lists, such as those named on p. 10, seems likely to considerably facilitate the ordering of cards by smaller libraries.

Up to June 28, 1904, 355 libraries and 28 individuals and firms had subscribed to the cards. The sale of cards during April, 1904, slightly exceeded $1,000. The total sale of cards during the thirty months from the beginning of the work in November, 1901, to the end of April, 1904, amounted to approximately $15,000.

The following libraries have been made depositories for the L. C. printed cards:

Brooklyn public library, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Buffalo public library, Buffalo, N. Y.
Carnegie library of Atlanta, Atlanta, Ga.
Cincinnati public library, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Cleveland public library, Cleveland, Ohio.
Denver public library, Denver, Colo.
Illinois state university library, Champaign, Ill.
John Crerar library, Chicago, Ill.

Johns Hopkins university library, Baltimore, Md.
McGill university library, Montreal, Canada.
Massachusetts state library, Boston, Mass.
Mechanics institute library, San Francisco, Cal.
Michigan university library, Ann Arbor, Mich.
Minnesota university library, Minneapolis, Minn.
Nebraska university library, Lincoln, Nebr.
New Orleans public library, New Orleans, La.
New York public library, New York, N. Y.
New York state library, Albany, N. Y.
Pennsylvania university library, Philadelphia, Pa.
Philadelphia free library, Philadelphia, Pa.
St. Louis public library, St. Louis, Mo.
Seattle public library, Seattle, Wash.
Texas university library, Austin, Tex.
Wisconsin state historical library, Madison, Wis.

Information as to ordering and using the L. C. catalog cards has been published in the Handbook of card distribution and Bulletins 1–6 of the Card section. Three additional bulletins are in press, viz: Bulletin 8, "Additions, changes and restatements affecting the regulations as to ordering cards"; Bulletin 9, "List of subscribers to the printed catalog cards of the Library of Congress"; Bulletin 10, "Simplified directions for ordering and using the L. C. catalog cards."

The matter contained in the remainder of this bulletin constitutes a verbatim reprint of the circulars and memorandum issued in October and November of 1901, initiating the card distribution work. The original circulars were issued in quarto form.

DISTRIBUTION OF CATALOG CARDS

THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS,
Washington, D. C., October 28, 1901.

The Library of Congress is now prepared to furnish a copy or copies of any of the catalog cards (a) which it is currently printing; (b) which it has heretofore printed, so far as copies of these can be supplied from stock.

The Library is currently printing cards for the following classes of accessions:

(a) Books currently copyrighted under the laws of the United States.
(b) Miscellaneous material, both current and noncurrent, so far as acquired by it.
(c) The printed books in its present collection as these are reached in the process of reclassification.

The cards already printed have included the following:

(a) Copyrighted books since July 1, 1898.
(b) Miscellaneous accessions since January 1, 1901, and in part since January 1, 1900.
(c) The two groups in the existing collection already reclassified to wit: Bibliography and library science; American history. (The group next to be dealt with is Political and social science.)

Samples of the printed cards are inclosed herewith. They are author cards merely. Subject headings will, however, be suggested on cards in the following groups at least:

1. Copyrighted books;
2. Bibliography and library science;
3. American history, and
4. Each new group as reclassified.

In the Library of Congress these subject headings are prefixed, with pen or typewriter, to the author cards in order to form subject cards.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE

The charge will be based upon the cost (including handling) of the extra copies, plus 10 per cent. What this charge will be will depend upon the number of copies subscribed for, both in the aggregate and by any particular library. For a single copy of a single cards it will not exceed 2 cents.

ORDERS

1. Orders will be accepted in any form which specifically identifies the book (i. e., the card desired). For copyrighted books the most convenient form of order would be a checked copy of the Weekly bulletin of copyright entries containing the titles desired. This bulletin is a publication of the Treasury department. It is available to any subscriber at a cost of $5 per year. Subscriptions for it should be addressed to the Treasury department, at Washington.

2. The Publishers' weekly contains almost all the titles in the Bulletin that would interest the ordinary library, and many of the uncopyrighted books also. Orders may be sent in in the form of a checked copy of the Publishers' weekly.

3. The Library of Congress takes proofs of all its cards upon galley strips. Copies of these strips will be sent currently to any library ordering, or likely to order, a considerable number of these cards. This distribution will have to be limited, at the beginning at least, to not more than 25 libraries. A set of the strips will, however, be sent currently to every state library commission, with the expectation that the commission will undertake to receive requisitions for cards from the smaller libraries, will consolidate them, and will forward them as orders to the Library of Congress. The cards can then be distributed, either through the state commissions (as would be more convenient to the Library of Congress), or perhaps direct to the particular institution subscribing.

The galley strips will, of course, contain all the titles for which cards are currently printed.

On the proofs each title receives a consecutive printer's number. The strips themselves may be cut and the titles desired forwarded as the order, with the designation of the number of copies of each card required. But the order need consist of no more than the numbers of the titles in the printer's series, as indicated upon the slips. Any library not receiving nor having access to the strips, nor choosing to employ as a check-list the Copyright bulletin or the Publishers' weekly, will be at liberty to send its orders in the form of a brief memorandum on sheet or slip. The description must, however, be sufficiently precise for absolute identification, to wit: Author, brief title, number of volumes, date, publisher, and place of publication—in short, the imprint. In the case of a current book the information ordinarily sent to a dealer in ordering will be sufficient.

In fact, libraries desiring these cards, for all or most of their accessions, might do well to forward to the Library of Congress, at the time of placing the order with the dealer, a duplicate (carbon copy) of their order-sheet.

Orders for cards on sheets must be on sheets of standard letter size; on slips, must be of the size of the 33° catalogue card. (Size of the enclosed.)

Orders should be addressed:

THE LIBRARIAN OF CONGRESS,

PRICE

Under the existing law the Librarian of Congress will act merely as the agent for the public printer in receiving orders and subscriptions for the cards. The law requires payment in advance. The normal charge can be determined only after experience. In the meantime, in order to initiate the undertaking, it is necessary to fix a charge which shall serve for the present. The following rates have, for this purpose, been determined upon:

(a) For one copy of any card, 2 cents.
(b) For each additional copy, five-tenths of 1 cent.
(c) For each additional copy of any one card where the order is received before the title goes to print, four-tenths of 1 cent per copy.

Thus, the cost per title will be:

1. To a library requiring one copy of a card, 2 cents.
2. To a library requiring two or more copies, 2 cents for the first copy; one-half cent for each additional copy where the order is received subsequent to printing.
3. To a library placing an order for two or more copies of a card, before printing, 2 cents for the first copy and four-tenths of 1 cent for each additional copy.

Fractions of a cent in any final accounting will be reckoned as a whole.

PAYMENT

Subscribers can not determine whether their orders will reach the Library in advance of printing. They can not, therefore, determine the precise amount to remit with their orders. They may follow one of these courses:

1. If they remit with each order, the remittance should cover the higher charge (2 cents for the first copy; five-tenths of 1 cent for each additional copy). Any balance in their favor will be duly credited.

2. They may deposit in advance with the Librarian of Congress a lump sum. They will receive a receipt and credit for this, and any work done for them will be debited against it. This method is recommended as decidedly more simple and convenient.

REMITTANCES

Must be by cheque or money order, payable to "The Librarian of Congress."

The above arrangement is to take the place of any and all arrangements heretofore proposed for the distribution of these cards by the Publishing board of the American library association, in cooperation with the Library of Congress.

Various details with reference to the distribution can be settled only after information as to what and how many libraries are likely to subscribe.

Please respond to this circular, therefore, stating—

(a) Whether or not you intend to subscribe and to what probable extent.

(b) If you do not intend to subscribe, what modifications of the plan proposed would alter your decision.

A self-addressed envelope is enclosed.

HERBERT PUTNAM,
Librarian of Congress.

NOTE 1.—Orders for cards will be received at once.

NOTE 2.—The enclosed sample cards represent style and quality now in use. Cards heretofore printed by the Library, though of the same size, have varied from these as follows:

(a) Stock used prior to January 1, 1901, was somewhat inferior.

(b) Prior to April 1, 1901, spaced type was used for headings; 6-point instead of 8-point for notes and contents.

(c) Arrangement and spacing of entry have varied slightly.

MEMORANDUM

Distribution of Printed Catalog Cards by the Library of Congress

The following extract from a statement recently given to the press by the Librarian of Congress may additionally convenience your consideration of this matter:

"Practically all American libraries to-day have card catalogs. In these every book appears under its author, under the subjects of which it treats, and sometimes under its title if the title differs from the subject. Some books have to appear in perhaps only two places, others in forty or fifty where there are many authors and many subjects treated by them. On an average, a book appears in from three to five different places. Now, the cards that libraries have used were in the first instance written; then they came to be typewritten, and and in recent years they have in some libraries come to be printed. Printing is possible, of course, only for the larger libraries which are handling a large number of books and making elaborate catalogs—the New York public library prints, the Boston public library, the Harvard college library, the John Crerar of Chicago, and even the Carnegie at Pittsburg.

"The Library of Congress has for some time been printing. It has now within its walls a branch plant from the Government printing office.

COST OF CATALOGING

"Now, the cost of getting any particular book into the card catalog is far greater than the public has any notion of. There are various elements of cost. There is the work of the cataloger, who is an expert; then there is the work of the transcriber, if you multiply copies of the card by transcription or by typewriter. If you print, there is the cost of composition and presswork. The stock would cost the same whether you transcribe or print. But the two most costly factors are the work of the cataloger, the expert, and the work of the compositor or transcriber. It has been estimated that on the average the total cost of getting a single book into a library catalog is from 25 to 35 cents. Not a single volume of course. A book may be in a hundred volumes and yet represent only one title to be handled; it may be in one volume and represent twenty subjects to be handled; but on the average the cost is from 25 to 35 cents for each book, or what the librarians refer to as a 'title.'

MULTIPLYING EXPENSE

"Now, the interesting thing is that until now libraries have been in effect duplicating this entire expense—multiplying it, in fact, by each one undertaking to do the whole work individually for itself. There are thousands of books which are acquired by hundreds of libraries—exactly the same books, having the same titles, the same authors and contents, and subject to the same processes. But each library has been doing individually the whole work of cataloging the copies received by it, putting out the whole expense. Forty years ago Professor Jewett, then librarian of the Smithsonian institution, conceived the notion of a central bureau which might attend to these processes, the most expensive part of them, once for all, and make available its results to the various libraries receiving identical material; but the project never came to anything.

"There have been distributions of printed cards on a small scale or covering special subjects. The United States department of agriculture distributes its card indexes to subscribers paying the cost of the extra copies provided for the purpose, and is thus making generally available in convenient form, at a nominal cost, information of great value to investigators. The American library association (not as a scheme for profit, since it is not a commercial body, but merely as a measure of professional cooperation) has issued cards indexing certain scientific serials, and even cards cataloging certain current books. But the association has no library nor any corps of expert catalogers. For the material to be cataloged it had to depend upon voluntary gift or loan from the publishers. The cards issued did not cover enough titles to interest a large library; they covered too many to interest a small one. Yet a subscription had to be required for the entire series. There were never more than a hundred subscribers.

"Since the Library of Congress moved into the new building expectation has turned to it. It has already the largest collection of books on the Western hemisphere; it is increasing more rapidly than any other single collection. It receives without cost two copies of every book entered for copyright in the United States. It receives these on or before the date of publication, and thus in advance of any other library. It receives an enormous mass of material through exchange. And it is buying a mass of other books, current and noncurrent, which includes a large portion of material in current acquisition by the other libraries of the United States. It is classifying and cataloging this material on its own account. It is printing the results in the form of cards. It is reclassifying and recataloging its existing collection (excluding duplicates, over 700,000 books and pamphlets) and is printing these results also on cards. These cards are of the standard form, size, type, and method of entry. The Library has been in consultation for over a year past with a committee of the American library association—a committee of experts—in order to arrive at standards, and we have now arrived at what might be called a standard in all these respects. The card we use is called the 'postal size,' about 3 by 5 inches. There is another size (also standard) in use in some libraries called the 'index size,' about 2 by 5 inches. The entry on our card is so located, however, that in almost every case the 'postal size' can be cut to the 'index size' without sacrificing any of the text essential to the catalog. What the Library prints is an author card. It prints by way of memorandum on the card the subject-headings that it will use on the copies destined for subject cards. The cost to it of the first author card, including the work of the cataloger, is doubtless over 30 cents for each book. But a second copy of the card can be run off for a fraction of a cent.

EXTRA AUTHOR CARDS

"Now it is receiving this urgent appeal: To permit other libraries to order extra copies of the cards which will cover books that they are acquiring, just as they are permitted to secure extra copies of the card indexes of the Agricultural department, or, indeed, of any Government publication, paying the cost plus 10 per cent.

"Should this course be adopted, the Library of Congress would be expending no greater expert labor than before, the Government would be fully reimbursed for the additional mechanical work and material, and the other libraries of this country would be saved an expense, which in the aggregate is now an enormous expense, of duplicating, indeed, of multiplying many times over, the outlay on the two factors of cost which are the largest factors—the work of the cataloger and the work of the transcriber or compositor. Between 1891 and 1896 there were 7,000,000 volumes added to 4,000 libraries in the United States. These may have represented 500,000 different 'books' or 'titles.' The cost to catalog these once, at 35 cents a title, would have been but $175,000. They were cataloged many times over; how many times can only be guessed, for, of course, some books were acquired by only one library, others by hundreds of libraries. Assuming that on the average each book was cataloged only six times, the total cost to the 4,000 libraries was $1,050,000. Could they have acted as a unit, having the books cataloged and the cards printed at some central bureau and multiplying copies to supply the need of each, the total cost would certainly have been kept within $300,000. The saving effected during this short period alone would therefore have been two-thirds of the total; on the basis assumed, over $700,000.

"American instinct and habit revolt against multiplication of brain effort and outlay where a multiplication of results can be achieved by machine. This appears to be a case where it may—not every result, but results so great as to effect a prodigious saving to the libraries of this country. The Library of Congress can not ignore the opportunity and the appeal. It is, as I have said, an opportunity unique, presented to no other library, not even to any other national library. For in the United States alone are the library interests active in co-operative effort, urgent to 'standardize' forms, methods, and processes, and willing to make concession of individual preference and convenience in order to secure results of the greatest general benefit.

DISTRIBUTION TO BEGIN IMMEDIATELY

"The distribution of cards for the current publications may begin at once. Very likely it will cover also the publications of the present calendar year, so that the undertaking will be coeval with the century. The cards first issued will doubtless be those for the current American copyrighted books. These are listed in full in a publication compiled at the Library, but issued by the Treasury department, entitled 'The Weekly catalog' of books, etc., 'entered under the copyright law.' A library subscribing to this can check in each number the titles for which it desires cards and forward the number as an order. There need be no requirement of a subscription to the full series. Any card asked for can be furnished, and the charge, according to our best estimate, will not exceed a cent a card. The subscriptions received will, under the law, be covered into the United States Treasury.

"The Library is now printing cards at the rate of 200 titles a day, or 60,000 a year. The copyrighted books form, of course, but a small fraction of these. Thousands of the others will be of interest to other libraries and sought by them. Those of them which represent books that they possess or are about to acquire will save them expense; those that do not will still contain for them bibliographic information of value. The Library of Congress will itself include a large percentage of the books to be found in any other particular collection in the United States. The remainder will certainly be included in the contents and accessions of a half-dozen of the other great libraries. Co-operation may enable the titles of these also to be brought into the scheme of distribution, so that finally there shall actually be a centralization of this work.

"The possible and actual use of the printed cards is not confined to the main catalogs, nor indeed to the catalogs at all. They can be used in catalogs of special subjects, in the 'shelflist' of the library, and in various different records. Indeed, over a dozen different uses have been planned out for them by librarians, or in part adopted."

"What will become of the catalogers?"

"The catalogers are perhaps the most enthusiastic for the project. Cataloging is a work of many processes. The centralization will eliminate only two, and these the initial. It will free some human energy. In the smaller, more popular libraries this will be available for direct service to readers, of which there can never be sufficient. In the libraries for research the service freed will be available for advance cataloging and analytical work and for other bibliographic work indispensable to the full efficiency of the library, but which now can little be afforded owing to the necessary expense upon these two elementary processes."

USES OF PRINTED CARDS

Libraries using manuscript or typewritten cards are hampered more or less by the necessity of practicing economy in the entry itself, in the number of entries, and in the variety of catalogs maintained. They are apt to have to abridge titles; to omit, perhaps, the editor, translator, or title entry; to restrict the number of subject-headings; to content themselves with but one copy of the catalog; to forego special card catalogs of special departments or collections. To the cost of multiplying copies by hand or typewriter is added the cost of additional revision necessary to guard against new errors in the transcripts.

These difficulties have been largely overcome by the use of printed cards which insure a full entry under every head and absolute accuracy.

In the Library journal for April, 1901, various uses were mentioned to which printed cards could be put, and are put in one library employing them. Among them are these:

(1) Added entries are made in the public catalogs much more freely than cross references could be if the printed cards were not in use.

(2) An official catalog is kept, consisting of one copy of each card.

(3) A complete copy of the catalog—i. e., one copy of each card—is given to each of six other libraries of the vicinity.

(4) A duplicate catalog is kept of the bibliographical sections.

(5) A list of books in the reading room is kept up in card form.

(6) A list is kept of serial publications, both current and otherwise, i. e., either suspended or dead.

(7) A list of current serial publications is kept, including both periodicals and books issued in parts or volumes, i. e., "continuations."

(8) Special lists on particular subjects are made up for individual readers whenever wanted.

(9) Various other files are kept in the charge of different members of the staff, covering subjects of specific value, as, for the cataloging force, lists of bibliographies, indexes, etc.

DISTRIBUTION OF CATALOG CARDS

(Second circular)

THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS,
Washington, D. C., November 30, 1901.

The response to the first circular issued by the Library of Congress preliminary to the commencement of the distribution of printed catalog cards to libraries was so general and satisfactory that the Librarian is led to believe that a second circular, giving additional information and correcting misapprehensions, will not be untimely.

Opportunity is here taken to thank the librarians of the country who have so quickly responded with trial lists of titles for cards and suggestions as to improvement in the method of distribution and the form of entry on the card. Some of these suggestions have already been adopted; others will be used later.

Effort is being made to put the entries on the card in a form as clear and simple as possible. Librarians will please note that in the enclosed sample card for a copyrighted book the statement as to copyright has been much shortened and "Library of Congress" prefixed to the class number, thus indicating that the card is from the Library of Congress and explaining that the characters following constitute the shelf number for that book at the Library of Congress.

The classification scheme of the Library of Congress, in so far as it is finished, viz, for Bibliography (including Library science) and American history, will be printed by the end of 1901 and a copy furnished to all subscribers for cards who desire it.

An advance edition of the A. L. A. cataloging rules, as far as revised by the Advisory committee of the Association and approved by the Publishing board, will be printed by the Library of Congress for distribution to subscribers to catalog cards. The cataloging rules of the Library of Congress agree with these in all essential points. Variations will be pointed out. These rules will be ready for distribution, it is expected, in the early part of 1902.

DELAY IN FILLING ORDERS

Orders for the cards were invited at once. The work of distribution is, however, only just being organized. It seemed best to invite immediate orders in order to judge of the character and volume of the work and as an aid in determining the proper organization, and for certain other special reasons. There will be, however, a delay in filling the early orders, which must not be regarded as necessarily incident to the system of distribution.

SIZE AND PERFORATION OF THE CARDS

The samples enclosed with the first circular differed slightly in size of card and in the location and size of the perforation from the present standard card. This was an inadvertence. The cards we shall actually furnish, printed hereafter, will correspond with the sample herewith enclosed. The older cards, which are not exact size, are fortunately all too high, and will be cut to exact size before being sent out. The difference in size and location of the perforation on these—a matter of one-half to 1 mm.—is, we believe, too slight to interfere with the working of the cards in the drawers.

CLIPPING CARDS TO THE NO. 32 OR "INDEX" SIZE

As stated in the first circular, the no. 33 cards used for the printed catalog cards can be clipped in almost every case without sacrificing any of the text essential to the catalog; but as this clipping must in any case be done carefully card by card, and as libraries would ordinarily wish to transfer subject headings cut way to the back of the card, the Library of Congress will not attempt, at present at least, to clip the cards for libraries using the index size. It is believed that a satisfactory cutting and punching outfit for doing the work by hand will be found comparatively inexpensive and a desirable acquisition for any library.

PRICE OF CARDS

As stated in the first circular, the price of the first card ordered for a title is 2 cents. For each additional card ordered the price is one-half cent or two-fifths cent, according as the order is submitted before or after the title goes to press. Subscribers to cards will please note in addition to this that a second order for cards for the same title will be charged at the same rate as the first, viz, 2 cents for the first card, one-half cent for each additional card. This interpretation of the rule is necessary because the cost of handling (selecting and mailing) the cards is as great for the second order as for the first. The minimum price of two-fifths cent per card for extra cards, if order is given before title goes to press, applies only to standing orders for large classes of cards, e. g., cards for American history.

PROOF SHEETS OF CATALOG CARDS

The demands for the proof sheets of catalog cards in the course of printing at the Library of Congress have been so numerous and urgent that it is very probable that in addition to the copies distributed to libraries subscribing largely to the cards, other copies will be issued at a subscription price. Possibly the whole distribution, except by way of exchange, may have to be placed on a priced basis. The arrangement for subscriptions can not be effected at once, but will probably be by the first of January next.

It seems probable that small libraries forming a group in convenient proximity might secure benefit by subscribing for a full set of the proofs to be used in common. Experiment will also be made in classifying the titles, so as to admit of a subscription for proofs covering a certain department of literature; e. g., American history or Science.

A sample of proof as now issued is enclosed herewith.

DIRECTIONS FOR ORDERING CARDS

Ways of ordering.—As suggested in the first circular, subscribers can order cards already in stock by any of the following methods:

(1) Checked numbers of the weekly Catalog of copyright entries issued since June 1, 1898.

(2) Checked numbers of the Publishers' weekly issued since June 1, 1898.

(3) Any printed catalog or list of books which contains titles in the field covered by the catalog cards now in stock.

(4) Copies of order sheets prepared for book dealers.

(5) Lists of titles made out especially as an order for cards.

(6) Checked copies of the proof sheets issued by the Library of Congress since November 1, 1901.

(7) Titles clipped from the proof sheets.

(8) Lists of printer's serial numbers copied from the proof sheets (see table on p. 4 following).

(9) Standing orders for all cards that appear on a certain subject.

Orders must specifically identify the book.—Attention is again called to the fact that in order to insure promptness and accuracy in filling orders every title of a book submitted as an order for cards must specifically identify the book. In other words, it should contain: (a) Author's surname in full; first forename in full (or indicated by an unmistakable abbreviation), if possible; initials of middle names, if possible. (b) Short title made up of first word in title (not an article) and other significant words. (c) Date. (d) Publisher. (e) Edition, if other than the first. (f) Volumes, if more than one. (g) Place; if more than one, give first. (h) Blank space at right margin of sheet for insertion of the printer's serial number. Orders in which a, b, c are furnished will be filled to the best of our ability, but mistakes arising from the lack of either d, e, f, or g can only be corrected at the price of a new set of cards. This should be borne in mind by librarians who order cards by methods 3, 4, and 5, as given above.

Number of cards.—Orders should distinctly state the number of cards wanted. As stated in the first circular, subject heading are now suggested on all copyrighted books, Bibliography (including Library science), American history, and each new group as reclassified; but for other groups and for the cards already printed subject headings can not be relied upon as a guide to the number of subject cards wanted. The following specifications as to the number of cards wanted, used separately or in combination, will cover this point satisfactorily: (a) "Send number of cards indicated on order sheet" (this is the most satisfactory method). (b) "Send one (or two or three as desired) card for all titles unless a different number is called for on order sheet." (c) "Send one (or two or three as desired) card for all titles with the addition of as many cards for each title as there are subject headings indicated on the card."

Form of order sheet.—The following form of order sheet, taken with slight changes from one already received, is recommended as containing all the items necessary for "specifically identifying the book." The items are in general arranged in order of their importance as a means of identification. The column at the right should be left blank for addition of serial numbers at the Library of Congress. Use sheets 20 x 25 cm., or 8 x 10 inches.

THE ——— LIBRARY

ORDER FOR CATALOG CARDS

——— —, 190–.

TO THE LIBRARIAN OF CONGRESS:

Send for each title the number of cards indicated at left margin.

No. of cards.	Author.	Title.	Date.	Publisher.	Place.	Edition.	Vols.	Serial no.
3	Smith, John J. G...	Inquiry into . . . distribution of wealth.	1902	Jones	N. Y..	4	2	.....
5	Smithson, Ja.....	Dreams and visions.....	1904	Jenks.....	Phil....	.....	2	.....
4	Smithwick, Wm. H. P. C.	Childhood and manhood.	1905	Jameson ...	Bos.....	2	.....	.....

Order slips.—No. 33 slips or cards, each containing one title with all the imprint items added which are shown in the form above, are better than order sheets, as they can be arranged by serial number as well as alphabetically. They have also the great advantage over the order sheets that in the case of titles which are to be held for cards to be printed they can be filed without recopying. (See form below under "Titles held for cards.")

Lists should be arranged alphabetically.—In the case of order sheets made out especially for cards it is recommended that they be arranged alphabetically by authors. Lists submitted on no. 33 cards should also be arranged alphabetically.

Stamping order sheets and slips.—Every separate slip submitted as an order for cards should have name of library stamped on it. The same is true of order sheets unless all the sheets for an order are firmly fastened together. In the latter case only the first sheet need be stamped.

Ordering by number.—For the convenience of those ordering by serial numbers there will be found in the right-hand column of the table of series of cards now in stock at the Library of Congress (given below) the serial number, or the essential portions of it, as an order number. Orders giving lists of serial numbers only, or furnished by checking or cutting up the serial-numbered proof sheets, can be filled more quickly and accurately than any other.

Standing orders.—The Library of Congress being as yet imperfectly classified, except as to the sections of Bibliography and American history, it will be possible in most cases to select cards for works on particular subjects only in so far as the character of the works can be judged by the title on the card. Standing orders must state very specifically for what class of books cards are wanted. The following is an example of a satisfactory statement: "I wish to have the Library of Congress send me copies of all the cards which it now has for books on any phase of the colonial history of Pennsylvania, and of all those which may appear hereafter for books on that subject. I wish to limit the collection to books which are mainly concerned with the subject in some of its aspects, but in case of doubt should prefer to have the cards for the doubtful titles included. Send at the end of each month cards currently appearing. Send cards already printed all at once, as soon as they can be conveniently selected."

TITLES HELD FOR CARDS

For the present, distribution can be effectual only as to cards for copyrighted books. Every effort will be made to render it fully effectual for these. If for any reason cards for copyrighted books can not be furnished at once, the titles for these will be checked "C" in the lists and the library ordering will be notified when the cards will probably be ready. Cards will be sent as soon as they are printed unless order to the contrary is received. In the case of noncopyrighted books, no positive assurance can be given for the present, but libraries will in some cases be notified by an "O" check or an "R" check on their list that the book has been "ordered" or "received" by the Library of Congress. The Library of Congress will hold titles of noncopyrighted books, whether checked "O" or "R" or left unchecked, for cards only on condition: (a) That the titles be written each on a no. 33 card or slip; (b) that each slip be stamped with the name of the library and the number of some week in the year up to the end of which titles may be held for cards. The following form (reduced to $\frac{1}{3}$ height to economize space) is recommended for ordering cards in all cases, and especially when it is desired to have titles held for cards:

---Library.

Author ---

Date--- Publisher--- Place---

Edition--- Volumes--- Serial no.---

Hold for cards until week---

SERIES OF CATALOG CARDS NOW IN PRINT AT THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

The series of cards listed in the following table cover: The accessions of copyrighted books to the Library of Congress since June 1, 1898; the accessions of miscellaneous books since January 1, 1901; the portions of the Library now recataloged or in process of recataloging, viz, Bibliography (including Library science) and American history. The number of the series previous to June 1, 1901, and the diversity in the serial numbering were due partly to exigencies of printing, partly to experiment. Since June 1, 1901, excepting Maps and Music, all the series, including that for recataloged books, have been turned into one, numbered consecutively from the end of the English series 3277 to date. All the series are primarily distinguished by years, and the year number must always be given in ordering by number. These are shortened in the serial designation: 98 for 1898, 99 for 1899, 00 for 1900, 1 for 1901, 2 for 1902. The date of the month, printed until recently on the cards for each copyrighted book, and indicating the date of the Catalog of copyright entries in which this title appeared, is of no significance in ordering by number, except in the case of the "Copyright series, weekly numbered," and the "Miscellaneous series" of December, 1900. In the latter case the month alone, designated by 12, is used. The characters M 1, M 2, M 3, M 4, which appear on each card after the serial number, are an arbitrary token used to indicate the number of cards printed for the title. Previous to November 15th, 1901, they signified: M 1, 100; M 2, 60; M 3, 25; M 4, 15; since that date, M 1, 200; M 2, 100; M 3, 60; M 4, 15. In the absence of any printed finding lists of cards already in stock or of copies of the proof sheets issued previous to November 1, ordering by numbers will be, of course, so far as the majority of libraries are concerned, confined largely to the current series. It has seemed worth while, however, to print the entire table,[1] for the convenience of depository libraries and those having access to their catalogs.

LIST OF SUBSCRIBERS TO THE L. C. CARDS.

(Revised to Sept. 30, 1904.)

The list includes all libraries which have subscribed to the cards at any time, and all individuals who have deposited $3 or more for cards. Depository libraries are marked *. Partial depositories in the District of Columbia are marked **.

The number following the name of each library in the list is designed to be placed after the name of that library on the first slip or sheet of each order submitted by it, to facilitate the filling of orders and as a check against confusing similar names of libraries. The numbers are assigned according to the order in which the libraries began to subscribe to the L. C. cards or receive them as depositories.[2]

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS.

CATALOG DIVISION.

Card Section.

No. 9. BULLETIN. Oct. 15, 1904.

SPECIAL SETS—Nos. 3 and 4.

§ 1. The Library of the United States Department of Agriculture has prepared catalog cards for articles in three standard periodicals devoted to agricultural topics. These cards will be printed and sold by the Library of Congress. A sample of the cards is enclosed herewith. Subject entries will be suggested on all cards for these sets in the way shown in the sample.

§ 2. These cards will be sold in "author entry" sets, and "complete" sets, at the rate of one cent for the first copy of any card and half a cent for each additional copy of the same card furnished at the same time. An "author entry set" includes one copy only of each separate card printed. A "complete set" includes, in addition to the author set, enough additional copies of each card in the author set to cover the subject entries indicated on that card.

§ 3. The periodicals which have been analyzed, the approximate number of cards required for the articles in each, and the price of the sets are given below. The figures as to number of cards and the price of the same cover the issues of the periodicals to the end of 1903.

Annales de la science agronomique, 1884-1903.

Author set includes 328 cards; price $3.28. Complete set includes 844 cards; price $5.86.

Landwirthschaftliche jahrbücher, 1872-1903, v. 1-31.

Author entry set includes 838 cards; price $8.38. Complete set includes about 2,500 cards; price about $17.

Die landwirthschaftlichen versuchs-stationen, 1859-1903, v. 1-57.

Author entry set includes 1,378 cards; price $13.78. Complete set includes about 4,100 cards; price about $27.

§ 4. Cards for these sets are now in course of printing. It is probable that all of them will be in print by December 31, 1904. Those who order sets now can have cards sent as fast as printed or all at once when the set is completed, as they prefer.

§ 5. Cards will hereafter be printed in continuation of these sets. Those desiring to receive cards in continuation of sets should state this fact in their order. The price will be the same as that for cards in the initial complete sets.

§ 6. A single card or a set of cards for any article in these periodicals can be purchased at the rate of two and a half cents for the first card and a half cent for each additional copy furnished at the same time with the first.

§ 7. Subscribers to cards are required to pay for them in advance unless prevented from doing so by state or local regulations. Those desiring complete sets with continuations should deposit a sum sufficient to leave a margin to cover cards sent in continuation of sets. Those desiring to pay for the exact number of cards in print in a certain set or class on a certain date, should ascertain exact cost before sending money. Orders, checks and drafts sent in payment for cards should be made payable to "The Librarian of Congress."

§ 8. The cards for each of these periodicals will also be made up in classes and sold at the rate of two cents for the first card and a half cent for each additional copy of the same card furnished at the same time. The classes into which the cards will be divided will be the same as those employed in the "Card Index to Agricultural Literature," prepared by the Library of the United States Department of Agriculture, and are as follows:

1. Agricultural economics and sociology.

   History of agriculture, agricultural statistics, agricultural education, agricultural experiment stations, agricultural organizations, agricultural legislation, farm management.

2. General sciences.

   (a) Physics, (b) chemistry, (c) botany, (d) bacteriology, (e) zoology, (f) physiology, and other sciences. Includes only such material as can not properly be classified in the special groups which follow. For instance, everything relating to the chemistry of soils, including methods of analysis, is classed under Soils, and the bacteriology of milk under Dairy farming and dairying.

3. Air, meteorology, and climatology.

   Composition of the air and its industrial utilization; meteorological data, such as observations on temperature and rainfall; climatological studies.

4. Water.

   Physics, chemistry, and bacteriology of water, including methods of examination. Does not include engineering features.

5. Soils.

   Physics, chemistry and bacteriology of soils; methods of examination and investigation; origin and classification; improvement and reclamation.

6. Fertilizers.

   Farm manures and commercial fertilizers—their production, composition, preservation, uses; inspection and methods of examination; fertilizer experiments not dealing primarily with fertilizers for particular crops.

7. Field crops.

   Cereals, forage plants, root crops, potatoes, tobacco, textile plants, tea, coffee, etc.—their characteristics, improvement, composition, culture, manuring, irrigation, harvesting, preservation, marketing; farm rotations; seeds and weeds as related to field crops. Does not include insects and diseases affecting these crops.

8. Horticulture.

Fruits, nuts, garden vegetables—their characteristics, propagation, improvement, composition, culture, manuring, irrigation, harvesting, preservation, marketing; nurseries; ornamental plants; landscape gardening; seeds and weeds as related to horticultural crops. Does not include insects and diseases affecting these crops.

9. Forestry.

Description of trees, forest management, reforestation, forest products; forest fires. Does not include insects and diseases affecting forests.

10. Plant diseases.

Description and treatment of all diseases of plants not due to insects.

11. Entomology.

Apiculture; sericulture; insects affecting animals and plants and their description and treatment.

12. Foods and nutrition of man.

Foods, food accessories, condiments, beverages—their composition and methods of examination, nutritive value, preparation, preservation, adulteration, and inspection; dietetics; digestion and metabolism experiments.

13. Feeding stuffs.

Composition, digestibility, and nutritive value; sources, preparation and valuation; inspection and methods of examination.

14. Animal industry.

Cattle, sheep, goats, pigs, horses, mules, poultry, fishes, oysters, etc.; breeds and types; breeding and feeding; management; digestion and metabolism experiments; animal hygiene; slaughtering and marketing. Does not include dairy cows, bees, and silkworms.

15. Dairy farming and dairying.

Breeds, feeding, and management of dairy cows; milk secretion; milking; composition, properties, and testing of milk and its products; dairy bacteriology; care and handling of milk; dairy inspection; butter making; cheese making; condensed milk; other products.

16. Veterinary medicine.

Etiology, symptoms, and treatment of diseases of animals; animal parasites; plants poisonous to stock.

17. Agricultural technology.

Sugar making, brewing, distilling, wine making, cider making, and other industries.

18. Agricultural engineering.

Laying out farms; construction of buildings, water and irrigation systems, drainage and sewage systems, roads, bridges, fences; construction and use of farm machinery; application of power to agricultural purposes.

CARD SECTION

No. 12 BULLETIN April 1, 1906

METHODS OF DETERMINING AND INDICATING NUMBER OF CARDS WANTED

This statement is designed to replace all statements previously issued as to "Number of cards wanted," including p. 21–23 of the Handbook.

EXPLANATION ESPECIALLY APPLICABLE TO DICTIONARY CATALOGS

§1. As the dictionary card catalog is used in the great majority of the libraries of the United States, the requirements of such catalogs are kept in view especially in the following explanation. The changes required to suit other forms of catalogs are usually obvious. Libraries using other forms of catalogs which experience difficulty in obtaining a close approximation to the number of cards actually needed should report the fact, with explanation of the nature and extent of the difficulty.

ONLY MAIN ENTRY CARDS IN STOCK

§2. The cards printed at the Library of Congress for any book are all alike, being all main entry cards. Those using the cards for secondary entries adapt them for such entries by placing the desired entry words in the upper margin. When ordering cards for any book, it is therefore necessary to decide and indicate how many cards will be needed for all the entries required for the book.

SECONDARY ENTRIES NOT ALWAYS INDICATED

§3. If the necessary secondary entries (including title entry for striking titles) were indicated on all the cards in stock, just as they are indicated by exception on all the cards for books in the A. L. A. Catalog, libraries which were satisfied to accept the judgment of the catalogers at the Library of Congress would have merely to give general directions that enough cards be sent to cover the main entry and all the secondary entries indicated. But, as explained in Bulletin 11, §11, secondary entries are not indicated on perhaps 40% of the cards in stock for classed books. Libraries which desire to make secondary entries, whether such entries are indicated on the cards or not, find it advantageous to include in their order a provision that if secondary entries are not indicated one or more cards shall be sent to cover secondary entries which it may be desirable to make.

METHODS OF DETERMINING NUMBER OF CARDS WANTED

§4. The following methods of determining the number of cards wanted are now in use:

1. Examine the book itself, and decide how many cards are needed in the same way that this point is decided in manuscript cataloging. This method cannot be used, of course, if it is desired to order cards for books not yet received. Another objection to it is that the books must be held by the catalogers until the cards are received. A third objection is that two processes are required by it, viz., the examination of the book to ascertain the number of cards desired and the re-examination of it to fit the cards to it. Some libraries have been able to overcome the last two objections to a large extent by making a brief record of entries required for the book at the first examination, and then allowing it to go into circulation at once. They report that it is seldom necessary to re-examine the book itself. This method will probably prove satisfactory to libraries which have a well-defined system of entries and catalogers competent to decide quickly and accurately the number of entries which the book should have in their catalogs.

2. Order, from inspection of the title, the number of cards which will probably be needed. If additional cards are needed, a second order is sent in or manuscript cards are used. The cataloger who has mastered the art of assigning subject and added entries will be able to decide from inspection of the title, in a large percentage of cases, the number of copies needed. The number needed for fiction and other "form" classes can, of course, be determined almost infallibly. No information has been obtained as to the number of libraries which use this method in preference to method 1. It is probable that the two methods are frequently used by the same library—the number needed for ordinary books being determined by inspection of the title, that needed for others by examination of the books themselves. The one or the other method is used in making up the majority of orders received for L. C. cards.

3. Order, without examination of the book, a fixed number of cards.—Libraries which adopt this method order from two to twenty-five cards. If additional copies are needed, a second order is given or manuscript cards are used. A few libraries order two cards, as this number is needed for nearly every book; others order three, because three are needed for most books; others order from four to twenty-five to meet their particular needs. This method is especially suited to the needs of libraries which are constructing catalogs requiring a uniform number of cards.

4. Order, without examination of the book, a fixed number of cards plus a variable number to cover secondary entries indicated on the cards.—If this method is used, and two is taken as the fixed number, all the cards needed will be obtained in the majority of cases, and there will be few surplus cards; but very few cards will be obtained for secondary entries not indicated on the cards. It is used chiefly by libraries which have adopted the plan of bringing out secondary entries only in so far as they are indicated on the L. C. cards, and by those which think it especially desirable to avoid obtaining many cards for works of fiction.

5. Order, without examination of the book, a fixed number of cards plus a variable number to cover secondary entries indicated on the cards, with provision for the addition of a definite number in case no secondary entries are indicated.—This method insures that when entries are indicated the number of cards needed for them will be obtained, and that when they are not indicated the number obtained will approximate quite closely to the number of cards actually needed for the book. It has the disadvantages of occassionally calling for more cards than are needed, especially in the case of works of fiction. It is used by a large percentage of the subscribers to L. C. cards.

6. Order a single card; reorder additional cards, or make additional cards in manuscript.—In the case of books for which numerous analytical cards are desired, libraries occasionally order a single copy to ascertain whether the form of the card is satisfactory before ordering them in quantity. This is especially advantageous when the entry and the table of contents seem likely to fill more than one card, and it is desired to order the precise number of copies of each card constituting the entry which is needed for bringing out the items indicated on that card. In addition to the delay occasioned by a second order, this method has the obvious disadvantage of requiring a second payment for a "first card." If a library prefers to use manuscript cards for secondary entries, the facts needed for them can usually be taken directly from the printed card, without reference to the book.

Many libraries make use of two or more of the methods explained above. By combining method 1 or 2 with method 4 or 5 it is practicable to obtain a very close approximation to the number of cards actually needed. Such a combination of methods is especially advantageous to public libraries which desire a specific number of cards (usually two) for fiction. Libraries which find that they frequently fail to obtain as many cards as are needed for some books and more than they need for others are advised to try a combination of methods.

CHOICE OF A METHOD

§5. Those responsible for the ordering of cards should try first the method of determining the number of cards to be ordered which seems to agree best with the system of cataloging in use in their libraries and the class of books to be cataloged. If the first method tried proves unsatisfactory, others, singly or in combination, should be tried until a satisfactory result is obtained. If the circumstances of the work are unusual, they should be explained and suggestions asked from the Library of Congress as to the best method of providing for them. In case of doubt as to which method should be tried first, libraries are advised to begin with the fifth method outlined above. If the number of surplus cards received for works of fiction, biography, etc., proves to be considerable, the second method should be used for these.

FORMULAS FOR INDICATING NUMBER OF CARDS WANTED

§6. The practice of indicating added entries on all the cards printed since March, 1904, has rendered necessary a restatement of these formulas. The amounts indicated by the figures and letters in the formulas are to be taken additively or alternatively, as the case requires. The letters in the formulas are used with the following signification:

s = card for each subject entry indicated.

a = card for each added entry indicated.

As a rule the added entries indicated do not include title entry, the only exception thus far being in the case of cards for books included in the A. L. A. Catalog which have "striking" titles.

t = one card for title entry.

If a library desires an extra card for title entry in every case, the obvious way to indicate this is to increase the fixed number in the formula by one; but owing to the fact that title entry was included in the added entries indicated on cards for books in the A. L. A. Catalog having "striking" titles, it is evident that if a card for title entry is included in the fixed number and a is employed as a part of the same formula a surplus card would result in the case of such books. As the cards for books in the A. L. A. Catalog constitute less than 3 per cent. of the stock and are usually ordered separately, such duplication is ordinarily not frequent. If, however, a library desires to prevent this duplication, it can do so by using t after a, with the understanding that it cancels the title entry included in a, and that one card only is wanted for title entry.

The application of the formulas can best be explained by examples:

2s = send two cards; send one additional card for each subject entry indicated.[1]

2s2 = send two cards; send one additional card for each subject entry indicated; if no subject entries are incated, send two additional cards (i. e. four in all)

2s1a = send two cards; send one additional card for each subject entry indicated; if no subject entries are indicated, send one additional card[2]; send one additional card for each added entry indicated.

1s1at = send one card; send one additional card for each subject entry indicated; if no subject entries are indicated, send one additional card; send an additional card for each added entry indicated; send an additional card for title, except when card for title is included in the added entries indicated.

[1] The formulas have been shortened by omission of the plus sign after the first figure. Libraries which prefer to retain this sign may do so.

[2] Libraries which have been using a formula containing x (i. e. one card for each additional, "extra," subject entry after the first) may continue to use it if they prefer. This symbol can be used to advantage in place of s1 (the fixed number in the formula having been increased by one). When so used the resulting formula is shorter and easier to follow in selecting cards.

CHOICE OF A FORMULA

§7. The formula 2s1 has been more frequently used in the past than any other, as, with the exception of works of fiction, three cards at least are needed for nearly every book.

Since added entries began to be indicated on the cards in 1904, the formula 2s1a has gained favor steadily; it will be regarded as the "usual number" hereafter.

Public libraries which buy a large percentage of fiction are likely to prefer the formula 1s1a or the formula 2sa, unless they adopt the plan of assigning a specific number for works of fiction. (See end of §4)

Libraries which buy a small percentage of fiction and wish to have at least two cards for subject entries not indicated are likely to prefer the formula 2s2a or 1s2at.

In case a library fails to indicate definitely the number of copies wanted, the number of cards indicated by the formula 2s1a will be sent.

Of course, if a library desires an extra card for a shelf-list, the fixed number in the formula should be increased by one. If two catalogs are being made and a double quantity of cards is desired, the formula should be written, e. g. 2(2s1a)

VARYING THE FORMULA

§8. As explained in Bulletin 11, §11, subject entries are being indicated on all cards for books in reclassified sections of the Library. As the reclassification advances the percentage of cards which lack indication of subject entries decreases. Libraries which are recataloging on a large scale may possibly find it advantageous to vary their formulas according to the class of books for which cards are being ordered. Libraries which are ordering cards for current books only might find the formula 2sa satisfactory; whereas libraries ordering a large percentage of the older cards would be quite likely to find the formula 2s1a preferable. Again, if an order happens to be made up largely of works of fiction, it would probably be advantageous to reduce by one the fixed number in the formula, unless the plan is adopted of indicating number of cards wanted for fiction by affixing a specific number to each title. (See end of §4)

METHOD OF USING NUMBERS AND FORMULAS

§9. If a number or formula is affixed to an individual title or card number in an order, precedence will always be given to it over any more general method of indicating number of cards wanted. If a number or formula is affixed to an order as a whole, it will be given precedence over a standing statement filed in the Card Section. Libraries can therefore employ a combination of the methods outlined below, like that shown on the sample slip at the bottom of p. 73, without fear that confusion will result.

Libraries are now using numbers and formulas in four ways to indicate number of cards wanted:

(1) Affix in manuscript the number or formula to the title of each book for which cards are wanted, or to the serial number representing the card for this book.

When the number or formula indicating number of cards wanted is to be applied to a single title on a slip, it should be written on the upper right corner of the slip, e. g.[1]

Goodrich, Chas. A. 2
History of U. S.
Hartford, Huntington, 1823.

When applied to individual titles on a sheet or slip, the number should be placed in the left margin, e. g.

[1] Slips of the same size as the L. C. cards (7½ x 12½^{cm}) are used almost exclusively, by libraries ordering the L. C. cards, when a separate piece of paper is used for each title or card number included in an order. When more than one title or card number is placed on the same piece of paper, some libraries use slips of the standard size; the majority use sheets 5 x 8 in. or 8 x 10 in. To economize space the different methods of indicating number of cards wanted are illustrated by orders on slips exclusively. For convenience in reproduction all the samples of orders are given in imitation typewriting, altho the majority of the orders actually received are in handwriting.

When it is desired to indicate number of cards wanted in connection with individual card numbers, the number of cards wanted should be written after the card number, with a slanting line between, e. g.

1–1971/4	2–28952/4	3–26736/3	5–15665/2

(3) Print on slips or sheets containing orders for cards a standing statement containing a number or formula to indicate the number of cards wanted, e. g.

(4) File with the Library of Congress a standing order as to number of cards wanted. This standing order may be communicated by filling out and forwarding the printed form for "Number of cards wanted" supplied by the Card Section, or by a statement included in a letter or note. Libraries which desire a variable number of cards but are unable to decide which formula is best suited to their needs may, if they prefer, describe their needs in general terms, e. g.: "Send two copies of each card; send an additional card for each subject entry indicated; if no subject entries are indicated, send one additional card." General directions as to number of cards wanted will be accepted only with the understanding: (1) that they can be followed only in so far as they can be expressed by a fixed number, or a fixed number in combination with the letters a, s, t, used as explained in §6, (2) that in selecting cards for the first order the formula will be followed which will give the closest approximation to the number which seems to be needed, (3) that the same formula will be followed in future orders unless a specific request is received that it be changed.

USUAL NUMBER, COMPLETE SET, AUTHOR SET

In future bulletins the following terms will be used as here defined:

"Usual number" = the number of cards indicated by the formula 2s1a; this number will always be sent unless number wanted is definitely indicated.

"Complete set" = the number of cards wanted for cataloging each publication in the series or class in question; unless the number to be sent for each publication is specifically indicated in the order or specifically defined by L. C., the "usual number" will be sent.

"Author set" = one card for each publication in the series or class; in case an order by subject contain no indication of number of cards wanted, an "author set" will be sent.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS.

CARD SECTION

No. 11. BULLETIN JANUARY 1, 1906

SCOPE OF THE STOCK OF PRINTED CATALOG CARDS

WITH SOME INFORMATION AS TO ITS FULLNESS

This statement is designed to replace all statements previously issued as to the scope of the stock, including Part V of the Handbook

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT AS TO THE FORM OF THE CARDS

§1. Of the 200,000 cards in stock, about 97% are main-entry cards for complete publications. The remainder are chiefly the sets of analyticals mentioned in Bulletins 5 and 9 and the open-entry cards mentioned in §8 below. On the average, about 40 copies of each main-entry card are kept in stock. When the stock of any card is exhausted it is at once reprinted. No cards are printed for secondary entries. Libraries using the L. C. cards, including the Library of Congress itself, make secondary entries by adding headings to additional copies of the main-entry card, enough copies being ordered to cover all the entries desired. A revised statement as to the indication of secondary entries on the cards is given at the end of this bulletin. Additional information as to the form and character of the cards may be found in Bulletin 7, §5.

IMPORTANCE OF OBSERVING THE SCOPE OF THE STOCK

§2. Libraries which order cards by author and title need to have at hand and carefully observe the latest statement as to the scope and fullness of the stock of cards. Libraries ordering cards in other ways can order more intelligently if they have read this latest statement.

If the titles included in any order are within the scope of the stock, the chances are perhaps four to one, on the average, that cards can be obtained for them; if they are outside the scope of the stock, the chances are perhaps fifty to one, on the average, that cards cannot be obtained for them.

The information given in small type in §7–§11 is not absolutely essential to the satisfactory ordering of cards, especially in the case of orders for a small public library; but those who aim to obtain the maximum percentage of cards from their orders and to understand fully the work of ordering cards will eventually have use for all of the information in this bulletin.

FULLNESS OF THE STOCK AS REGARDS CARDS FOR COPYRIGHTED BOOKS

§3. As the Library of Congress has been since 1871 the legal depository for copyrighted books and has acquired many of the books copyrighted before that date, it follows that each of the recataloged classes noted below contains a full representation of cards for copyrighted[1] books. It should always be kept in mind that, in so far as a class of books for which cards are desired is made up of copyrighted books, to approximately the same extent it is always possible to obtain cards for it. In other words, cards can always be ordered advantageously for copyrighted books which are within the scope of the stock. This should be kept in mind in reading the rest of the bulletin.

University of

FULLNESS OF THE STOCK AS REGARDS CARDS FOR NON-COPYRIGHTED BOOKS IN ENGLISH

§4. The Library of Congress purchases non-copyrighted books in English quite freely. The purchases include, in addition to original records and classic and standard works, a considerable number of the more popular works. Cards can be supplied, on the average, for over 50% of the titles of non-copyrighted English books included in orders, which are within the scope of the stock. A much larger percentage of cards than this can be supplied for current non-copyrighted English books in Bibliography, American history, Agriculture, Botany, and Geology, (see §7).

FULLNESS OF THE STOCK AS REGARDS CARDS FOR NOTABLE WORKS IN FOREIGN LANGUAGES

§5. In general it may be said that the Library of Congress has always aimed to acquire the distinctly notable works on all subjects and in all languages, both in the original and translation. Cards will be found in stock for good editions of most of the books which time has demonstrated to be "the notables." But the chances of obtaining cards for current books of this class in foreign languages, except in Bibliography, American History, Agriculture, Botany, and Geology, are not good, because the purchases are relatively few and it is always largely a matter of opinion as to what current books are "the notables."

INCOMPLETENESS OF THE STOCK AS REGARDS CARDS FOR THE GENERALITY OF BOOKS IN FOREIGN LANGUAGES

§6. The purchases of the Library of Congress in the past, as well as at the present time, cover but a small percentage of the publications (perhaps 100,000 annually) issued in the countries of continental Europe. Experience in filling orders for cards seems to show that the chances which American libraries have of obtaining from the Library of Congress cards for the generality of their books in foreign languages, which are within the scope of the stock, are at the present time about one in ten, with a possibility of an increase in the future to perhaps one in five.

Libraries which order cards by means of duplicates of their order lists for books, or some other list already prepared, can perhaps afford to order cards for all of their books in foreign languages; but libraries which make out author and title lists purposely as orders for cards are likely to find it disadvantageous to order cards for such books, except in so far as they are included in the "notable" works mentioned in the preceding section; in Bibliography, American history, Agriculture, Botany, Geology (see §7); or in a series for which the Library of Congress is regularly printing cards (see end of §8).

[1] Throughout the remainder of the bulletin the word "copyrighted" will be used in place of the full phrase "copyrighted in the United States," while "non-copyrighted" will be used to cover all books not copyrighted in the United States.

CLASSES INCLUDED WITHIN THE SCOPE OF THE STOCK.

§7. The Library of Congress has been printing cards for books currently received by copyright since July, 1898, and for books currently received by gift or purchase since January, 1901. Since January, 1901, it has been printing cards also for books recataloged in the general process of reclassifying and recataloging its collection. The books represented by the printed cards thus accumulated may be classed as follows:

1. Bibliography (Recataloged)

In addition to bibliography in the narrower sense, this class includes library science, the history and technology of writing and printing, bookmaking, bookselling and book-publishing; also subject bibliography—e. g., the bibliography of history, philosophy, etc.

NOTES AS TO FULLNESS AND SUBCLASSES INCLUDED OR EXCLUDED

a. The collection on bibliography is very extensive, the intention being to make it practically complete. The percentage of cards obtained from orders is usually 100.

b. A special effort is being made to complete and catalog with printed cards society, institutional, and official publications (monographs) relating to bibliography.

c. Open-entry cards are being printed for the more important current periodicals devoted to bibliography and library science.

d. Open-entry cards have been printed for the reports and bulletins of the more important libraries only.

e. No attempt has yet been made to systematically catalog booksellers' catalogs. Only a few of the most important catalogs of this kind are represented in the stock.

2. History (Recataloged)

In addition to history in the narrower sense, this class includes description and travel and the biography of rulers and men of affairs (except those of the United States. See note e below).

NOTES AS TO FULLNESS AND SUBCLASSES INCLUDED OR EXCLUDED

a. The collection on the history of the United States is probably the most extensive in existence, both as regards copyrighted and non-copyrighted books.

b. The collection on British history is one of the most extensive in the United States.

c. The collection in foreign history (excluding British) is of moderate size only.

d. Works on social institutions (e. g., slavery), political institutions, and religious history are excluded, being shelved in other classes.

e. Biographies of rulers and men of affairs of the United States will eventually be included in American history. Cards are now in stock for such of them only as are in classes 6 and 7.

f. Biographies (other than those of rulers and men of affairs) are excluded, except in so far as covered by classes 6 and 7; all works on genealogy are excluded.

g. A special effort is being made to complete and catalog with printed cards series of monographs in American history published by societies and institutions.

h. Cards have been printed for the more important periodicals devoted to American history.

i. Cards have not been printed for Washingtoniana (i. e., books on Washington, D. C.), except as included in classes 6 and 7.

3. Certain Subdivisions of Science (Recataloged), viz: Anatomy and physiology, Astronomy, Botany, Chemistry, Mathematics, Physics.

The general scope of these classes is the same as that usually given to them. Meteorology is included in Astronomy, weights and measures in Physics.

NOTES AS TO FULLNESS AND SUBCLASSES INCLUDED OR EXCLUDED

a. The aim of the Library of Congress at present is to supplement the collections in Science in the libraries of the Departments located in Washington, rather than to duplicate them. Excluding books copyrighted in the United States and publications of learned societies and institutions, the collection in this class is neither large nor comprehensive. Libraries will probably find it advisable to restrict their orders for cards for non-copyrighted books in these groups to works in English, and works in foreign languages which are well recognized as classic or standard, with the addition of works in the subclasses noted in b and c below.

b. The stock is relatively full as regards cards for current works in Geology, owing to the fact that cards printed for the accessions to the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey are now being added currently. Cards have also been added for all of the monographic publications of the Survey itself and for those of three-fourths of the state geological surveys.

c. It has been strengthened as regards cards for Botany by the addition, since 1903, of cards printed for accessions to the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

d. Biographies of scientists have not been cataloged with printed cards, except in so far as covered by classes 6 and 7.

e. Comparative anatomy is excluded, being classed in Zoology.

4. Certain Subdivisions of Technology (Recataloged), viz: General Technology, General and Civil Engineering.

General and Civil Engineering includes general engineering operations, the materials of engineering, applied mechanics, surveying, excavations, foundations, etc.

NOTE AS TO FULLNESS

The collection in these groups is fairly full for the more important non-copyrighted books in English, less full for works in foreign languages. As a rule, works in foreign languages cannot be included advantageously in author and title orders.

5. Geography (Recataloged).

This class includes general works on geography, general voyages and travels, polar explorations, physical geography, political geography.

NOTES AS TO FULLNESS AND SUBCLASSES INCLUDED OR EXCLUDED

a. The collection on general voyages and travels is large.

b. No cards are printed for maps.

c. The collection of atlases has not been cataloged with printed cards, but cards are now being printed for some of the more important of those currently received.

6. Books Copyrighted since July, 1898 (not included in classes 1–5).

As the printing of catalog cards for copyrighted books was not begun until July, 1898, about one-half of the books copyrighted in that year are not represented in the stock of cards. Libraries must decide for themselves whether it is worth while to include books copyrighted in 1898 in their orders, in order to secure cards for about one-half of them on the average. If cards are not in stock for a book copyrighted in 1898 (and not included in classes 1–5), it is assumed that the book was copyrighted in the earlier part of the year and no further investigation of the case is made.

NOTES AS TO FULLNESS AND SUBCLASSES INCLUDED OR EXCLUDED

a. Cards are found to be in stock or in process of making for about 95 per cent of the copyrighted books published since July, 1898, which are properly (see §8) included in orders; cards come to hand later for over 4 of the remaining 5 per cent; a fraction of one per cent are not obtained at all, for reasons stated in notes b and c below.

b. In the case of a small percentage of the books currently published in the United States which bear a copyright claim, the copies necessary to complete the claim have not been deposited at the Library of Congress. Such cases of failure to deposit copies are usually due to inadvertence, and when a notice as to non-deposit of copies is sent to the claimant the copies are usually deposited; but occasionally, owing to change of address, exhaustion of the edition, etc., it proves impracticable to obtain copies at all.

c. Publications are sometimes copyrighted in parts or as magazine articles and afterwards issued in book form with copyright claim attached. Copies of such books are sometimes presented to the Library; but a considerable percentage of them are not obtained.

d. Books are frequently reprinted by American publishers, with change of date of publication, which are not recopyrighted. The date given on the title-page cannot be relied upon to show whether the book is within the scope of the stock. When convenient, the copyright date (usually given on the back of the title leaf) should also be noted. If the copyright date or one of them is not as recent as 1898, the title should not be included in an order.

7. Books received by Purchase or Gift since January, 1901 (not included in classes 1–5).

So far as the author and title orders are concerned the scope of this class must be limited to books having publication date 1901 or later, because the percentage of cards obtainable for books received in 1901 but published in previous years is too small to make it advantageous to include them.

NOTES AS TO FULLNESS AND SUBCLASSES INCLUDED OR EXCLUDED

a. The statements in §4–§6 are in the main applicable to this class also.

b. Books in all languages on Bibliography or American history are purchased freely.

c. The stock is now being strengthened as regards cards for current non-copyrighted popular and juvenile works by the addition of cards printed for the Washington Public Library.

d. The stock is being notably strengthened as regards cards for current books on Agriculture, Botany, and Geology by the addition of cards printed since 1903 for the accessions to the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and cards printed since 1904 for the accessions to the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey.

e. The number of works of fiction in foreign languages purchased is very small; such books should not be included in author and title orders.

8. Books listed in the A. L. A. Catalog (not included in classes 1–7).

About one-third of the titles included in the A. L. A. Catalog (1904) represent additions to the stock. These consist largely of books not included in classes 6 and 7 which were copyrighted before July, 1898, or purchased before January, 1901. Libraries which make use of the A. L. A. Catalog in ordering cards may obtain cards for such of their books as are covered by these additional titles.

GENERAL EXCEPTIONS FROM THE SCOPE OF THE STOCK

§8. Certain classes of publications are usually not cataloged on account of some peculiarity in form or content; it is therefore not advisable to include them in orders except in so far as they are specifically included in the stock by the terms of this section or previous sections in this bulletin.

1. Sequents (periodicals, annuals, annual reports)

These are not cataloged with printed cards as a rule, but printed cards are issued for certain classes of them. Large libraries which wish to catalog as many of their sequents as possible with L. C. printed cards will probably find it advantageous to obtain the traveling catalog of sequents. Libraries which order cards for sequents by author and title should confine their orders strictly to the classes of sequents noted in the next paragraph and in §7, 1 c and 2 h.

Open-entry cards are now printed for first volumes of sequents received by copyright, also for first volumes of the more important non-copyrighted sequents printed in English.

During the years 1898–1901 cards were printed, chiefly for use in the records of the Copyright Office, for numerous odd volumes of sequents. These cards were included in some of the traveling catalogs. Orders for them will be filled until the original stock is exhausted. They are seldom reprinted, except in the form of a completed entry card, in case the serial has come to an end, or of an open-entry card for the first volume.

2. Works appearing in parts.

An open-entry card is now made for the first issue of a work appearing in parts (or volume by volume) received by copyright, unless the part completing the work is expected to come to hand within a few months; also for the first part of an important non-copyrighted work in English when the part completing the work will probably not be issued for a year or more.

3. Musical compositions.

Hereafter, no cards will be printed for works of music until the recataloging of the collection as a whole is taken up. Songs without music are classed in poetry and regularly cataloged with other accessions in that class. Works on the history and theory of music and the biography of musicians are also regularly cataloged with printed cards.

4. Trade catalogs and other publications issued for advertisiug purposes.

Printed cards are issued for the most important of these only—those which contain information not easily accessible in other forms.

5. Less important pamphlets.

Printed cards are not issued for pamphlets of minor importance.

6. Picture books and other minor juvenile works.

Cards are printed for such of these only as are recognized to be of exceptional merit.

7. University theses.

a. The collection of university theses at the Library of Congress is quite incomplete, and the bulk of those even which are within the scope of the stock are as yet uncataloged. Libraries will hardly find it advantageous to order cards for them by author and title, although cards have been printed for a considerable number in the classes indicated below. A traveling catalog of cards for theses may be prepared if there is any considerable demand for it.

b. Cards are being printed currently for such theses of American universities as are received by exchange.

c. Cards have been printed for most of the theses in astronomy, mathematics, and physics, also for some of the more important theses in history and political science.

8. Earlier copyrighted books.

The percentage of copyrighted books for which cards cannot be supplied increases in general with the age of the books, for the following reasons: (a) Many of the books deposited for copyright before the Library of Congress was made the legal depository in 1871 were not transferred to the Library of Congress (b) The older the book the greater the chance of its being lost or worn out. (c) If the deposit of copies was not made at the time of publication, the chances of locating the copyright proprietor and obtaining copies of the book decrease with the lapse of time.

9. Publications in series.

Statements as to exceptions in the cataloging of publications in series and lists of those for which cards can be supplied will be published in later bulletins.

SERIES OF CARDS IN STOCK

§9. Libraries which order cards from depository sets and from traveling catalogs will have special need for this explanation of the variety of numbering which appears on the L. C. cards.

When the printing of cards for books received by copyright was first begun the cards were numbered consecutively. This series is therefore called the "Consecutive copyright series." It was soon decided to date and number the cards to correspond to order of entry in the weekly Catalog of copyright entries. All of the cards for copyrighted books printed between August, 1898, and June, 1901, are in this "Weekly copyright series." In December, 1900, and the early part of 1901, various short series were started on account of exigencies in cataloging or by way of experiment. After June, 1901, all of these different series were abandoned, and all of the cards for which the Catalog Division of the Library of Congress is responsible were numbered consecutively in a single series throughout the year, the series for each year being distinguished by prefixing the final figure in the year. The series now being printed for which other offices are responsible have an abbreviation for the name of the office added to the card number. The series now represented in the stock are listed below, with a sample number from each.

Agricultural Dep't series, Agr 3–958
Bibliography (or "Z") series, 1–Z–120
Consecutive copyright series, 142
December series, 12–1900–272
Dutch series, 1–D–124
French series, 1–F–240
Geological survey series, G S 4–101
German series, 1–G–780
Italian series, 1–I–75
Map series, 1–25 Map
Music series, 1–332 Music
Nineteen-hundred-one series, 1–21980
Nineteen-hundred-two series, 2–221
Nineteen-hundred-three series, 3–1670
Nineteen-hundred-four series, 4–2387
Nineteen-hundred-five series, 5–6720
Nineteen-hundred-six series, 6–420
Recataloged series, 1–Rc–21870
Weekly copyright series, Jan. 5, 99–3
Washington Pub. Library series, W 5–10

In making up orders by number, the card number at the lower right corner of the cards should be copied exactly as it stands, with the exception of the three items following:

1. The characters M1, M2, M3, M4, which occasionally appear on cards in the 1901 and and the 1902 series (e. g., 1–12580 M2), should be omitted. They were used merely to indicate the number of copies printed.

2. The date which appears after the serial number on some of the cards in the 1901 series (e. g., 1–25750 Nov. 14) should be omitted, as it is not an essential portion of the serial number. The date here must not be confused with the date in the "Weekly copyright series" (e.g., Sept. 20, 1900–19), which is an essential portion of the serial number.

3. The figures following the slanting line which appear on the cards printed or reprinted in 1904 for books listed in the A. L. A. Catalog are not a part of the serial number, but have been added to indicate the number of cards recommended for the cataloging of the book to the title of which they are affixed. If libraries desire a different number of cards from that recommended, they should substitute, after the slanting line, the number desired for the number recommended. Libraries which indicate number of cards wanted by a standing statement should omit altogether the slanting line and the number following it.

THE STOCK BY SUBJECT

§10. Owing to the fact that the classed catalog of the Card Section, which is the key to the resources of the stock by subject, is in process of revision, it is impracticable to print at this time a schedule of classes as an aid to the ordering of cards by subject. The schedule of classes by subject given in the Handbook is now obsolete. Typewritten or printed schedules as a means of defining the limits of an order by subject will be supplied, however, whenever they are seriously needed.

EXTENT TO WHICH SECONDARY ENTRIES ARE INDICATED ON THE CARDS

§11. Libraries which adopt the dictionary method of cataloging and desire to follow the subject and added entries suggested on the L. C. cards will have special use for the following notes as to the practice of the Library of Congress in indicating such entries:

1. Subject entries.

Previous to September, 1901, no subject entries were suggested. From September, 1901, to August, 1902, subject headings were suggested on cards for copyrighted books and for books in reclassified sections of the Library of Congress. In August, 1902, it was decided that secondary entries could not be satisfactorily indicated on cards for books which were shelved in sections of the library not yet reclassified. This decision has been closely adhered to with the exception of cards issued for books in the new edition of the A. L. A. Catalog. Subject headings are indicated on all the cards for books listed in this catalog.

Of the 200,000 cards in stock, it is estimated that about 85,000 have subject headings indicated on them, and that about 40,000 are for fiction and other form classes which require no subject entries. Of the remaining 75,000 cards, which have no secondary entry indicated on them, about 10,000 are for books in American history cataloged before September, 1901. These constitute about two-thirds of the cards on the local history of the United States, including all the states and territories. On the other hand, less than one-quarter of the cards for the general history of the United States and the general and local history of Central and South America lack subject entries. About-one-third of the cards for the general and local history of Canada have no subject headings on them. Excepting American history, it is probable that not over ten per cent of the cards for books in the recataloged sections lack subject entries. The number of cards which lack subject headings is being continually reduced by the addition of subject headings to cards which are being reprinted.

2. Added entries (excluding title entry)

Since March, 1904, added entries have been indicated on all cards. To distinguish them from subject entries, they are given in a second series and numbered with roman numerals.

3. Title entry.

The practice of the Library of Congress is to make a title entry for each book having a striking or memorable title. On the cards for books listed in the A. L. A. Catalog an added entry for such striking titles is specifically indicated by the word "Title," but title entry is not included in the added entries now currently indicated on the regular L. C. cards.

TRAVELING CATALOGS

§1. The primary purpose of these catalogs is to facilitate the recataloging of libraries with L. C. cards by enabling them to order copies of any card in the catalog by its number and to ascertain from inspection of the card itself how many copies will be needed and whether a card for a different edition of the book can be used. The catalogs may also be used for bibliographical purposes.

LIST OF TRAVELING CATALOGS

§2. The following traveling catalogs are now ready for use:

1. General Catalog.

About 300,000 cards, representing all the printed cards now in stock. For a full statement of the scope of this catalog, see the latest statement of the scope of the stock in the latest edition of the Handbook.

2. American History.

About 40,000 cards. Covers both the general and the local history of the United States and British, Central, and South America, and the islands adjacent to these countries. Includes description and travel, also cards for American biography copyrighted since July, 1898, or received by purchase since January, 1901. Does not include social and political institutions or religious history.

3. Foreign History (excluding English History)

About 30,000 cards. Includes both general and local history, description and travel, and biographies of rulers and men of affairs. Does not include social and political institutions or religious history.

4. English History.

About 10,000 cards. Covers the general and local history of the British Isles and the general history of the British Empire. Includes description and travel and biographies of rulers and men of affairs. Does not include social and political institutions or religious history.

[1]First edition printed Dec. 15, 1905.

5. Bibliography (including Library Science)

About 13,000 cards. In addition to bibliography in the narrower sense of the term, it includes works on the history and technology of writing and printing, bookmaking, bookselling and book publishing; also subject bibliography—e. g., the bibliography of history, science, etc.

6. Government Documents.

About 8,000 cards. Includes cards for the more important monographic publications issued by the federal government and the state governments since January, 1901, and some for recataloged documents of earlier date. It does not include documents issued by foreign governments or by the governments of the cities, counties and towns in the United States.

7. Law.

About 8,000 cards. Includes international and constitutional law. As the collection on law has not been recataloged, this catalog consists very largely of law books copyrighted in the United States since July, 1898, or purchased since January, 1901. Current series of law reports are as a rule represented in the catalogs only by cards for odd volumes, issued during the years 1898–1902 for the use of the Copyright Office. Such cards are not reprinted when the stock is exhausted except in the form of open-entry cards, or as cards for a complete entry in case the series has come to an end.

8. Cards for Sequents (Periodicals, Annuals, etc.)

About 7,000 cards. They consist of (1) cards for sequents which have ceased to be published; (2) open-entry cards for sequents which are still current; (3) cards for odd volumes of sequents, printed between 1898 and 1902 for the use of the Copyright Office. Until within the past four years cards for current sequents were confined almost exclusively to cards for volumes received by copyright. Open-entry cards are now being printed freely for sequents which happen to come up for cataloging or recataloging.

9. Name Reference Cards.

About 9,000 cards. Currently printed since January, 1905, for authors who are known by more than one name, whenever such cards are needed for the catalogs of the Library of Congress, reference being made from other forms of the name to the form preferred for the catalog entry. It is probable that such cards will be printed eventually for all writers represented in the stock of printed cards whose names require explanation.

10. Cards for Books Included in the A. L. A. Catalog.

About 6,200 cards. If a library intends to order a large number of cards for books listed in the A. L. A. Catalog and desires to see the cards themselves in order to ascertain more exactly the number of cards wanted and the variations in edition which it will permit, it may be able to use this catalog to advantage.

11. Civil War.

About 2,800 cards. Includes works dealing specifically with the causes of the war, but does not include the history of slavery, books on this subject being classed in the Social Sciences, and consequently not yet recataloged.

ADDITIONAL TRAVELING CATALOGS

§3. A traveling catalog will be made up for any recataloged section of the Library whenever there is sufficient demand for it to justify the expense. A select traveling catalog for use in recataloging small public libraries is contemplated.

APPLICATION FOR TRAVELING CATALOGS

§4. In applications for traveling catalogs libraries should state (1) how soon the catalog is desired, if available, and, if not immediately available, how long the library can wait for it; (2) how long it will probably be needed; (3) how many books there are in the collection which it is proposed to catalog by means of the traveling catalog; (4) whether it is desired to have the catalog sent by freight or express.

METHOD OF TRANSPORTATION

§5. Traveling catalogs must be sent from and returned to the Library of Congress by freight or express. They can not be franked. Unless a special request is received as to method of transportation, Nos. 1, 2, and 3 will be sent by freight. Nos. 4–10 will be sent by freight unless the library requesting the catalog desires to have it sent by express, or other requests for it are on file, rendering it desirable to save time by transporting it by express. Charges for transporting a catalog to a library must be paid by the library. Charges for transporting it back to the Library of Congress must be prepaid. If a catalog is forwarded from one library to another without being returned to the Library of Congress, transportation charges from the first library to the second must be paid by the second library, and so on. The charges for returning the catalog to the Library of Congress will in this case be paid by the Library of Congress.

PERIOD DURING WHICH CATALOGS MAY BE RETAINED

§6. Unless an arrangement is made for an extension of time, libraries will be expected to use the catalogs within the periods here named: No. 1, 12 weeks; Nos. 2 and 3, 6 weeks; Nos. 4 and 5, 3 weeks; Nos. 6–11, 2 weeks.

MAKING UP ORDERS BY NUMBER FROM TRAVELING CATALOGS

§7. A full statement as to methods of ordering cards by number will be found in the latest edition of the Handbook.

LIMITATIONS TO THE USE OF SUCH CATALOGS

§8. As explained in §5, the charges for transporting these catalogs must be paid by the libraries which use them. The catalogs now consist exclusively of main entry cards; consequently effective searching in them can only be done by those who are familiar with methods of entry in cataloging. For the two reasons named, libraries are advised before applying for a traveling catalog to consider carefully whether the ordinary method of ordering cards for recataloging purposes—viz., by author and title on slips—will not be more satisfactory on the whole. Experience seems to show that a library should not ordinarily apply for a traveling catalog unless it intends to order cards for at least one-tenth as many titles as are represented in the catalog. Owing to the expense of bringing the "General catalog" to date, it will be loaned ordinarily only to large libraries which intend to recatalog their entire collection.

It is probable that such cards will be printed eventually for all writers represented in the stock of printed cards whose names require explanation.

9. Publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture (Dictionary Catalog).

About 11,000 cards. Contains in alphabetical arrangement main entry and secondary entry cards (with headings already supplied) for most of the publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The great majority of the papers included in the various series are covered by individual cards, that is, the publications are fully analyzed.

10. Agriculture.

About 14,000 cards. Includes the following: (a) Cards for copyrighted books received by the Library of Congress since 1898; (b) cards for accessions by purchase, gift, or exchange which have come to the Library of Congress since 1901 and to the Library of the Department of Agriculture since 1902; (c) cards for recataloged books in economic entomology (bulk of collection at both libraries being now covered); (d) cards for other books recataloged at the Library of Congress, consisting chiefly of earlier editions of books recataloged along with later editions currently received; (e) cards for books recataloged in a number of subclasses at the Library of the Department of Agriculture; (f) analytical cards issued for three important agricultural periodicals, viz: Annales de la science agronomique, Landwirtschaftliche jahrbücher, Die landwirtschaftlichen versuchs-stationen.

11. Civil War.

About 4,500 cards. Includes works dealing specifically with the causes of the war, but does not include the history of slavery, books on this subject being classed in the Social Sciences, and consequently not yet recataloged.

9. Law.

About 32,000 cards. Includes all treatises relating to English and American law, excepting those of earlier date now seldom consulted. Includes only the compilations of state laws and the compilations relating to state laws which have been published since July, 1898. Includes very few cards for court reports. Includes only such books on foreign law as have been received since 1901.

10. International Law.

About 10,000 cards. Covers all books classed in International Law and several thousand books in Foreign Relations and other classes which have special bearing on International Law.

11. Agriculture.

About 34,000 cards. Includes cards for all books in the Library of Congress on Agriculture and cards printed by the library of the Department of Agriculture covering the following: 1. Books currently received since 1902. 2. All books on economic entomology. 3. Analytical cards for nearly all the publications of the Department of Agriculture. 4. Analytical cards for the three periodicals: Annales de la science agronomique, Landwirtschaftliche jahrbücher, Die landwirthschaftlichen versuchs-stationen.

12. Publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture (Dictionary Catalog).

About 9,000 cards. In addition to bibliography in the narrower sense of the term, it includes works on the history and technology of writing and printing, bookmaking, bookselling and book publishing; also subject bibliography—e. g., the bibliography of history, science, etc.

6. Government Documents.

About 3,500 cards. Includes cards for the more important monographic publications issued by the federal government and the state governments since January, 1901, and some for recataloged documents of earlier date. It does not include documents issued by cities, counties, and towns.

7. Law.

About 3,000 cards. Includes international and constitutional law. As the collection on law has not been recataloged, this catalog consists very largely of law books copyrighted in the United States since July, 1898, or purchased since January, 1901. Current series of law reports are as a rule represented in the catalogs only by cards for odd volumes, issued during the years 1898–1902 for the use of the Copyright Office. Such cards are not reprinted when the stock is exhausted except in the form of open-entry cards, or as cards for a complete entry in case the series has come to an end.

8. Civil War.

About 2,000 cards. Includes works dealing specifically with the causes of the war, but does not include the history of slavery, books on this subject being classed in the Social Sciences, and consequently not yet recataloged.

9. Cards for Books included in the A. L. A. Catalog.

About 6,200 cards. If a library intends to order a large number of cards for books listed in the A. L. A. Catalog and desires to see the cards themselves in order to ascertain more exactly the number of cards wanted and the variations in edition which it will permit, it can use this catalog to advantage.

10. Cards for Sequents (Periodicals, Annuals, etc.)

About 2,500 cards. They consist of (1) cards for sequents which have ceased to be published; (2) open-entry cards for sequents which are still current; (3) cards for odd volumes of sequents, printed between 1898 and 1902 for the use of the Copyright Office. Until within the past two years cards for current sequents were confined almost exclusively to cards for volumes received by copyright. Open-entry cards are now being printed freely for sequents which happen to come up for cataloging or recataloging.

11. Name Reference Cards.

About 3,200 cards. Currently printed since January, 1905, for authors who are known by more than one name, whenever such cards are needed for the catalogs of the Library of Congress, reference being made from other forms of the name to the form preferred for the catalog entry. It is probable that such cards will be printed eventually for all writers represented in the stock of printed cards whose names require explanation.

ADDITIONAL TRAVELING CATALOGS

§3. A traveling catalog will be made up for any recataloged section of the Library whenever there is sufficient demand for it to justify the expense. A select traveling catalog for use in recataloging small public libraries is contemplated.

APPLICATION FOR TRAVELING CATALOGS

§4. In applications for traveling catalogs libraries should state (1) how soon the catalog is desired, if available, and, if not immediately available, how long the library can wait for it; (2) how long it will probably be needed; (3) how many books there are in the collection which it is proposed to catalog by means of the traveling catalog; (4) whether it is desired to have the catalog sent by freight or express.

METHOD OF TRANSPORTATION

§5. Traveling catalogs must be sent from and returned to the Library of Congress by freight or express. They can not be franked. Unless a special request is received as to method of transportation, Nos. 1, 2, and 3 will be sent by freight, Nos. 4–11 by express. Charges for transporting a catalog to a library must be paid by the library after the catalog is received. Charges for transporting it back to the Library of Congress must be prepaid. Express and freight charges on traveling catalogs will not be charged against a library's deposit for cards except for some very unusual reason. If a catalog is forwarded from one library to another without being returned to the Library of Congress, transportation charges from the first library to the second must be paid by the second library, and so on. The charges for returning the catalog to the Library of Congress must be prepaid by the last library using the catalog.

PERIOD DURING WHICH CATALOGS MAY BE RETAINED

§6. Unless an arrangement is made for an extension of time, libraries will be expected to use the catalogs within the periods here named: No. 1, 10 weeks; Nos. 2 and 3, 5 weeks; Nos. 4 and 5, 3 weeks; Nos. 6–11, 2 weeks.

MAKING UP ORDERS BY SERIAL NUMBER FROM TRAVELING CATALOGS

§7. Orders for cards made up from traveling catalogs may be placed on slips with a single number on a slip, on slips filled with numbers, or on sheets filled with numbers, as preferred. They are to be made out in the same way as orders from the L. C. proof-sheets or the A. L. A. booklist; but, inasmuch as the majority of the catalogs contain cards from a dozen or more of the series in stock in the Card Section, libraries should note carefully the following explanation of the different series of card numbers and the proper method of ordering cards by means of them.

In making up orders by serial numbers, the serial number (in some cases a combination of dates and numbers) found on the lower right corner of the cards should be copied exactly as it stands, with the exception of the three items following:

1) The characters M 1, M 2, M 3, M4, which occasionally appear on cards in the "1901" and the "1902" series (e. g., 1-12580 M 2), should be omitted. They were used merely to indicate the number of copies printed, but otherwise have no significance.

2) The date which appears after the serial number on some of the cards in the 1901 series and the 1902 series (e. g., 2–6250 Sept. 20) should be omitted, as it is not an essential portion of the serial number. The date here must not be confounded with the date in the "Weekly Copyright series" (e. g., Sept. 20, 1900–19), which is an essential portion of the serial number.

3) The figures following the slanting line which appear on the cards printed or reprinted in 1904 for books listed in the A. L. A. Catalog are not a part of the serial number, but have been added to indicate the number of cards recommended for the cataloging of the book to the title of which they are affixed. If libraries which are accustomed to indicate the number of cards wanted after the serial number desire a different number of cards from that recommended, they should substitute, after the slanting line, the number desired for the number recommended. Libraries which indicate number of cards wanted by a standing statement filed in the Card Section or a standing statement affixed to their order sheets or slips should omit altogether the slanting line and the number following it.

To avoid extra charges for rearrangement, libraries should arrange serial numbers submitted as orders for cards, first by series and second by number, in increasing order of the numbers. In arranging the serial numbers containing a date the later date should follow the earlier, with further arrangement in the increasing order of the numbers following the date. For convenience, the numbers should be arranged in columns.

The following columns are intended to illustrate an order which includes serial numbers from all the different series arranged in the order in which they are arranged in the Card Section:

LIMITATIONS TO THE USE OF SUCH CATALOGS

§8. As explained in §5, the charges for transporting these catalogs must be paid by the libraries which use them. The catalogs now consist exclusively of main entry cards; consequently effective searching in them can only be done by those who are familiar with methods of entry in cataloging. For the two reasons named, libraries are advised before applying for a traveling catalog to consider carefully whether the ordinary method of ordering cards for recataloging purposes—viz., by author and title on slips—will not be more satisfactory on the whole. Experience seems to show that a library should not ordinarily apply for a traveling catalog unless it intends to order cards for at least one-tenth as many titles as are represented in the catalog. Owing to the expense of bringing the "General catalog" to date, it will not be loaned ordinarily to any except large libraries which intend to recatalog their entire collection.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

CARD DIVISION

No. 9 (4th edition[1]) BULLETIN January 15, 1918

SPECIAL SETS—Nos. 3-5

The Library of the United States Department of Agriculture has prepared catalog cards for articles in three standard periodicals devoted to agricultural topics. These cards are distributed by the Library of Congress. Subject entries for a dictionary catalog are indicated on all of the cards.

These cards are sold in "author sets" and "dictionary-catalog sets" at the rate of $.015 for the first copy of any card and 1c. for each additional copy of the same card furnished at the same time. An "author set" includes one copy only of each separate card printed. A "dictionary-catalog set" includes, in addition to the author set, enough additional copies of each card in the author set to cover the secondary entries indicated on that card.

The periodicals which have been analyzed and the price of the sets are given below. The figures as to number of cards and the price of the same cover the issues of the periodicals to the end of 1917.

Annales de la science agronomique, 1884–1915. v. 1–32. Author set, $7.40; dictionary set, $14.77.

Landwirtschaftliche jahrbücher, 1872–1914. v. 1–47. Author set, $17.30; dictionary set, $35.40.

Die landwirtschaftlichen versuchs-stationen, 1859–1916. v. 1–88. Author set, $29.88; dictionary set, $58.43.

Cards are being printed in continuation of these sets. Those desiring to receive cards in continuation of the sets should state this fact in their order. The price is 2c. for the first card, 1c. for each additional card.

Cards for any article in these periodicals can be purchased at the usual rates, viz: for the first copy of each, 2c. when ordered by number, $.033 when ordered by title; for additional copies, 1c.

The cards for each of these periodicals are also made up in classes and sold at the rate of 2c. for the first copy of each card and 1c. for each additional copy furnished at the same time. The classes into which the cards are divided are similar to those employed in the "Card Index of Experiment Station Literature," prepared by the Office of Experiment Stations (States Relations Service) of the United States Department of Agriculture, and are as follows:

1. Agricultural economics and sociology.
   History of agriculture, agricultural statistics, agricultural education, agricultural experiment stations, agricultural organizations, agricultural legislation, farm management.
2. General sciences.
   (a) Physics, (b) chemistry, (c) botany, (d) bacteriology, (e) zoology, (f) physiology, and other sciences. Includes only such material as can not properly be classified in the special groups which follow. For instance, everything relating to the chemistry of soils, including methods of analysis, is classed under Soils, and the bacteriology of milk under Dairy farming and dairying.
3. Air, meteorology, and climatology.
   Composition of the air and its industrial utilization; meteorological data, such as observations on temperature and rainfall; climatological studies.
4. Water.
   Physics, chemistry, and bacteriology of water, including methods of examination. Does not include engineering features.
5. Soils.
   Physics, chemistry and bacteriology of soils; methods of examination and investigation; origin and classification; improvement and reclamation.
6. Fertilizers.
   Farm manures and commercial fertilizers—their production, composition, preservation, uses; inspection and methods of examination; fertilizer experiments not dealing primarily with fertilizers for particular crops.
7. Field crops.
   Cereals, forage plants, root crops, potatoes, tobacco, textile plants, tea, coffee, etc.—their characteristics, improvement, composition, culture, manuring, irrigation, harvesting, preservation, marketing; farm rotations; seeds and weeds as related to field crops. Does not include insects and diseases affecting these crops.
8. Horticulture.
   Fruits, nuts, garden vegetables—their characteristics, propagation, improvement, composition, culture, manuring, irrigation, harvesting, preservation, marketing; nurseries; ornamental plants; landscape gardening; seeds and weeds as related to horticultural crops. Does not include insects and diseases affecting these crops.
9. Forestry.
   Description of trees, forest management, reforestation, forest products; forest fires. Does not include insects and diseases affecting forests.
10. Plant diseases.
    Description and treatment of all diseases of plants not due to insects.
11. Entomology.
    Apiculture; sericulture; insects affecting animals and plants and their description and treatment.

12. Foods and nutrition of man.

Foods, food accessories, condiments, beverages—their composition and methods of examination, nutritive value, preparation, preservation, adulteration, and inspection; dietetics; digestion and metabolism experiments.

13. Feeding stuffs.

Composition, digestibility, and nutritive value; sources, preparation, and valuation; inspection and methods of examination.

14. Animal industry.

Cattle, sheep, goats, pigs, horses, mules, poultry, fishes, oysters, etc.; breeds and types; breeding and feeding; management; digestion and metabolism experiments; animal hygiene; slaughtering and marketing. Does not include dairy cows, bees, and silkworms.

15. Dairy farming and dairying.

Breeds, feeding, and management of dairy cows; milk secretion; milking; composition, properties, and testing of milk and its products; dairy bacteriology; care and handling of milk; dairy inspection; butter making; cheese making; condensed milk; other products.

16. Veterinary medicine.

Etiology, symptoms, and treatment of diseases of animals; animal parasites; plants poisonous to stock.

17. Agricultural technology.

Sugar making, brewing, distilling, wine making, cider making, and other industries.

18. Agricultural engineering.

Laying out farms; construction of buildings; water and irrigation systems, drainage and sewage systems, roads, bridges, fences; construction and use of farm machinery; application of power to agricultural purposes.

PAYMENT

§2. Those already subscribing to cards should pay for the sets and classes of cards described in this bulletin as they pay for others. Individuals and firms are required to pay for cards in advance and should always write for statement as to price and method of payment before sending money.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS.

CARD SECTION

No. 13. BULLETIN April 15, 1906

CARDS FOR GOVERNMENT DOCUMENTS,

Including U. S. Government Documents, Documents Published by the States and Cities of the United States, and British Parliamentary Documents

CARDS FOR IMPORTANT U. S. DOCUMENTS

§1. The Library of Congress has been printing cards since 1901 for a considerable number of the more important monographic documents currently issued by Congress and the departments and bureaus of the U. S. Government.

Since 1904 it has printed cards for the monographic publications of the U. S. Geological Survey, from copy supplied by the Library of the Survey. (See Bulletin 15)

Since January, 1906, it has printed cards for the current issues in the principal series of publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, from copy furnished by the Library of the Department of Agriculture. (See Bulletin 14)

Hereafter practically all U. S. documents currently issued, which are of any considerable importance and of such a character as to require separate cataloging, will be represented by cards in stock at the Library of Congress.

On January 1, 1906, about 3,500 cards for U. S. documents were in stock. The majority of these are for important monographic publications issued since January, 1901; the remainder are for older documents which have been reached in the work of recataloging the Library.

The Library of Congress makes no entries in its catalogs for documents of minor importance. For information as to these it relies chiefly on the series of indexes currently published by the Superintendent of Documents.

SETS OF CARDS FOR U. S. DOCUMENTS

§2. Libraries which adopt the same plan as the Library of Congress for dealing with U. S. documents may find it advantageous to file with the Library of Congress a standing order for a "complete[1] set" of cards for U. S. documents. Libraries which are depositories for U. S. documents will probably find this method of ordering especially advantageous.

Libraries which do not obtain a full set of U. S. documents, and libraries which prefer to indicate number of cards wanted after examination of a copy of the card, will perhaps find it advantageous to place a standing order for an "author[2] set" of cards for the current[3] issues of U. S. documents, to be used as a means of selecting and ordering additional copies by number.

In ordering complete sets or author sets of cards for U. S. documents at the price named in the following section, libraries may interpret the term "set" as covering either of the following, as preferred:

1) All cards in stock on January 1, 1906.

2) All cards in stock at the date of ordering.

3) All cards in stock at the date of ordering and all cards to be issued thereafter.

4) All cards issued after January 1, 1906.

5) All cards issued from date of ordering.

Cards for hearings before committees of Congress which are not included in the regular numbered series of Congressional documents will be excluded from sets, if desired.

PRICE OF CARDS FOR U. S. DOCUMENTS

§3. Variation in the price of L. C. cards affects only the "first card." The charge for additional copies of any card, supplied at the same time with the first, is always $\frac{1}{2}$c.

If an order is given for a complete set or an author set of cards for U. S. documents, the price for the first card for each document will be 1c.

If cards are ordered for a series of U. S. documents (e. g., U. S. Bureau of Labor. Special reports), the price for the first card for each document will be 2c.

1. By "complete set" is meant the number of cards wanted for each and every document in the series or collection. When a complete set is ordered, the number of cards wanted for each publication should be indicated by one of the methods explained in Bulletin 12. In case of failure to indicate the number wanted, the "usual number" (indicated by the formula 2s1a, explained in Bulletin 12, §6) will be sent, viz: "Two cards; one additional card for each subject entry indicated; if no subject entries are indicated, one additional card; one additional card for each added entry indicated." Subject entries are indicated on about three-fourths of the cards now currently issued for U. S. documents. Added entries, excluding title entry, are indicated on all cards printed since 1904 (see Bulletin 11, § 11)

2. By "author set" is meant one copy of the main entry card for each publication in the series or collection.

3. Libraries which desire to examine an author set of the cards now in stock for U. S. documents and State documents should apply for the traveling catalog of U. S. documents (see Bulletin 10)

If cards are ordered for individual documents, the usual price will be charged for the first card, viz: 2½c. if ordered by author and title; 2c. if ordered by card number.

CARDS FOR SERIES OF U. S. DOCUMENTS

§4. In Bulletin 14, §5, and Bulletin 15, §4, will be found lists of series of publications of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture and the U. S. Geological Survey for which cards are being supplied on special terms. The series published by all the departments and bureaus of the U. S. government for which cards are now being printed are listed alphabetically under U. S. in Bulletin 17.

L. C. CARD NUMBERS IN CATALOG OF U. S. PUBLIC DOCUMENTS

§5. Since January, 1906, the L. C. card numbers have been given in the monthly Catalog of U. S. Public Documents issued by the Superintendent of Documents. Libraries which wish to order cards for individual documents can probably order them most advantageously by numbers taken from this catalog. The number of cards needed for the main entry and the subject and added entries suggested on the card is indicated after the card number, with a slanting line between the two. If subject entries are not suggested on the card, the number of cards required is not indicated. In such cases libraries should indicate number of cards by one of the methods explained in Bulletin 12.

HEADINGS ON CARDS FOR PUBLICATIONS OF THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

§6. As stated in Bulletin 14, §3, full sets of cards for the current publications of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture can be obtained with the headings for secondary entries already supplied. Any library which places a standing order for a complete set of cards for U. S. documents can include as a part of its order a complete set of cards for the current publications of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, with headings supplied for secondary entries and cards cut to the index size, if desired.

CARDS FOR DOCUMENTS ISSUED BY THE STATE AND CITY GOVERNMENTS

§7. Cards are being printed regularly by the Library of Congress for a selection of the more important monographic documents issued by the governments of states and cities of the United States. These can be purchased on the same terms as cards for U. S. documents. About 1800 cards are now in stock for documents published by the state governments.

CARDS FOR DOCUMENTS ISSUED BY THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT

§8. Cards are also being printed by the Library of Congress for a selection of the more important monographic documents issued by the British government. Cards for these can be purchased on the same terms as cards for U. S. documents.

PAYMENT FOR CARDS

§9. The most satisfactory method of paying for cards is to make a deposit of $1 or more, according to the amount of cards to be purchased. The initial deposit should be large enough to cover cost of cards called for by initial shipment and leave a margin to cover cost of future shipments. When the deposit is exhausted, a notice to that effect will be sent. Remittances should be made payable to "The Librarian of Congress."

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

CARD SECTION

No. 13 (2d edition[1]) BULLETIN - APRIL 15, 1911

CARDS FOR GOVERNMENT DOCUMENTS[2]

§ 1. During the years 1901–5, the Library of Congress printed cards for a considerable number of the more important monographic documents issued by the U. S. government, for a few documents issued by the state and municipal governments of the United States, and for a few foreign documents. Since 1906, cards have been printed for all of the more important monographic documents issued by the U. S. government, and for an increasingly large percentage of those issued by the state and municipal governments of the United States. Open entry cards have been printed also for many of the annual reports and other serials. Since 1907, cards have been printed for the more important documents issued by the British government, particularly for the British Parliamentary Papers, and for an increasing number of documents issued by other foreign governments.

In addition to cards for the current documents named above, cards for numerous non-current documents have been added to the stock: (a) by the recataloging of documents classed by subject on the shelves, in the general process of recataloging the Library; (b) by printing copy supplied by the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture covering practically all the publications of that Department, except the annual reports of the Secretary (see Bulletin 14); (c) by printing copy supplied by the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey covering practically all of the publications of the U. S. surveys, the state surveys and the surveys of several foreign countries (see Bulletin 15); (d) by printing copy supplied by the Library of the U. S. Bureau of Education (see Bulletin 21).

"AUTHOR SETS"—"DICTIONARY-CATALOG SETS"

§ 2. Individuals ordering cards for bibliographical purposes ordinarily desire an "author set" only, i. e. one copy of each card. Libraries usually order a "dictionary-catalog set," i. e. enough copies of each card to cover the main entry and the secondary entries[1] for a dictionary catalog which are indicated on the card. In ordering sets of cards, it is therefore necessary to specify whether an "author set," a "dictionary-catalog set," or some other number of cards is desired.

CLASSES OF CARDS FOR DOCUMENTS

§ 3. For convenience in filling orders already received, the cards in stock for documents have been classified as indicated below. The number of cards in each main class on April 15,

---

[1]A small fraction of the cards in stock for documents were printed before it was practicable to indicate on them subject entries. In the case of these cards, one extra copy is included in a "dictionary-catalog set" for use in making subject entries. The number of copies of each card included in a dictionary-catalog set will therefore be: one card for the main entry, plus one card for each subject entry indicated, or one extra card if no subject entries are indicated, plus one card for each added entry indicated. This number is indicated graphically by the formula 1s1a (for other formulas see "L. C. Printed Cards," § 8). With the exception of the cards for publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, title entry is not included in the added entries indicated on cards for documents. Libraries which use title cards freely may find it desirable to order an extra copy for title entry.

[1] Of the cards in stock for state publications, about 1,700 are for publications of state universities, colleges, normal schools, and societies. These will be excluded from sets, if desired.

(5) Documents issued by the British government:
  (a) British Parliamentary papers, about 1,400 cards.
  (b) Other British official documents, about 2,700 cards.
(6) Documents of British colonies (other than American), about 2,200 cards.
(7) Documents issued by other foreign governments, about 6,800 cards.
(8) Documents issued by municipal governments:
  (a) Of United States and Canada, about, 1,400 cards.
  (b) Of Latin American countries, about 90 cards.
  (c) Of British empire (excluding Canada) about 425 cards.
  (d) Of other foreign countries, about 575 cards.

In ordering any of the groups listed above at the price named in the following section, the term "set" may be interpreted as covering any of the following:

(1) All cards in stock at date of ordering.
(2) All cards printed after date of ordering.
(3) Cards for current[1] publications from date of ordering.

PRICE OF CARDS FOR DOCUMENTS

§ 4. Variation in the price of the cards supplied by the Library of Congress affects only the "first copy of the card." The charge for additional copies of any card supplied at the same time with the first is always $\frac{7}{10}$c. each.

The price of the first copy of each card in any of the groups listed in § 3 is $.012. The price of the first card in any subdivision will be given on request.

The price of the first card for documents when ordered otherwise than in sets is the same as the price of cards for other publications, viz: $.028 if ordered by author and title; $.02 if ordered by card number. (See § 7.)

CARDS FOR U. S. DOCUMENTS

§ 5. Libraries which are depositories for U. S. documents may find it advantageous to order a complete set (either "author" or "dictionary-catalog") of cards for U. S. documents. Of the 16,000 cards now in stock, about 4,500 are for publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and about 1,400 for publications of the U. S. Geological Survey. As stated at length in Bulletin 14, sets of cards for publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture can be obtained with the headings for secondary entries already supplied. Upon request, these cards, with the headings already supplied, will be included in orders for dictionary-catalog sets of cards for U. S. documents. If the ordering library has already received a set of these cards or of the cards for the publications of the U. S. Geological Survey (see Bulletin 15), or wishes for any other reason to have either or both of these sets of cards excluded from its order, this fact should be stated when the order is given.

[1] In filling orders for cards for current publications, the term "current" will be held to cover any document with date of publication not earlier than the previous calendar year.

Cards for hearings before committees of Congress which are not included in the regular numbered series of Congressional documents will be excluded from sets, if desired.

METHOD OF ORDERING SETS OF CARDS FOR DOCUMENTS

§ 6. Orders may be given in the form of a letter or note, e. g.:

"Please send to this library a dictionary-catalog set of all cards in stock for U. S. documents and all cards printed hereafter, excluding hearings not in the numbered document series. Please include as part of the set cards for publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture with headings for secondary entries already supplied."

"Please enter my name for a subscription to one copy of each card printed hereafter for current documents of the state of New York."

ORDERS FOR CARDS FOR DOCUMENTS OTHER THAN IN SETS

§ 7. Cards may be ordered for individual documents in the same way as for other publications, by author and title, by card number, or by series. Since January, 1906, L. C. card numbers have been given in the Monthly Catalogue of U. S. Public Documents issued by the Superintendent of Documents; since January, 1910, they have been given in the "Monthly List of State Publications" issued by the Division of Documents of the Library of Congress. A complete list of the series published by the departments and bureaus of the U. S. government for which cards are being regularly printed is given in Bulletin 16–19. Cards for these series may be ordered in the same way as for other series (see Bulletin 16)

TRAVELING CATALOG OF CARDS FOR DOCUMENTS

§ 8. To facilitate the ordering of cards for documents by number, a traveling catalog has been prepared containing one copy of each card in stock for publications issued by the federal and state governments of the United States. Traveling sets of cards for other classes of documents will be prepared when there is a demand for them. (For further information as to the traveling catalogs, see Bulletin 10.)

PAYMENT FOR CARDS

§ 9. Institutions already subscribing to cards should pay for the cards noted in this bulletin as they pay for others. Other institutions are requested to pay for cards in advance if practicable; if not practicable, payment may be made at intervals, and bills will be rendered if desired. Individuals and firms are required to pay for cards in advance and should always write for statement as to price and method of payment before sending money.

CARDS FOR GOVERNMENT DOCUMENTS[2]

§1. During the years 1901–5, the Library of Congress printed cards for a considerable number of the more important current monographic documents issued by the U. Since 1906 cards have been printed for all of the more important monographic documents issued by the U. In addition to cards for the current documents named above, cards for numerous noncurrent documents have been added to the stock, covering documents shelved with other recataloged publications and analytical entries for the following:

a. Publications of the Department of Agriculture. (See Bulletin 14.)
b. Publications of the U. S. Geological Survey, the state geological surveys, and most foreign surveys. (See Bulletin 15.)
c. Publications of the U. S. Bureau of Education. (See Bulletin 21.)

in round numbers. The number of cards in any class or subclass at any date will be furnished on application.

1. U. S. government documents, about 32,000 cards.
2. Documents issued by the states,[1] territories, and insular possessions of the United States, about 21,000 cards. Number issued by each state furnished on application.
3. Documents issued by the federal and provincial governments of Canada, about 1,900 cards.
4. Documents issued by the governments of Mexico, Central and South America, and the West Indies, about 3,600 cards.
5. Documents issued by the British government:
   a. British Parliamentary Papers, about 2,100 cards.
   b. Other British official documents, about 3,700 cards.
6. Documents of British colonies (other than American), about 3,800 cards.
7. Documents issued by other foreign governments, about 10,400 cards.
8. Documents issued by municipal governments—
   a. Of United States and Canada, about 2,600 cards.
   b. Of Latin American countries, about 160 cards.
   c. Of British empire (excluding Canada), about 500 cards.
   d. Of other foreign countries, about 750 cards.

CARDS CORRESPONDING TO SHIPMENTS OF U. S. DOCUMENTS TO DEPOSITORIES

§3. For the convenience of libraries which are depositories for sets of U. S. documents orders will be accepted for cards corresponding to the shipments of documents to the depositories as itemized in the list sent out at the close of each month by the Superintendent of Documents.

A large percentage of the documents sent out yearly in these shipments will, of course, be annual reports and other publications of a serial character, most of which are covered only by an open-entry card for the set. The open-entry card for such sets will be included in the monthly shipments only when the issue included in the shipment of that month is the first of the set, the assumption being that the library has already obtained open-entry cards previously issued.

As a rule the printed card is not ready for distribution until about a month after the document reaches L. C.; consequently cards for part of the documents received during a given month will not come to hand until the beginning of the second month following.

By observing closely the list of series of U. S. documents being analyzed by L. C. given in Bulletins 14, 15, 16–19, 21, 23, catalogers will know for what documents cards will come eventually.

The first shipment of the cards referred to above will be made early in November and will cover the documents sent out in October.

[1] Of the cards in stock for state publications, about 1,700 are for publications of state universities, colleges, normal schools, and societies. These will be excluded from sets, if desired.

PRICE OF CARDS FOR DOCUMENTS

§4. Variation in the price of the cards supplied by the Library of Congress affects only the "first copy of the card." The charge for additional copies of any card supplied at the same time with the first is always $\frac{8}{10}$c. each.

The price of the first copy of each card in any of the groups listed in §§2–3 is $.012. The price of the first card in any subdivision will be given on request.

The price of the first card for documents when ordered otherwise than in sets is the same as the price of cards for other publications, viz: 3c. if ordered by author and title; 2c. if ordered by card number. (See §6.)

The approximate price of any of the sets of cards mentioned in paragraph 3 can be found by multiplying the number of cards in the set by .012 for author set; by .03 for a dictionary set.

METHOD OF ORDERING SETS OF CARDS FOR DOCUMENTS

§5. Orders may be given in the form of a letter or note, e. g.:

[1] First edition was dated April 15, 1906; second edition, April 15, 1911; third edition, August 1, 1916; fourth edition, April 15, 1918.

[2] In the Bulletins of the Card Division published after January, 1909, a knowledge of the essential characteristics of the L. C. cards and of the usual methods of ordering and using them, as explained in the pamphlet "L. C. Printed Cards", is assumed. The pamphlet "L. C. Printed Cards" will be supplied gratis on application to "The Librarian of Congress, Washington, D. C."

CLASSES OF CARDS FOR DOCUMENTS

§2. The cards in stock for documents are classified as indicated below. The number of cards in each class on January 1, 1924, is given in round numbers. The approximate number of cards in any class or subclass at any date will be furnished on application.

1. U. S. government documents, about 45,500 cards.
2. Documents issued by the states,[1] territories, and insular possessions of the United States, about 32,000 cards. Number for documents issued by each state furnished on application.
3. Documents issued by the federal and provincial governments of Canada, about 2,500 cards.
4. Documents issued by the governments of Mexico, Central and South America, and the West Indies, about 4,850 cards.
5. Documents issued by the British government—
   a. British Parliamentary Papers, about 2,800 cards.
   b. Other British official documents, about 5,100 cards.
6. Documents of British colonies (other than American), about 5,100 cards.
7. Documents issued by other foreign governments, about 12,900 cards.
8. Documents issued by municipal governments—
   a. Of United States and Canada, about 3,500 cards.
   b. Of Latin American countries, about 200 cards.
   c. Of British Empire (excluding Canada), about 625 cards.
   d. Of other foreign countries, about 850 cards.

CARDS CORRESPONDING TO SHIPMENTS OF U. S. DOCUMENTS TO DEPOSITORIES

§3. For the convenience of libraries which are depositories for full sets of U. S. documents, orders are accepted for cards corresponding to the shipments of documents to the depositories as itemized in the "Depository Invoice" sent out at the close of each month by the Superintendent of Documents.

A large percentage of the documents sent out yearly in these shipments are annual reports and other publications of a serial character, most of which are covered only by an open-entry card for the set. The open-entry card for such sets will be included in the monthly shipments only when the issue included in the shipment of that month is the first of the set, the assumption being that the library has already obtained open-entry cards previously issued.

As a rule the printed card is not ready for distribution until about a month after the document reaches L. C.; consequently cards for part of the documents received during a given month will not come to hand until the beginning of the second month following.

[1] Of the cards in stock for state publications, about 5,600 are for publications of state universities, colleges, normal schools, and societies. These will be excluded from sets, if desired.

If analytics for publications included in the serially numbered bound volumes of the Congressional set are desired this should be specified.

If a library desiring to order in this way already has a standing order for cards for all publications issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture these will be excepted.

By observing closely the list of series of U. S. documents being analyzed by L. C. given in Bulletin 14, 15, 16–19 (and its supplements), 21, 23, catalogers will know for what documents cards will come eventually.

PRICE OF CARDS FOR DOCUMENTS

§4. Variation in the price of the cards supplied by the Library of Congress affects only the "first copy of the card". The charge for additional copies of any card supplied at the same time with the first is always $.015 each.

The price of the first copy of each card in the first two groups listed in §2 is $.025. The price of the first card in groups 3–8 is $.03. The price of cards sent in continuation of any group is $.03.

The price of the first card for documents when ordered otherwise than in sets is the same as the price of cards for other publications, viz.: $.045 if ordered by author and title; $.025 if ordered by card number; $.03 if ordered by series. (See §6)

METHOD OF ORDERING SETS OF CARDS FOR DOCUMENTS

§5. Orders may be given in the form of a letter or note, e. g.:

"Please send to this library a dictionary-catalog set of all cards in stock for U. S. documents and all cards printed hereafter, excluding hearings not in the numbered document series. Please include as part of the set cards for publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture with headings for secondary entries already supplied."

"Please enter my name for a subscription to one copy of each card printed hereafter for current documents of the state of New York."

ORDERS FOR CARDS FOR DOCUMENTS OTHER THAN IN SETS

§6. Cards may be ordered for individual documents in the same way as for other publications, by author and title, by card number, or by series. Since January, 1906, L. C. card numbers have been given in the Monthly Catalogue of U. S. Public Documents issued by the Superintendent of Documents; since January, 1910, they have been given in the "Monthly Check-list of State Publications" issued by the Division of Documents of the Library of Congress. A full list of the series published by the departments and bureaus of the U. S. government for which cards are being regularly printed is given in Bulletin 16–19 and its supplements. Cards for these series may be ordered in the same way as cards for other series. (See Bulletin 16–19.)

PAYMENT

§7. Institutions already subscribing to cards should pay for the cards noted in this bulletin as they pay for others. Individuals and firms are required to pay for cards in advance and should inquire price of cards and amount of deposit required before sending money.

FURTHER INFORMATION

§8. Further information as to the cards printed by the Library of Congress is given in the pamphlet "L. C. Printed Cards; how to order and use them". This pamphlet may be obtained on application to the Librarian of Congress, Washington, D. C.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

CARD SECTION

No. 14 BULLETIN April 21, 1906

CARDS FOR THE PUBLICATIONS OF THE U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

PRINTED AND DISTRIBUTED BY THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS FOR THE LIBRARY OF THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

§1. The cards prepared by the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture for cataloging the publications of that Department are now being printed and distributed by the Library of Congress.

Questions as to the form or the facts exhibited by any entry should be addressed to "The Librarian of the Department of Agriculture." All questions relating to the distribution of the cards should be addressed to "The Librarian of Congress."

The cards are numbered into the regular series which the Library of Congress has been printing for the Library of the Department of Agriculture since 1903, e. g. Agr 6–300. The series is conveniently referred to as "Agr." series.

SUPPLIED FREE TO AGRICULTURAL COLLEGES AND EXPERIMENT STATIONS

§2. Sets of cards for the publications of the Department of Agriculture will continue to be sent, at the expense of that Department, to agricultural colleges and experiment stations. Applications from such institutions for sets of the cards to be supplied at the expense of the Department of Agriculture should be addressed to "The Librarian of the Department of Agriculture."

COMPLETE SETS WITH HEADINGS PRINTED FOR SECONDARY ENTRIES; AUTHOR SETS

§3. The cards supplied to agricultural colleges and experiment stations will have headings already supplied at the top for subject and added entries. Others can obtain the cards in "complete sets" (see §8) with headings supplied by subscribing for them in advance of printing. For a time, while the actual demand for complete sets with headings supplied is being ascertained, a limited number of such sets will be printed and carried in stock. It is probable that after August 1, 1906, cards with headings supplied for secondary entries will be carried in stock for the Farmers' Bulletins and the Yearbook only (see §6)

Those desiring the cards for bibliographical purposes only may find that an "author set" (i. e. one copy of the main author entry card for each publication) will meet their needs.

SUPPLIED IN SETS IN THE INDEX SIZE

§4. The cards are so printed that they can be cut to the 32° or index size (5 x $12\frac{1}{2}^{cm}$). Cards supplied in sets for current publications in all of the series listed in §5, or in sets for the Farmers' Bulletins and Yearbooks, will be supplied in either the regular 33° size ($7\frac{1}{2}$ x $12\frac{1}{2}^{cm}$) or in the 32° size, as preferred. But cards ordered in less than full sets will be supplied only in the regular 33° size. Unless the 32° is especially requested, the 33° size will be sent.

SERIES FOR WHICH CARDS ARE TO BE DISTRIBUTED

§5. The printing and distributing of cards under this arrangement will begin at the point at which the distribution in sets by the Library of the Department of Agriculture was discontinued as indicated in the list immediately following. The numbers in each series for which cards have been distributed already by the Library of the Department of Agriculture are indicated at the left of ||, those for which cards are to be distributed by the Library of Congress are indicated at the right of ||. If a number is bracketed it indicates that no card was printed for it.

CARDS FOR FARMERS' BULLETINS, 1–226, AND FOR YEARBOOKS 1894–1904

§6. Cards with headings already printed for secondary entries will be kept in stock for the "Farmers' Bulletins" from No. 227 on and for the "Yearbook" from 1905 on. If there is a sufficient demand to justify the expenditure, cards for Farmers' Bulletins 1–226 and for Yearbooks 1894–1904 will be reprinted and carried in stock. Libraries which desire to obtain sets of cards for these publications are requested to so inform the Library of Congress.

CARDS FOR EARLIER ISSUES IN OTHER SERIES

§7. Cards are not now in stock, either at the Library of Congress or at the Library of the Department of Agriculture, for publications in the series listed in §5, the numbers for which are given at the left of ||. It is possible that, in addition to cards in sets for the Farmers'

Bulletins and the Yearbooks, main entry cards will be printed for the earlier issues of other series. Libraries desiring to obtain sets of cards for any of these are invited to file requests for the same.

CARDS FOR ADDITIONAL SERIES

§8. Cards will probably be printed and distributed later for a few additional series of publications (now current or which may be started later) issued by the Department of Agriculture. Such cards, if issued, will be included in "sets" of cards supplied for publications of this department.

NUMBER OF CARDS INCLUDED IN COMPLETE SETS; EXTRA CARDS

§9. The cards now being printed for publications of the Department of Agriculture have the necessary subject and added entries indicated on them in every case.

When these cards are supplied in "complete sets," unless a different number of cards is requested, one card is supplied for the main entry and one card for each secondary entry indicated on the card.

Title entry is included in the added entries indicated, but has been judged necessary in the case of a small percentage only of the publications for which cards have thus far been printed.

If a card is desired for each title, or if for any other reason extra copies of cards included in a set are desired, these can be obtained with the set at ½c. each (see §10).

PRICE OF CARDS

§10. Variation in the price of L. C. cards affects only the "first card." The charge for additional copies of the card for any publication, supplied at the same time with the first, is always ½c.

If the order is for a "complete set" or an "author set" of all the cards issued for publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the price of the first copy of each card included will be 1c. No extra charge will be made for printing the headings on cards for secondary entries which are included in completed sets (see §3)

The price of the first copy of each card included in a "complete set" or "author set" of cards for the Farmers' Bulletins or the Yearbook will be 1c.

The price of the first copy of each card supplied for any of the other series of publications listed in §5 will be 2c., as usual.

Extra copies of cards included in sets can be ordered with the set at the usual price of ½c.

If cards are ordered for individual publications, the usual price will be charged for the first card, viz, 2½c. if ordered by author and title, 2c. if ordered by card number.

PAYMENT FOR CARDS

§11. The most satisfactory method of paying for cards is to make a deposit of $1 or more according to the amount of cards to be purchased. The initial deposit should be large enough to cover cost of cards called for by initial shipment and leave a margin to cover cost of future shipments. When the deposit is exhausted, a notice to that effect will be sent. Remittances should be made payable to "The Librarian of Congress."

SHIPMENT OF CARDS

§12. Shipments of the cards in sets to agricultural colleges and experiment stations will be made monthly. Shipments to purchasers of sets of the cards will be sent at the same time.

CARD NUMBERS FOR PUBLICATIONS OF THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

§13. Card numbers for the publications of the Department of Agriculture, with those for publications of other Departments, have been printed in the monthly Catalog of U. S. Public Documents, issued by the Superintendent of Documents, since January, 1906. Following the card number (with a slanting line between the two) is given a number indicating the number of cards required for the main entry and the added entries suggested on the card for the document in question. To order cards it is necessary merely to give the card number and the number following, e. g., Agr 6–300/2. For full explanation of other methods of indicating number of cards wanted, see Bulletin No. 12.

NAMES OF BUREAUS AND DEPARTMENTS GIVEN IN THEIR NATURAL ORDER

§14. When the name of the Department of Agriculture or any of its subdivisions is given in the heading or series note on the cards, it will be given in its natural order, e. g., "U. S. Dept. of Agriculture. Bureau of animal industry." As the number of cards already sent out by the Library of the Department of Agriculture having name of department and its subdivisions inverted in the heading is small, libraries will probably find it best to change the headings of cards now in their catalogs to make them agree with those which will hereafter be sent out by the Library of Congress.

CARD INDEX OF EXPERIMENT STATION LITERATURE NOT INCLUDED

§15. The Card Index of Experiment Station Literature is not included in the cards to be printed and distributed by the Library of Congress. These are distributed by the Office of Experiment Stations. All enquiries as to them should be addressed to the "Director of the Office of Experiment Stations, Washington, D. C."

CARDS FOR ACCESSIONS TO THE LIBRARY OF THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

§16. The Library of Congress has been printing cards from copy supplied by the Library of the Department of Agriculture for books added to that library since 1903. The card numbers for these are printed in the quarterly list of "Accessions to the Department Library," published by the Library of the Department of Agriculture.

L. C. Cards are in stock, as a matter of course, for books on agriculture copyrighted in the United States since July, 1898. Libraries may count on obtaining a satisfactory percentage of cards from orders made up of titles on agriculture and related topics, representing copyrighted books published since 1898 and non-copyrighted books published since 1903.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

CARD SECTION

No. 14 (2d edition[1]) BULLETIN May 1, 1909

CARDS FOR THE PUBLICATIONS OF THE U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE AND FOR OTHER PUBLICATIONS ON AGRICULTURE

Printed and Distributed by the Library of Congress for the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

§ 1. The cards prepared by the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture for cataloging the publications of that department[2] have been printed and distributed by the Library of Congress since January 1, 1906. The majority of these cards are for publications issued since January, 1906, but the cards originally printed by the Library of the Department of Agriculture for the Farmers' Bulletins, the Yearbooks, the publications of the Forest Service, and the publications of the Bureaus of Animal Industry, Chemistry, Plant Industry (including the offices which preceded it), and Soils have been reprinted by the Library of Congress and added to its stock, so that cards can now be furnished for these series complete. Complete sets of cards can also be supplied for a number of series for which no cards had been printed before 1906, or which have been started since January, 1906.

The remainder of the cards printed by the Library of the Department of Agriculture before 1906 are to be reprinted by the Library of Congress. By December, 1909, it is expected that all of the publications of the Department of Agriculture for which analytical cards have ever been printed will be represented in the stock of cards at the Library of Congress.

The cards are numbered into the regular series which the Library of Congress has been printing for the Library of the Department of Agriculture since 1902, e. g., Agr. 6–300. The series is conveniently referred to as the "Agr." series.

Inquiries as to the distribution of cards in the Agr. series should be addressed to the "Librarian of Congress." Inquiries as to the form or contents of cards in this series should be directed to the "Librarian of the U. S. Department of Agriculture."

[1] First edition was dated March 15, 1906.

[2] The card index of Experiment Station literature is not included in the cards printed and distributed by the Library of Congress. These are distributed by the Office of Experiment Stations. All inquiries as to them should be addressed to the "Director of the U. S. Office of Experiment Stations."

SERIES OF PUBLICATIONS OF THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE FOR WHICH ANALYTICAL[1] CARDS ARE IN STOCK[2]

§ 2. In the list of series below the fact that cards are in stock for a series complete[3] from a certain number to date is indicated by a dash following the number, e. g., 1–. When two numbers are connected by a dash, it indicates that cards are in stock for the two numbers and all numbers between and that the series closed with number following dash. Date preceding the dash indicates the date of publication of the first number covered by cards in stock; date following the dash indicates the date of publication of the last number in a closed series.

[1] Main entry or series cards have been issued for very few of the series listed in § 2. Main entry cards have been printed for a considerable number of composite sets (e. g., U. S. Dept. Agr. Annual report) and miscellaneous unnumbered publications (e. g., U. S. Bureau Animal Industry. Special report on diseases of the horse) of the Department of Agriculture. In a later edition of this bulletin a complete list of the publications thus covered will probably be given with the card number corresponding to each. For the present these must be ordered by author and title or by card numbers (see p. 6, footnote).

[2] No attempt has been made in this issue to designate the numbers in series which were covered by the cards issued by the Library of the Department of Agriculture before January, 1906. Libraries which desire to have their sets completed from that point have merely to indicate this and the proper cards will be sent.

[3] In this bulletin series are regarded as being completely covered by printed cards when cards have been printed for all the numbers for which it is now practicable to print cards. Hence no attempt is made to indicate that a number is not yet published, or forms a part of an incomplete publication for which no card has yet been issued, or is not to be cataloged with a printed card because it was issued for official use only. Information as to such facts, when deemed necessary, is supplied in separate form with shipments of cards.

[4] Previous to 1899 these reports were not numbered. In that year a collection was made of 58 miscellaneous publications of the Department of Agriculture. These were numbered arbitrarily and the list printed on the cover of no. 59, the latter being the first of the collection to have a specific number printed on it. As papers in this list are reprinted they are given the number assigned to them in 1899. The list of these reports is also given in "Publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture from 1840 to June, 1901" (Bulletin 6 of the Division of Publications).

"AUTHOR SETS," "DICTIONARY-CATALOG SETS"

§ 3. Specialists ordering the cards for bibliographical purposes, ordinarily desire an "author set" only, i. e., one copy of each card. Libraries having full sets of the publications usually order a "dictionary-catalog set," i. e., enough copies of each card to cover the main entry and the secondary entries [1] for a dictionary catalog which are indicated on the card. In ordering sets of cards it is therefore necessary to specify whether an author set or a dictionary-catalog set is desired.

---

[1] In the case of cards for publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, title entry is included in the added entries indicated, if the title in question is "striking or memorable." Title entry is not included in the secondary entries indicated on other cards in the Agr. series.

HEADINGS ALREADY SUPPLIED FOR SECONDARY ENTRIES

§ 4. As a rule, the Library of Congress prints main entry cards only; but an exception has been made in the case of the cards for publications of the Department of Agriculture. Cards for secondary entries with headings already supplied are carried in stock in the case of all cards printed for publications of the Department of Agriculture. The headings are printed in black ink. Cards can not be supplied with subject headings in red. Libraries which desire to have subject headings in red should either order a "dictionary-catalog set" of main entry cards and then add the headings for subject entries in red and those for the remaining secondary entries in black, or order a dictionary-catalog set with headings supplied for secondary entries except subject entries, with enough additional main entry cards to cover subject entries. Unless otherwise specified, cards for secondary entries included in dictionary-catalog sets will have headings already supplied in black.

CARDS IN THE INDEX SIZE

§ 5. The cards printed for the Library of the Department of Agriculture are carried in stock only in the regular 33° size, but those printed for publications issued since 1906, and for the entire file of Farmers' Bulletins and Yearbooks are so printed that they can be cut to the 32° or index size, if desired, without cutting away any of the text. The cards which are being reprinted for other publications of the Department of Agriculture are not printed with a view to cutting them to the 32° size, but they can be cut to that size without cutting away essential portions of the text in any considerable percentage of cases, provided that when the card is very full a portion be first cut from the upper margin of the card. But libraries which contemplate acquiring a set of these cards are strongly advised to adopt the standard 33° size. A number of libraries, which previous to 1906 received cards from the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture in the 32° size, have decided to purchase cards in the 33° size in continuation of the set and to replace the earlier cards as fast as the corresponding 33° size cards become available.

METHOD OF ORDERING CARDS FOR PUBLICATIONS OF THE U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

§ 6. Libraries which obtain practically all of the publications of the Department of Agriculture will find it economical to order a set of cards for all of them, because the price per card is considerably lower if the entire set is taken (see § 9). Cards may, however, be ordered by series for any of the series listed in § 2.

Order may be submitted in the form of a letter, note, or order slip. As may be inferred from §§3–5 above, orders for cards for publications of the Department of Agriculture admit of a number of variations. Correspondence will be saved if subscribers specify carefully in their orders what cards are wanted.

Two sample orders are given below which cover the usual variations.

> Please send this library a dictionary-catalog set of cards for the publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, with headings supplied for secondary entries, 33° size, in continuation of the set formerly supplied by the Library of the Department of Agriculture, with continuation.[1]
>
> Please send me an author set of cards, 33° size, for Farmers' bulletins 1–226.

OTHER CARDS ON AGRICULTURE; OTHER METHODS OF ORDERING

§ 7. Although neither the collection of the Library of Congress on Agriculture nor that of the Department of Agriculture has been to any considerable extent recataloged with printed cards, there are now in stock at the Library of Congress, in addition to about 2,500 cards for publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, about 10,000 printed cards on agriculture comprising: (a) Cards for copyrighted books received by the Library of Congress since 1898; (b) cards for accessions by purchase, gift, or exchange which have come to the Library of Congress since 1901 and to the Library of the Department of Agriculture since 1902; (c) cards for recataloged books on entomology (bulk of collection at both libraries being now covered); (d) cards for other books recataloged at the Library of Congress, consisting chiefly of earlier editions of books recataloged along with later editions currently received; (e) analytical cards issued for three important foreign agricultural periodicals.[2]

[1] Cards supplied in continuation of purchased sets of Agr. cards will hereafter be sent weekly. Cards supplied in continuation of the sets sent to land-grant agricultural colleges and experiment stations (see § 10, footnote 2, end) will hereafter be sent biweekly.

[2] A full statement as to cards for these three periodicals is given in Bulletin 9 of the Card Section, but for the convenience of those who have not access to that bulletin the essential facts are repeated here. Prices of sets are corrected to May 1, 1909:

Annales de la science agronomique, 1884–
Author set, $3.87; dictionary-catalog set, $6.60.
Landwirtschaftliche jahrbücher (1872–) 1–
Author set, $9.22; dictionary-catalog set, $15.70.
Die landwirtschaftlichen versuchs-stationen (1859–) 1–
Author set, $17.10; dictionary-catalog set, $29.10.

Headings for secondary entries are indicated on these cards, but cards with headings already supplied for secondary entries can not be supplied. Headings for secondary entries must be added after cards are received.

In addition to orders by series (see § 6), cards in stock on agriculture can be ordered by "author and title," by "card number,"[1] or by "subject." The first two methods of ordering are used chiefly by libraries and are fully described in the Handbook of Card Distribution. Orders by subject will be accepted for cards on any topic in agriculture which can be specifically defined. Such orders may be restricted quantitatively in various ways, e. g., "Cards for all books on dairying published since 1900," but can not be restricted qualitatively, e. g., "Cards for the more important works on dairying."

PROOF SHEETS OF CARDS ON AGRICULTURE

§ 8. Before the cards are printed sets of proof sheets are struck off. As the entries on the proof sheets are classified, it is possible to subscribe to the proof sheets on a particular subject. Under the heading "Titles from the U. S. Department of Agriculture" and "Plant and animal industry" about 400 strips of proof (five titles to the strip, usually) have been issued per year, on the average, since 1903. Under these headings appear the bulk[1] of the titles in which specialists in agriculture would be interested. Proof sheets are supplied in white paper or in rope manila paper, as preferred. The latter is much more durable, but is about one-third thicker. Entries on the proof sheets are laid out card size so that they can be advantageously clipped to card size. Back sets of the proof sheets for agriculture can not be supplied except as included in full sets of all of the proof sheets issued by the Library of Congress. Current subscriptions to the proof sheets may begin at any time. The price per sheet is 1c.

Although less satisfactory than cards for most uses, the proof sheets furnish a much less expensive record of the new books on agriculture received by the Library of Congress and the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

PRICE OF CARDS

§ 9. Variation in the price of the cards supplied by the Library of Congress affects only the "first copy of the card;" the charge for additional copies of any card supplied at the same time with the first is always ½ c. each.

The price of the first copy of each card supplied for an "author set" or a "dictionary-catalog set" of all the cards in stock fo

[1] Card numbers for the current accessions to the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture hav been given since 1902 in "Accessions to the Department Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, issued quarterly by the Library of the Department of Agriculture in its series of numbered bulletins; sinc 1906 they have been given also in "Monthly Catalogue of U. S. Public Documents," issued by the Su perintendent of Documents. Card numbers so far as available were given in "Catalogue of publicatior relating to entomology in the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture," being number 55 of th series of bulletins referred to above.

In addition to the traveling dictionary-catalog of cards for publications of the U. S. Department of Agr culture mentioned in § 12, a traveling author catalog will be ready by the end of 1909, containing one cop of each card in stock on agriculture, designed to be used in ordering cards by number.

publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture is 1 c.; the price of the first copy of cards supplied in continuation of such a set is also 1 c.[1]

The price of the first copy of each card supplied in an author or dictionary-catalog set of cards for the Farmers' Bulletins or Yearbooks is 1 c. The price of the first copy of each card supplied in continuation of a set for the Yearbooks is 1 c., in continuation of a set for the Farmers' Bulletins, 2 c.

The price of the first card in the case of orders for cards for any of the other series named in § 2 is 2 c., both in the case of cards in stock and cards supplied in continuation of the set.

The price of cards ordered by subject varies directly with the work required in selecting the cards, inversely with the number called for by the order. The price for the first copy of each card included in an author set or a dictionary-catalog set[2] of all cards in stock on agriculture would be 1 c.

The usual price is charged for the first card for publications relating to agriculture when ordered by card number or by author and title, viz, 2 c. if ordered by number, 2½ c. if ordered by author and title (for further information, see Handbook). (For price of proof sheets, see § 8.)

PAYMENT FOR CARDS

§ 10. Institutions which are already ordering cards for other purposes should pay for the cards noted in this bulletin as they pay for others. Other institutions are requested to pay for cards in advance if practicable; if not practicable, payment may be made at intervals and bills will be rendered as desired.

Payment in advance is required in the case of individuals ordering cards for their own use. If an individual desires to order cards for one of the series of publications named in § 2 without continuation, the price of the set to date should be ascertained and the exact amount remitted. But if the order is to be for a set with continuation, an amount sufficient to cover the cost of the set to date, plus a margin sufficient to cover the cost of current shipments for at least three months, should be sent.

[1] Books on agriculture from the historical and economic side are classed in the Social Sciences and entries for such books consequently appear on the proof sheets for the Social Sciences. Entries for publications which relate to the technical side of irrigation appear on the proof sheets for Technology. Entries for bibliographies of agricultural topics appear on the proof sheets for Bibliography. Works which are of direct interest to specialists in agriculture also occasionally appear on the proof sheets for Botany, Chemistry, Science, and Zoology.

[2] A full author set of the cards now in stock for publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture contains about 2,500 cards and therefore costs about $25. It is estimated that when the remainder of the earlier cards are reprinted and added to the set, it will contain about 5,000 cards and will therefore cost about $50. A dictionary-catalog set contains on the average about 2½ times as many cards as an author set. The cost of the dictionary-catalog set at present is about $45. The cost of the complete dictionary-catalog set at the end of 1909 will probably be between $90 and $100.

Sets of cards for the publications of the Department of Agriculture are being supplied gratis to "land grant" agricultural colleges and experiment stations, at the expense of the Department of Agriculture. Correspondence in regard to these sets should be addressed to "The Librarian of the Department of Agriculture."

If an individual desires to place an order by subject, an estimate of the cost of the cards should be obtained before any remittance is made. Full directions as to payment will be supplied with the estimate.

ARRANGEMENT OF FILES OF AGR. CARDS

§ 11. The cards for publications of the Department of Agriculture now being sent out by the Library of Congress, like those formerly sent out by the Library of the Department of Agriculture, are designed to be arranged in a dictionary catalog of the usual form. As this form of catalog is almost universal in American libraries no suggestions as to the general arrangement of the cards are offered, but two items connected with the arrangement of these cards call for special explanation.

1. On the cards sent out by the Library of Congress since 1906, the names of bureaus and divisions of the Department of Agriculture are given in their natural order (e. g., U. S. Department of Agriculture. Bureau of Chemistry), while on the cards sent out by the Library of the Department of Agriculture the name of the bureau was inverted to bring the significant word first (e. g., U. S.——Department of Agriculture——Chemistry, Bureau of). Libraries are advised to change headings on old cards to agree with those on new, so that all the entries under a bureau or division will come together.

2. Cards are occasionally sent out to replace cards already in the file. Such cards are marked "cancel" when the original card contained an error, "additions" when the new card merely contains additional information. When a card is received marked either "cancel" or "additions" it should be placed in the file and the defective card having the same card number removed. If the heading of the new card is practically the same as that of the old, no special explanation is sent because filer can readily locate old card by a little searching. But if the heading is essentially changed, an explanation is now sent with the card to enable filer to locate original card. If original card is to be removed in favor of a new card having a different number, explanation to this effect accompanies the new card.

VERIFYING FILES OF AGR. CARDS

§ 12. When the remainder of the cards printed by the Library of the Department of Agriculture have been reprinted and added to the stock of the Library of Congress, provision will be made for verifying and revising the files of cards now located in the libraries and experiment stations by preparing a traveling catalog showing the cards which should be in the set and the arrangement recommended by the Library of the Department of Agriculture. The expense of verifying a file of the cards by the use of this catalog will be the usual expense involved in using a traveling catalog (see Bulletin 10 of the Card Section), viz, the payment of the charges for the transportation of the catalog from and to the Library of Congress. If a number of libraries apply for the catalog, so that a circuit can be arranged, the expense for transportation will be small.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

CARD SECTION

No. 14 (4th edition[1]) BULLETIN January 1, 1913

CARDS FOR THE PUBLICATIONS OF THE U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE AND FOR OTHER PUBLICATIONS ON AGRICULTURE

Printed and Distributed by the Library of Congress for the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

§ 1. The cards prepared by the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture for cataloging the publications of that department [2] have been printed and distributed by the Library of Congress since January 1, 1906. Besides printing cards for all of the publications of the Department of Agriculture issued since January, 1906, the Library of Congress has now reprinted the cards [3] previously printed and distributed by the Department of Agriculture. Analytical cards are now in stock at the Library of Congress for most of the publications of the Department of Agriculture for which it is practicable to print such cards.[4]

The cards are numbered into the regular series which the Library of Congress has been printing for the Library of the Department of Agriculture since 1902, e. g. Agr. 6–300. The series is conveniently referred to as the "Agr." series.

Inquiries as to the distribution of cards in the Agr. series should be addressed to the "Librarian of Congress." Inquiries as to the form or contents of cards in this series should be directed to the "Librarian of the U. S. Department of Agriculture."

[1] 1st edition was dated Apr. 21, 1906; 2d edition, May 1, 1909; 3d edition, January, 1911.

[2] The card index of Experiment Station literature is not included in the cards printed and distributed by the Library of Congress. These are distributed by the Office of Experiment Stations. All inquiries as to them should be addressed to the "Director of the Office of Experiment Stations, U. S. Department of Agriculture."

[3] Several hundred cards indexing composite publications, such as the bulletins of the Office of Experiment Stations containing the Proceedings of the Association of American Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations, have not been reprinted.

[4] The publications not yet covered by analyticai cards are: Reports of the Secretary previous to 1894; Annual reports of the Bureau of Animal Industry, 1884–; Annual reports of the Office of Experiment Stations, 1896–; Annual reports of the Weather Bureau, 1891–; Experiment station record, 1889– (editorials). Copy for cards covering these is now being prepared at the Library of the Department of Agriculture. They will probably be in stock by the end of 1913.

SERIES OF PUBLICATIONS OF THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE FOR WHICH ANALYTICAL[1] CARDS ARE IN STOCK[2].

§ 2. In the list of series below the fact that cards are in stock for a series complete[3] from a certain number to date is indicated by a dash following the number, e. g. 1–. When two numbers are connected by a dash it indicates that cards are in stock for the two numbers and all numbers between and that the series closed with number following dash. Date preceding the dash indicates the date of publication of the first number covered by cards in stock; date following the dash indicates the date of publication of the last number in a closed series. Main entry (or series) cards have been printed for all of these series, in addition to the analytical entries.

[1] Main entry cards have been printed for a considerable number of composite sets (e. g., U. S. Dept. Agr. Annual report) and miscellaneous unnumbered publications of the Department of Agriculture (e. g., U. S. Bureau Animal Industry. Special report on diseases of the horse).

[2] No attempt has been made in this issue to designate the numbers in series which were covered by the cards issued by the Library of the Department of Agriculture before January, 1906. Libraries which desire to have their sets completed from that point have merely to indicate this and the proper cards will be sent.

[3] In this bulletin series are regarded as being completely covered by printed cards when cards have been printed for all the numbers for which it is now practicable to print cards. Hence no attempt is made to indicate that a number is not yet published, or forms a part of an incomplete publication for which no card has yet been issued, or is not to be catalogued with a printed card because it was issued for official use only. Information as to such facts, when deemed necessary, is supplied in separate form with shipments of cards.

[4] Previous to 1899 these reports were not numbered. In that year a collection was made of 58 miscellaneous publications of the Department of Agriculture. These were numbered arbitrarily and the list printed on the cover of no. 59, the latter being the first of the collection to have a specific number printed on it. As papers in this list are reprinted they are given the number assigned to them in 1899. The list of these reports is also given in "Publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture from 1840 to June, 1901" (Bulletin 6 of the Division of Publications).

"AUTHOR SETS," "DICTIONARY-CATALOG SETS"

§ 3. Specialists ordering the cards for bibliographical purposes, ordinarily desire an "author set" only, i. e. one copy of each card. Libraries having full sets of the publications usually order a "dictionary-catalog set," i. e. enough copies of each card to cover the main entry and the secondary entries [1] for a dictionary catalog which are indicated on the card. In ordering sets of cards it is therefore necessary to specify whether an author set or a dictionary-catalog set is desired.

[1] In the case of cards for publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, title entry is included in the added entries indicated, if the title in question is "striking or memorable." Title entry for such titles was not included in the secondary entries indicated on other cards in the Agr. series until 1912. Since that date they have been included.

HEADINGS ALREADY SUPPLIED FOR SECONDARY ENTRIES

§ 4. As a rule, the Library of Congress prints main entry cards only; but an exception has been made in the case of the cards for publications of the Department of Agriculture. Cards for secondary entries with headings already supplied are carried in stock in the case of all cards printed for publications of the Department of Agriculture. The headings are printed in black ink (lower case, imitation pica typewriter).[1] Cards can not be supplied with subject headings in red. Libraries which desire to have subject headings in red should either order a dictionary-catalog set of main entry cards and then add the headings for subject entries in red and those for the remaining secondary entries in black, or order a dictionary-catalog set with headings supplied for secondary entries except subject entries, with enough additional main entry cards to cover subject entries. Unless otherwise specified, cards for secondary entries included in dictionary-catalog sets will have headings already supplied in black.[1]

CARDS IN THE INDEX SIZE

§ 5. The cards printed for the Library of the Department of Agriculture are carried in stock only in the regular 33° size, but those printed for publications issued since 1906 and for the entire file of Farmers' Bulletins and Yearbooks are so printed that they can usually be cut to the 32° or index size, if desired, without cutting away any of the text. The cards which have been reprinted for other publications of the Department of Agriculture were not printed with a view to cutting them to the 32° size, but they can be cut to that size without cutting away essential portions of the text in any considerable percentage of cases, provided that when the card is very full a portion be first cut from the upper margin of the card. But libraries which contemplate acquiring a set of these cards are strongly advised to adopt the standard 33° size.

EXCHANGE OF CARDS IN INDEX SIZE FOR CARDS IN STANDARD SIZE

§ 6. To induce libraries which have files of the 32° size cards to exchange them for sets of the 33° size, complete sets in the 33° size will be exchanged for sets in the 32° size at the rate of $^{7}/_{10}$ c. per card or about $96 for the entire dictionary-catalog set on January 1, 1913. These sets when sent out are alphabetically arranged ready for use.

---

[1] When an entry is so long that it requires two or more cards, all cards are used for the first or main subject entry and all cards are used for other secondary entries when the full entry is needed to "justify" the heading for the secondary entry, but in other cases heading for secondary entry is printed on that card only which contains in title, contents, or notes the particular name or item which the secondary entry is designed to bring out. Those receiving sets of cards for publications of the Department of Agriculture should note this; otherwise cards may be reported "missing" which were not intended to be included.

METHOD OF ORDERING CARDS FOR PUBLICATIONS OF THE U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

§ 7. Libraries which obtain practically all of the publications of the Department of Agriculture will find it economical to order a set of cards for all of them, because the price per card is considerably lower if the entire set is taken (see §11). Cards may, however, be ordered by series for any of the series listed in § 2.

Order may be submitted in the form of a letter, note, or order slip. As may be inferred from §§ 3–5 above, orders for cards for publications of the Department of Agriculture admit of a number of variations. Correspondence will be saved if subscribers specify carefully in their orders what cards are wanted.

Two sample orders are given below which cover the usual variations:

> Please send this library a dictionary-catalog set of cards for the publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, with headings supplied for secondary entries, 33° size, in continuation of the set formerly supplied by the Library of Department of Agriculture, with continuation.[1]
>
> Please send me an author set of cards, 33° size, for Farmers' bulletins 1–226.

OTHER CARDS ON AGRICULTURE

§ 8. The older books on agriculture at the Library of Congress have now been recataloged and the entire collection, with the exception of pamphlets and other publications of minor importance, is now covered by printed cards in stock. Many of the older books on botany, entomology and zoology in the Library of the Department of Agriculture are covered by printed cards, but outside these classes, the books acquired by the Library of the Department of Agriculture before 1903 have not been systematically recataloged with printed cards. The whole number of cards now in stock for Agriculture (Plant and animal industry), in addition to about 5,300 cards for publications of the Department of Agriculture, is about 18,000.

OTHER METHODS OF ORDERING

§ 9. In addition to orders by the set and by series[1] (see § 7), cards in stock on agriculture can be ordered by "author and title," by "card

[1] In Bulletins 16–19 will be found listed many additional series of publications relating to Agriculture for which analytical cards are being printed regularly. Bulletin 9 contains information as to sets of analytical cards for three agricultural periodicals. The essential facts as to these sets are given below:

Annales de la science agronomique, (1884–) 1–29
Author set, $5.34; dictionary-catalog set, $9.93.

Landwirtschaftliche jahrbücher (1872–) 1–41
Author set, $12.46; dictionary-catalog set, $23.92.

Die landwirtschaftlichen versuchs-stationen (1859–) 1–78
Author set, $21.77; dictionary-catalog set, $39.37.

Headings for secondary entries are indicated on these cards, but cards with headings already supplied for secondary entries can not be supplied. Headings for secondary entries must be added after cards are received.

number," [1] or by "subject." The first two methods of ordering, used chiefly by libraries, are described in "L. C. Printed Cards" and more fully in the Handbook of Card Distribution. Orders by subject will be accepted for cards on any topic in agriculture which can be specifically defined. Such orders may be restricted quantitatively in various ways, e. g. "Cards for all books on dairying published since 1900," but can not be restricted qualitatively, e. g. "Cards for the more important works on dairying."

PROOF SHEETS OF CARDS ON AGRICULTURE

§ 10. Before the cards are printed sets of proof sheets are struck off. As the entries on the proof sheets are classified, it is possible to subscribe to the proof sheets on a particular subject. Under the heading "Titles from the U. S. Department of Agriculture" and "Plant and animal industry" about 500 strips of proof (five titles to the strip, usually) have been issued per year, on the average, since 1903. Under these headings appear the bulk [2] of the titles in which specialists in agriculture would be interested. Proof sheets are supplied in white paper or in rope manila paper as preferred. The latter is much more durable but is about one-third thicker. Entries on the proof sheets are laid out card size so that they can be advantageously clipped to card size. Back sets of the proof sheets for agriculture can not be supplied. Current subscriptions to the proof sheets may begin at any time. The price per sheet containing five entries is 1 c.

Although less satisfactory than cards for most uses, the proof sheets furnish a much less expensive record of the new books on agriculture received by the Library of Congress and the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

PRICE OF CARDS

§ 11. Variation in the price of the cards supplied by the Library of Congress affects only the first copy of the card; the charge for additional copies of any card supplied at the same time with the first is always $^{7}/_{10}$ c. each.

[1] Card numbers for the current accessions to the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture were given from 1902 to 1909 in "Accessions to the Department Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture," issued quarterly from 1894 to 1909 by the Library of the Department of Agriculture in its series of numbered bulletins, and are now given in its "Monthy Bulletin" of accessions; since 1906 they have been given also in "Monthly Catalogue of U. S. Public Documents," issued by the Superintendent of Documents. Card numbers so far as available were given in "Catalogue of publications relating to entomology in the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture," being numbers 55 and 76 of the series of bulletins referred to above, and in "Catalogue of publications relating to forestry in the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture."

[2] Books on agriculture from the historical and economic side are classed in the Social Sciences, and entries for such books consequently appear on the proof sheets for the Social Sciences. Entries for publications which relate to the technical side of irrigation appear on the proof sheets for Technology. Entries for bibliographies of agricultural topics appear on the proof sheets for Bibliography. Works which are of direct interest to specialists in agriculture also occasionally appear on the proof sheets for Botany, Chemistry, Science, and Zoology.

The price of the first copy of each card supplied for an author set a dictionary-catalog set of all the cards in stock for publications of e U. S. Department of Agriculture is $.012; the price of the first copy cards supplied in continuation of such a set is also $.012.[1]

The full author set (i. e., one copy of each card) of the cards now in stock for publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture contains about 5,300 cards, and therefore costs at this date (Jan. 1, 1913) about $64. The full dictionary-catalog set of these cards contains about 14,000 cards and costs about $121. The dictionary-catalog sets are arranged ready for use when sent out. A set of printed guides (127 guides) for the dictionary-catalog set will be supplied for $2.54. The cost of the new cards issued each year for these sets is likely to be approximately, $5.50 for the author set, $11 for the dictionary-catalog set.[1]

The price of the copy of each card supplied in an author or diction-y-catalog set of cards for the Farmers' Bulletins or Yearbook is 012. The price of the first copy of each card supplied in continuation a set for the Yearbooks is $.012, in continuation of a set for the rmers' Bulletins, 2 c.

The prices of full sets of cards for the Farmers' bulletins and Year-oks on January 1, 1913, were:

rmers' bulletins, author set	$ 5.23
rmers' bulletins, dictionary-catalog set	10.10
arbooks, author set	7.12
arbooks, dictionary-catalogs set	12.66

The price of the first card in the case of orders for cards for any of e other series named in § 2 is 2 c., both in the case of cards in stock d cards supplied in continuation of the set.

The price of cards ordered by subject varies directly with the work quired in selecting the cards, inversely with the number called for by e order. The price for the first copy of each card included in an au-or set or a dictionary-catalog set of all cards in stock on agriculture ould be $.012.

The usual price is charged for the first card for publications relating agriculture when ordered by card number or by author and title, z, 2 c. if ordered by number, $.028 if ordered by author and title (for rther information, see the pamphlet "L. C. Printed Cards").

PAYMENT

§ 12. Those already subscribing to cards should pay for the sets and asses of cards described in this bulletin as they pay for others. In-duals and firms are required to pay for the cards in advance and ould always write for statement as to price and method of payment fore sending money.

---

[1] Sets of cards for the publications of the Department of Agriculture are being supplied atis to "land grant" agricultural colleges and experiment stations at the expense of e Department of Agriculture. Correspondence in regard to these sets should be dressed to "The Librarian of the Department of Agriculture."

ARRANGEMENT OF FILES OF AGR. CARDS

§ 13. The cards for publications of the Department of Agriculture now being sent out by the Library of Congress, like those formerly sent out by the Library of the Department of Agriculture, are designed to be arranged in a dictionary catalog of the usual form. As this form of catalog is almost universal in American libraries no suggestions as to the general arrangement of the cards are offered, but two items connected with the arrangement of these cards call for special explanation.

1. On the cards sent out by the Library of Congress since 1906, the names of bureaus and divisions of the Department of Agriculture are given in their natural order (e. g. U. S. Department of agriculture. Bureau of chemistry), while on the cards sent out by the Library of the Department of Agriculture previous to 1906 the name of the bureau was inverted to bring the significant word first (e. g. U. S.—Department of agriculture—Chemistry, Bureau of). Libraries are advised to change headings on old cards to agree with those on new, so that all the entries under a bureau or division will come together.

2. Cards are occasionally sent out to replace cards already in the file. Such cards are marked "Revised" (previous to 1913 they were marked "Cancel" or "Additions." When a card is received marked "Revised" it should be placed in the file and the defective card having the same card number removed. If the heading of the new card is practically the same as that of the old, no special explanation is sent because the filer can readily locate old card by a little searching. But if the heading is essentially changed, an explanation is now sent with the card to enable the filer to locate original card. If orginal card is to be removed in favor of a new card having a different number, explanation to this effect accompanies the new card.

VERIFYING FILES OF AGR. CARDS

§ 14. In order that libraries and experiment stations may verify their files of Agriculture cards, a traveling-catalog has been prepared showing all the cards which should be in the set and the arrangement recommended for them. The expense of verifying a file of the cards by the use of this catalog is merely the usual expense involved in using a traveling-catalog (see Bulletin 10 of the Card Section), viz, the payment of the charges for the transportation of the catalog from and to the Library of Congress.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

CARD DIVISION

No. 14 (5th edition [1]) BULLETIN January 1, 1916

CARDS FOR THE PUBLICATIONS OF THE U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE AND FOR OTHER PUBLICATIONS ON AGRICULTURE

Printed and Distributed by the Library of Congress for the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

§ 1. The cards prepared by the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture for cataloging the publications of that department [2] have been printed and distributed by the Library of Congress since January 1, 1906. Besides printing cards for all of the publications of the Department of Agriculture issued since January, 1906, the Library of Congress has now reprinted the cards [3] previously printed and distributed by the Department of Agriculture. Analytical cards are now in stock at the Library of Congress for most of the publications of the Department of Agriculture for which it is practicable to print such cards.[4]

The cards are numbered into the regular series which the Library of Congress has been printing for the Library of the Department of Agriculture since 1902, e. g. Agr. 6–300. The series is referred to as the "Agr." series.

Inquiries as to the distribution of cards in the Agr. series should be addressed to the "Librarian of Congress." Inquiries as to the form or contents of cards in this series should be directed to the "Librarian of the U. S. Department of Agriculture."

[1] 1st edition was dated Apr. 21, 1906; 2d edition, May 1, 1909; 3d edition, January, 1911; 4th edition, Jan. 1, 1913.

[2] The card index of Experiment Station literature is not included in the cards printed and distributed by the Library of Congress. These are distributed by the Office of Experiment Stations. All inquiries as to them should be addressed to the "Director of the Office of Experiment Stations, U. S. Department of Agriculture."

[3] Several hundred cards indexing composite publications, such as the bulletins of the Office of Experiment Stations containing the Proceedings of the Association of American Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations, have not been reprinted.

[4] The publications not yet covered by analytical cards which are to be eventually covered by such cards are: Annual reports of the Bureau of Animal Industry, 1884–; Annual reports of the Office of Experiment Stations, 1896–; Annual reports of the Weather Bureau, 1891–; Experiment Station record, 1889– (editorials).

SERIES OF PUBLICATIONS OF THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE FOR WHICH ANALYTICAL CARDS ARE IN STOCK

§ 2. In the list of series below the fact that cards are in stock for a series complete [1] from a certain number to date is indicated by a dash following the number, e. g. 1–. When two numbers are connected by a dash it indicates that cards are in stock for the two numbers and all numbers between and that the series closed with number following dash. Date preceding the dash indicates the date of publication of the first number covered by cards in stock; date following the dash indicates the date of publication of the last number in a closed series. Main entry (or series) cards have been printed for all of these series and are included in the sets. Prices following each series are for author sets and dictionary sets on January 1, 1916.[2] Price of sets for current series at any date will be furnished on application.

Hence no attempt is made to indicate that a number is not yet published, or forms a part of an incomplete publication for which no card has yet been issued, or is not to be cataloged with a printed card because it was issued for official use only. Information as to such facts, when deemed necessary, is supplied in separate form with shipments of cards.

[2] Price is the same whether the cards for the secondary entries have headings already supplied or not. Price of author set is usually about half that of dictionary set.

[3] Previous to 1899 these reports were not numbered. In that year a collection was made of 58 miscellaneous publications of the Department of Agriculture. These were numbered arbitrarily and the list printed on the cover of no. 59, the latter being the first of the collection to have a specific number printed on it. As papers in this list are reprinted they are given the number assigned to them in 1899. The list of these reports is also given in "Publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture from 1840 to June 1901" (Bulletin 6 of the Division of Publications).

"AUTHOR SETS," "DICTIONARY-CATALOG SETS"

§3. Specialists ordering the cards for bibliographical purposes, ordinarily desire an "author set" only, i. e. one copy of each card. Libraries having full sets of the publications usually order a "dictionary-catalog set," i. e. enough copies of each card to cover the main entry and the secondary entries [1] for a dictionary catalog which are indicated on the card. In ordering sets of cards it is therefore necessary to specify whether an author set or a dictionary-catalog set is desired.

[1] In the case of cards for publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, title entry is included in e added entries indicated, if the title in question is "striking or memorable." Title entry for such tles was not included in the secondary entries indicated on other cards in the Agr. series until 1912. nce that date title entry has been included on card.

HEADINGS ALREADY SUPPLIED FOR SECONDARY ENTRIES

§ 4. As a rule, the Library of Congress prints main entry cards only; but an exception has been made in the case of the cards for publications of the Department of Agriculture. Cards for secondary entries with headings already supplied are carried in stock in the case of all cards printed for publications of the Department of Agriculture. The headings are printed in black ink (lower case, imitation typewriter). Cards can not be supplied with subject headings in red. Libraries which desire to have subject headings in red should either order a dictionary-catalog set of main entry cards and then add the headings for subject entries in red and those for the remaining secondary entries in black, or order a dictionary-catalog set with headings supplied for secondary entries except subject entries, with enough additional main entry cards to cover subject entries. Unless otherwise specified, cards for secondary entries included in dictionary-catalog sets will have headings already supplied in black.

EXCHANGE OF CARDS IN INDEX SIZE FOR CARDS IN STANDARD SIZE

§ 5. The printing of cards in the index size, or so that they could be cut to the index size, was discontinued in December 1914. This size will no longer be supplied. Libraries having sets in this size should exchange them for sets in the standard size. To induce libraries which have complete files of the 32° size cards to exchange them for sets of the 33° size, sets complete to December, 1914, in the 33° size will be exchanged for sets in the 32° size at the rate of ½ c. per card, or $88.64 for the entire dictionary set to December 31, 1914. These sets when sent out are alphabetically arranged ready for use.

METHOD OF ORDERING CARDS FOR PUBLICATIONS OF THE U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

§ 6. Libraries which obtain practically all of the publications of the Department of Agriculture will find it economical to order a set of cards for all of them, because the price per card is considerably lower if the entire set is taken (see § 10).

Cards may, however, be ordered by series for any of the series listed in § 2.

Order may be submitted in the form of a letter, note, or order slip. As may be inferred from §§ 3–4 above, orders for cards for publications of the Department of Agriculture admit of a number of variations. Correspondence will be saved if subscribers specify carefully in their orders what cards are wanted.

Two sample orders are given below which cover the usual variations:

> Please send this library a dictionary-catalog set of cards for the publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, with headings supplied for secondary entries, 33° size, with continuation.
>
> Please send me an author set of cards, 33° size, for Farmers' bulletins 1–226.

OTHER CARDS ON AGRICULTURE

§ 7. The older books on agriculture at the Library of Congress have now been recataloged, and the entire collection, with the exception of pamphlets and other publications of minor importance, is now covered by printed cards in stock. Many of the older books on botany, entomology and zoology in the Library of the Department of Agriculture are covered by printed cards, but outside these classes, the books acquired by the Library of the Department of Agriculture before 1903 have not been systematically recataloged with printed cards. The whole number of cards now in stock for Agriculture (Plant and animal industry), in addition to about 7,300 cards for publications of the Department of Agriculture, is about 25,500.

OTHER METHODS OF ORDERING

§ 8. In addition to orders by the set and by series [1] (see § 6), cards in stock on agriculture can be ordered by "author and

---

[1] In Bulletins 16–19 will be found listed many additional series of publications relating to Agriculture for which analytical cards are being printed regularly. Bulletin 9 contains information as to sets of analytical cards for three agricultural periodicals. The essential facts as to these sets are given below:

Annales de la science agronomique (1884–) 1–29
Author set, $5.90; dictionary-catalog set, $11.06.

Landwirtschaftliche jahrbücher (1872–) 1–41
Author set, $13.84; dictionary-catalog set, $27.12.

Die landwirtschaftlichen versuchs-stationen (1859–) 1–78
Author set, $23.24; dictionary-catalog set, $42.52.

Headings for secondary entries are indicated on these cards, but cards with headings already supplied for secondary entries can not be furnished. Headings for secondary entries must be added after cards are received.

PROOF SHEETS OF CARDS ON AGRICULTURE

§ 9. Before the cards are printed sets of proof sheets are struck off. As the entries on the proof sheets are classified, it is possible to subscribe to the proof sheets on a particular subject. Under the heading ''Titles from the U. S. Department of Agriculture'' and ''Plant and animal industry'' about 500 strips of proof (five titles to the strip, usually) have been issued per year, on the average, since 1903. Under these headings appear the bulk[2] of the titles in which specialists in agriculture would be interested. Proof sheets are supplied in white paper or in rope manila paper as preferred. The latter is much more durable, but is about one-third thicker. Entries on the proof sheets are laid out card size so that they can be advantageously clipped to card size. Back sets of the proof sheets for agriculture can not be supplied. Current subscriptions to the proof sheets may begin at any time. The price per sheet containing five entries is 1 c.

Although less satisfactory than cards for most uses, the proof sheets furnish a much less expensive record of the new books on agriculture received by the Library of Congress and the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

[1] Card numbers for the current accessions to the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture were given from 1902 to 1909 in "Accessions to the Department Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture," issued quarterly from 1894 to 1909 by the Library of the Department of Agriculture in its series of numbered bulletins, and are given in its "Monthly Bulletin" of accessions; since 1906 they have been given also in "Monthly Catalogue of U. S. Public Documents," issued by the Superintendent of Documents. Card numbers so far as available were given in "Catalogue of publications relating to entomology in the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture," being numbers 55 and 76 of the series of bulletins referred to above, and in "Catalogue of publications relating to forestry in the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture."

[2] Books on agriculture from the historical and economic side are classed in the Social Sciences, and entries for such books consequently appear on the proof sheets for the Social Sciences. Entries for publications which relate to the technical side of irrigation appear on the proof sheets for Technology. Entries for bibliographies of agricultural topics appear on the proof sheets for Bibliography. Works which are of direct interest to specialists in agriculture also occasionally appear on the proof sheets for Science.

PRICE OF CARDS

§ 10. Variation in the price of the cards supplied by the Library of Congress affects only the first copy of the card; the charge for additional copies of any card supplied at the same time with the first is always $^{8}/_{10}$ c. each.

The price of the first copy of each card supplied for an author set or a dictionary-catalog set of all the cards in stock for publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture is $.012; the price of the first copy of cards supplied in continuation of such a set is also $.012.

The full author set (i. e. one copy of each card) of the cards now in stock for publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture contains about 7,300 cards and costs at this date (Jan. 1, 1916) about $87. The full dictionary-catalog set of these cards contains about 19,700 cards and costs about $186.

The dictionary-catalog sets are arranged ready for use when sent out. A set of printed guides (250 guides) for the dictionary-catalog set will be supplied for $5. The cost of the new cards issued each year for these sets is likely to be, approximately, $9 for the author set, $16 for the dictionary-catalog set.

The price of the first copy of each card supplied in an author set or a dictionary-catalog set of cards for the Farmers' Bulletins or Yearbooks is $.012. The price of the first copy of each card supplied in continuation of a set for the Farmers' Bulletins or Yearbooks is 2 c.

In the case of orders for cards for any of the other series named in § 2 the price of the first card is 2 c., both for cards in stock and for cards supplied in continuation of the set.

The price of cards ordered by subject varies directly with the work required in selecting the cards, inversely with the number called for by the order. The price for the first copy of each card included in an author set or a dictionary-catalog set of cards in stock on agriculture for publications not issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture would be $.015.

The usual price is charged for the first card for publications relating to agriculture when ordered by card number or by author and title, viz, 2 c. if ordered by number, 3 c. if ordered by author and title. For further information, see the pamphlet "L. C. Printed Cards," obtainable on application to the Librarian of Congress.

[1] Sets of cards for the publications of the Department of Agriculture are being supplied gratis to "land grant" agricultural colleges and experiment stations at the expense of the Department of Agriculture. Correspondence in regard to these sets should be addressed to "The Librarian of the Department of Agriculture."

PAYMENT

§ 11. Those already subscribing to cards should pay for the sets and classes of cards described in this bulletin as they pay for others. Individuals and firms are required to pay for the cards in advance and should always write for statement as to price and method of payment before sending money.

ARRANGEMENT OF FILES OF AGR. CARDS

§ 12. The cards for publications of the Department of Agriculture now being sent out by the Library of Congress, like those formerly sent out by the Library of the Department of Agriculture, are designed to be arranged in a dictionary catalog of the usual form. As this form of catalog is almost universal in American libraries no suggestions as to the general arrangement of the cards are offered, but two items connected with the arrangement of these cards call for special explanation.

1. On the cards sent out by the Library of Congress since 1906, the names of bureaus and divisions of the Department of Agriculture are given in their natural order (e. g. U. S. Department of agriculture. Bureau of chemistry), while on the cards sent out by the Library of the Department of Agriculture previous to 1906 the name of the bureau was inverted to bring the significant word first (e. g. U. S.—Department of agriculture—Chemistry, Bureau of). Libraries are advised to change headings on old cards to agree with those on new, so that all the entries under a bureau or division will come together.

2. Cards are occasionally sent out to replace cards already in the file. Such cards are marked "Revised" (previous to 1913 they were marked "Cancel" or "Additions"). When a card is received marked "Revised" it should be placed in the file and the defective card having the same card number removed. Sometimes the heading of the new card is slightly changed; occasionally it is the same as an added entry on the old card. When inserting a "revised" card filer should always look for and withdraw the previous issue of the card.

CARDS FOR THE PUBLICATIONS OF THE U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE AND FOR OTHER PUBLICATIONS ON AGRICULTURE

Printed and Distributed by the Library of Congress for the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

§ 1. The cards prepared by the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture for cataloging the publications of that department [2] have been printed and distributed by the Library of Congress since January 1, 1906. Besides printing cards for all of the publications of the Department of Agriculture issued since January, 1906, the Library of Congress has now reprinted the cards [3] previously printed and distributed by the Department of Agriculture. "AUTHOR SETS," "DICTIONARY-CATALOG SETS"

§ 3. Specialists ordering the cards for bibliographical purposes, ordinarily desire an "author set" only, i. e. one copy of each card. Libraries having full sets of the publications usually order a "dictionary-catalog set," i. e. enough copies of each card to cover the main entry and the secondary entries [1] which are indicated on the card for a dictionary catalog. In ordering sets of cards it is therefore necessary to specify whether an author set or a dictionary-catalog set is desired.

HEADINGS ALREADY SUPPLIED FOR SECONDARY ENTRIES

§ 4. As a rule, the Library of Congress prints main entry cards only; but an exception has been made in the case of the cards for publications of the Department of Agriculture. Cards for secondary entries with headings already supplied are carried in stock in the case of all cards printed for publications of the Department of Agriculture. The headings are printed in black ink. Cards can not be supplied with subject headings in red. Libraries which desire to have subject headings in red should either order a dictionary-catalog set of main entry cards and then add the headings for subject entries in red and those for the remaining secondary entries in black, or order a dictionary-catalog set with headings supplied for secondary entries except subject entries, with enough additional main entry cards to cover subject entries. Unless otherwise specified, cards for secondary entries included in dictionary-catalog sets will have headings already supplied in black.

EXCHANGE OF CARDS IN INDEX SIZE FOR CARDS IN STANDARD SIZE

§ 5. The printing of cards in the index size, or so that they could be cut to the index size, was discontinued in December, 1914. This size will no longer be supplied. Libraries having sets in this size should exchange them for sets in the standard size. To induce libraries which have complete files of the 32° size cards to exchange them for sets of the 33° size, sets complete to December, 1914, in the 33° size will be exchanged for sets in the 32° size at the rate of $.0055 per card, or $97.50 for the entire dictionary set to December 31, 1914.

METHOD OF ORDERING CARDS FOR PUBLICATIONS OF THE U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

§ 6. Libraries which obtain practically all of the publications of the Department of Agriculture will find it economical to order a set of cards for all of them, because the price per card is considerably lower if the entire set is taken (see § 10).

Cards may, however, be ordered by series for any of the series listed in § 2.

Order may be submitted in the form of a letter, note, or order slip. As may be inferred from §§ 3–4 above, orders for cards for publications of the Department of Agriculture admit of a number of variations. Correspondence will be saved if subscribers specify carefully in their orders what cards are wanted.

Two sample orders are given below which cover the usual variations:

> Please send this library a dictionary-catalog set of cards for the publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, with headings supplied for secondary entries, with continuation.
>
> Please send me an author set of cards for Farmers' bulletins 1–226.

OTHER CARDS ON AGRICULTURE

§ 7. The older books on agriculture at the Library of Congress have now been recataloged, and the entire collection, with the exception of pamphlets and other publications of minor importance, is now covered by printed cards in stock. Many of the older books on botany, entomology and zoology in the Library of the Department of Agriculture are covered by printed cards, but outside these classes, the books acquired by the Library of the Department of Agriculture before 1903 have not been systematically recataloged with printed cards. The whole number of cards now in stock for Agriculture (Plant and animal industry), in addition to about 9,500 cards for publications of the Department of Agriculture, is about 29,000.

OTHER METHODS OF ORDERING

[1] In Bulletins 16–19 will be found listed many additional series of publications relating to Agriculture for which analytical cards are being printed regularly. Bulletin 9 contains information as to sets of analytical cards for three agricultural periodicals. The essential facts as to these sets are given below:

Annales de la science agronomique (1884–1915) 1–32
Author set, $7.40; dictionary-catalog set, $14.77.

Landwirtschaftliche jahrbücher (1872–1914) 1–47
Author set, $17.30; dictionary-catalog set, $35.40.

Die landwirtschaftlichen versuchs-stationen (1859–1916) 1–88
Author set, $29.88; dictionary-catalog set, $58.43.

Headings for secondary entries are indicated on these cards, but cards with headings already supplied for secondary entries can not be furnished. Headings for secondary entries must be added after cards are received.

PROOF SHEETS OF CARDS ON AGRICULTURE

§ 9. Before the cards are printed sets of proof sheets are struck off. As the entries on the proof sheets are classified, it is possible to subscribe to the proof sheets on a particular subject. Under the heading "Titles from the U. S. Department of Agriculture" and "Plant and animal industry" about 500 strips of proof (five titles to the strip, usually) have been issued per year, on the average, since 1903. Under these headings appear the bulk[2] of the titles in which specialists in agriculture would be interested. Proof sheets are supplied in white paper or in rope manila paper as preferred. The latter is much more durable, but is about one-third thicker. Entries on the proof sheets are laid out card size so that they can be advantageously clipped to card size. Back sets of the proof sheets for agriculture can not be supplied. Current subscriptions to the proof sheets may begin at any time. The price per sheet containing five entries is 1c.

Although less satisfactory than cards for most uses, the proof sheets furnish a much less expensive record of the new books on agriculture received by the Library of Congress and the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

[1] Card numbers for the current accessions to the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture were given from 1902 to 1909 in "Accessions to the Department Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture," issued quarterly from 1894 to 1909 by the Library of the Department of Agriculture in its series of numbered bulletins, and were given in its "Monthly Bulletin" of accessions, 1910–June, 1913; since 1906 they have been given in "Monthly Catalogue of U. S. Public Documents," issued by the Superintendent of Documents. Card numbers so far as available were given in "Catalogue of publications relating to entomology in the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture," being numbers 55 and 76 of the series of bulletins referred to above, and in "Catalogue of publications relating to forestry in the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture."

[2] Books on agriculture from the historical and economic side are classed in the Social Sciences, and entries for such books consequently appear on the proof sheets for the Social Sciences. Entries for publications which relate to the technical side of irrigation appear on the proof sheets for Technology. Entries for bibliographies of agricultural topics appear on the proof sheets for Bibliography. Works which are of direct interest to specialists in agriculture also occasionally appear on the proof sheets for Science.

PRICE OF CARDS

§ 10. Variation in the price of the cards supplied by the Library of Congress affects only the first copy of the card; the charge for additional copies of any card supplied at the same time with the first is always 1c. each.

The price of the first copy of each card supplied for an author set or a dictionary-catalog set [1] of all the cards in stock for publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture is 1½c.; the price of the first copy of cards supplied in continuation of such a set is 2c.

The full author set (i. e. one copy of each card) of the cards now in stock for publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture contains about 9,500 cards and costs at this date (Jan. 1, 1918) about $142. The full dictionary-catalog set of these cards contains about 24,500 cards and costs about $290.

The dictionary-catalog sets are arranged ready for use when sent out. A set of printed guides (250 guides) for the dictionary-catalog set will be supplied for $5. The cost of the new cards issued each year for these sets is likely to be, approximately, $10 for the author set, $22 for the dictionary-catalog set.

The price of the first copy of each card supplied in an author set or a dictionary-catalog set of cards for the Farmers' Bulletins or Yearbooks is 1½c. The price of the first copy of each card supplied in continuation of a set for the Farmers' Bulletins or Yearbooks is 2c.

In the case of orders for cards for any of the other series named in § 2 the price of the first card is 2c., both for cards in stock and for cards supplied in continuation of the set.

The price of cards ordered by subject varies directly with the work required in selecting the cards, inversely with the number called for by the order. The price for the first copy of each card included in an author set or a dictionary-catalog set of cards in stock on agriculture for publications not issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture would be 1½c.

The usual price is charged for the first card for publications relating to agriculture when ordered by card number or by author and title, viz, 2c. if ordered by number, $.033 if ordered by author and title. For further information, see the pamphlet "L. C. Printed Cards," obtainable on application to the Librarian of Congress.

[1] Sets of cards for the publications of the Department of Agriculture are being supplied gratis to "land grant" agricultural colleges and experiment stations at the expense of the Department of Agriculture. Correspondence in regard to these sets should be addressed to "The Librarian of the Department of Agriculture."

PAYMENT

§ 11. Those already subscribing to cards should pay for the sets and classes of cards described in this bulletin as they pay for others. Individuals and firms are required to pay for the cards in advance and should always write for statement as to price and method of payment before sending money.

ARRANGEMENT OF FILES OF AGR. CARDS

§ 12. The cards for publications of the Department of Agriculture now being sent out by the Library of Congress, like those formerly sent out by the Library of the Department of Agriculture, are designed to be arranged in a dictionary catalog of the usual form. As this form of catalog is almost universal in American libraries no suggestions as to the general arrangement of the cards are offered, but two items connected with the arrangement of these cards call for special explanation.

1. On the cards sent out by the Library of Congress since 1906, the names of bureaus and divisions of the Department of Agriculture are given in their natural order (e. g. U. S. Department of agriculture. Bureau of chemistry), while on the cards sent out by the Library of the Department of Agriculture previous to 1906 the name of the bureau was inverted to bring the significant word first (e. g. U. S.—Agriculture, Dept. of—Chemistry, Bureau of). Libraries are advised to change headings on old cards to agree with those on new, so that all the entries under a bureau or division will come together.

2. Cards are occasionally sent out to replace cards already in the file. Such cards are marked "Revised" (previous to 1913 they were marked "Cancel" or "Additions"). When a card is received marked "Revised" it should be placed in the file and the defective card having the same card number removed. Sometimes the heading of the new card is slightly changed; occasionally it is the same as an added entry on the old card. When inserting a "revised" card filer should always look for and withdraw the previous issue of the card.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

CARD DIVISION

No. 14 (7th edition [1]) BULLETIN July 1, 1924

CARDS FOR THE PUBLICATIONS OF THE U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE AND FOR OTHER PUBLICATIONS ON AGRICULTURE

Printed and Distributed by the Library of Congress for the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

§ 1. The cards prepared by the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture for cataloging the publications of that department [2] have been printed and distributed by the Library of Congress since January 1, 1906. Besides printing cards for all of the publications of the Department of Agriculture issued since January, 1906, the Library of Congress has now reprinted the cards [3] previously printed and distributed by the Department of Agriculture. Analytical cards are now in stock at the Library of Congress for most of the publications of the Department of Agriculture for which it is practicable to print such cards.[4]

The cards are numbered into the regular series which the Library of Congress has been printing for the Library of the Department of Agriculture since 1902, e. g. Agr. 6–300. The series is referred to as the "Agr." series.

Inquiries as to the distribution of cards in the Agr. series should be addressed to the "Librarian of Congress". Inquiries as to the form or contents of cards in this series should be directed to the "Librarian of the U. S. Department of Agriculture".

[1] 1st edition was dated April 21, 1906; 2d edition, May 1, 1909; 3d edition, January, 1911; 4th edition, January 1, 1913; 5th edition, January 1, 1916; 6th edition, January 1, 1918.

[2] The card index of Experiment Station literature is not included in the cards printed and distributed by the Library of Congress. These are distributed by the Office of Experiment Stations. All inquiries as to them should be addressed to the "Chief of the Office of Experiment Stations, U. S. Department of Agriculture".

[3] Several hundred cards indexing composite publications, such as the bulletins of the Office of Experiment Stations containing the Proceedings of the Association of American Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations, have not been reprinted.

[4] The publications not yet covered by analytical cards which may eventually be covered by such cards are: Annual reports of the Office of Experiment Stations, 1896–; Annual reports of the Weather Bureau, 1891–; Experiment Station record, 1889– (editorials)

SERIES OF PUBLICATIONS OF THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE FOR WHICH ANALYTICAL CARDS ARE IN STOCK

§ 2. In the list of series below the fact that cards are in stock for a series complete[1] from a certain number to date is indicated by a dash following the number, e. g. 1–. When two numbers are connected by a dash it indicates that cards are in stock for the two numbers and all numbers between and that the series closed with number following dash. Date preceding the dash indicates the date of publication of the first number covered by cards in stock; date following the dash indicates the date of publication of the last number in a closed series. Main entry (or series) cards have been printed for all of these series and are included in the sets. Prices following each series are for author sets and dictionary sets on January 1, 1924.[2] Price of sets for current series at any date will be furnished on application.

[1] In this bulletin series are regarded as being completely covered by printed cards when cards have been printed for all the numbers for which it is now practicable to print cards. Hence no attempt is made to indicate that a number is not yet published, or forms a part of an incomplete publication for which no card has yet been issued, or is not to be cataloged with a printed card because it was issued for official use only. Information as to such facts, when deemed necessary, is supplied in separate form with shipments of cards.

[2] Price of author set is usually somewhat less than half that of dictionary set.

[3] Previous to 1899 these reports were not numbered. In that year a collection was made of 58 miscellaneous publications of the Department of Agriculture. These were numbered arbitrarily and the list printed on the cover of no. 59, the latter being the first of the collection to have a specific number printed on it. As papers in this list are reprinted they are given the number assigned to them in 1899. The list of these reports is also given in "Publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture from 1840 to June, 1901" (Bulletin 6 of the Division of Publications).

"AUTHOR SETS", "DICTIONARY-CATALOG SETS"

§ Specialists ordering the cards for bibliographical purposes, ordinarily desire an "author set" only, i. e. one copy of each card. Libraries having full sets of the publications usually order a "dictionary-catalog set", i. e. enough copies of each card to cover the main entry and the secondary entries[1] which are indicated on the card for a dictionary catalog. In ordering sets of cards it is therefore necessary to specify whether an author set or a dictionary-catalog set is desired.

HEADINGS ALREADY SUPPLIED FOR SECONDARY ENTRIES

§ 4. As a rule, the Library of Congress prints main entry cards only; but an exception has been made in the case of the cards for publications of the Department of Agriculture. Cards for secondary entries with headings already supplied can still be furnished in full sets of either current cards or cards in stock. The headings are printed in black ink.

EXCHANGE OF CARDS IN INDEX SIZE FOR CARDS IN STANDARD SIZE

§ 5. The printing of the matter on these cards in the upper portion of the standard sized card so that it could be cut to the index size was discontinued in December, 1914. They can no longer be supplied in the index size. To induce libraries that have a file in the index size to exchange it for a file in the standard size, the set complete to December 31, 1914, in the standard size will be supplied in exchange at the rate of 1 c. a card or $177.28 for the set.

METHOD OF ORDERING CARDS FOR PUBLICATIONS OF THE U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

§ 6. Libraries which obtain practically all of the publications of the Department of Agriculture will find it economical to order a set of cards for all of them, because the price per card is considerably lower if the entire set is taken (see § 10).

[1] In the case of cards for publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, title entry is included in the added entries indicated, if the title in question is "striking or memorable". Title entry for such titles was not included in the secondary entries indicated on other cards in the Agr. series until 1912. Since that date title entry has been regularly indicated.

Cards may, however, be ordered by series for any of the series listed in § 2.

Order may be submitted in the form of a letter, note, or order slip. As may be inferred from §§ 3–4 above, orders for cards for publications of the Department of Agriculture admit of a number of variations. Correspondence will be saved if subscribers specify carefully in their orders what cards are wanted.

Two sample orders are given below which cover the usual variations:

> Please send this library a dictionary-catalog set of cards for the publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, with headings supplied for secondary entries, with continuation.
>
> Please send me an author set of cards for Farmers' bulletins 1–1200.

OTHER CARDS ON AGRICULTURE

§ 7. The older books on agriculture at the Library of Congress have now been recataloged, and the entire collection, with the exception of pamphlets and other publications of minor importance, is now covered by printed cards in stock. Many of the older books on botany, entomology and zoology in the Library of the Department of Agriculture are covered by printed cards, but outside these classes, the books acquired by the Library of the Department of Agriculture before 1903 have not been systematically recataloged with printed cards. The whole number of cards now in stock for Agriculture (Plant and animal industry), in addition to about 11,500 cards for publications of the Department of Agriculture, is about 38,000.

OTHER METHODS OF ORDERING

[1] In Bulletins 16–19 will be found listed many additional series of publications relating to Agriculture for which analytical cards are being printed regularly. Bulletin 9 contains information as to sets of analytical cards for three agricultural periodicals. The essential facts as to these sets are given below, the price per card for these sets being .025 for first cards, .015 for others.

Annales de la science agronomique (1884–1923 +) 1–40 +
Author set, $14.775; dictionary-catalog set, $29.12.

Landwirtschaftliche jahrbücher (1872–1923 +) 1–47 +
Author set, $33.425; dictionary-catalog set, $65.66.

Die landwirtschaftlichen versuchs-stationen (1859–1923 +) 1–101 +
Author set, $53.50; dictionary-catalog set, $100.89

A fourth foreign agricultural periodical has since been analyzed for which cards are available:

Institut national agronomique, Paris. Annales. (1876–1900; 1903–1923 +) 1–16; 2 s. 1–17 +
Author set, $7.23; dictionary set, $12.47.

Headings for secondary entries are indicated on these cards, but cards with headings already supplied for secondary entries can not be furnished.

title", by "card number",[1] or by "subject". The first two methods of ordering, used chiefly by libraries, are described in "L. C. Printed Cards" and more fully in the Handbook of Card Distribution. Orders by subject will be accepted for cards on any topic in agriculture which can be specifically defined. Such orders may be restricted quantitatively in various ways, e. g. "Cards for all books on dairying published since 1900", but can not be restricted qualitatively, e. g. "Cards for the more important works on dairying".

PROOF SHEETS OF CARDS ON AGRICULTURE

§ 9. Before the cards are printed sets of proof sheets are struck off. As the entries on the proof sheets are classified, it is possible to subscribe to the proof sheets on a particular subject. Under the heading "Titles from the U. S. Department of Agriculture" and "Plant and animal industry" about 400 strips of proof (five titles to the strip, usually) have been issued per year, on the average, since 1903. Under these headings appear the bulk[2] of the titles in which specialists in agriculture would be interested. Proof sheets are supplied in white paper or in rope manila paper as preferred. The latter is much more durable, but is about one-third thicker. Entries on the proof sheets are laid out card size so that they can be advantageously clipped to card size. Back sets of the proof sheets for agriculture can not be supplied. Current subscriptions to the proof sheets may begin at any time. The price per sheet containing five entries is $.015.

Although less satisfactory than cards for most uses, the proof sheets furnish a much less expensive record of the new books on agriculture received by the Library of Congress and the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

[1] Card numbers for the current accessions to the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture were given from 1902 to 1909 in "Accessions to the Department Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture", issued quarterly from 1894 to 1909 by the Library of the Department of Agriculture in its series of numbered bulletins, and were given in its "Monthly Bulletin" of accessions, 1910–June, 1913; since 1906 they have been given in "Monthly Catalogue of U. S. Public Documents", issued by the Superintendent of Documents. Card numbers so far as available were given in "Catalogue of publications relating to entomology in the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture", and in "Catalogue of publications relating to forestry in the Library of the U. S. Department of Agriculture", being numbers 55 and 76 of the series of bulletins referred to above.

[2] Books on agriculture from the historical and economic side are classed in the Social Sciences, and entries for such books consequently appear on the proof sheets for the Social Sciences. Entries for publications which relate to the technical side of irrigation appear on the proof sheets for Technology. Entries for bibliographies of agricultural topics appear on the proof sheets for Bibliography. Works which are of direct interest to specialists in agriculture also occasionally appear on the proof sheets for Science.

PRICE OF CARDS

§ 10. Variation in the price of the cards supplied by the Library of Congress affects only the first copy of the card; the charge for additional copies of any card supplied at the same time with the first is $.015 each.

The price of the first copy of each card supplied for an author set or a dictionary-catalog set of all the cards in stock for publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture is $.025; the price of the first copy of cards supplied in continuation of such a set is also $.025.

The full author set (i. e. one copy of each card) of the cards in stock on January 1, 1924, for publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture contains 11,514 cards and costs $230.28. The full dictionary-catalog set of these cards contains 34,174 cards and costs $524.86.

The cost of the new cards issued each year for these sets is likely to be, approximately, $10 for the author set, $25 for the dictionary-catalog set.

The price of the first copy of each card supplied in a full author set or a full dictionary-catalog set of cards for the Farmers' Bulletins or Yearbooks is $.025. The price of the first copy of each card supplied in continuation of these sets is also $.025.

In the case of orders for full sets of cards for any of the other series named in § 2 the price of the first card is $.03 for cards in stock and $.04 for cards supplied in continuation of the set.

The price of cards ordered by subject varies directly with the work required in selecting the cards, inversely with the number called for by the order. The usual price is $.04. The price for the first copy of each card included in an author set or a dictionary-catalog set of cards in stock on agriculture for publications not issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture would be $.03.

The usual price is charged for the first card for publications relating to agriculture when ordered by card number or by author and title, viz, $.025 if ordered by number, $.045 if ordered by author and title. For further information, see the pamphlet "L. C. Printed Cards", obtainable on application to the Librarian of Congress.

GUIDES

§ 11. Guides for the complete dictionary catalog set of cards for publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture are carried in stock. All of the guides are center halves, cut from first quality bristol stock, with headings printed in 11 point antique type, all capitals for subjects, capitals and lower case for authors and titles. Sample sent on application. Price $.025 each, or $12.18 for the full set of 487 guides.

PAYMENT

§ 12. Those already subscribing to cards should pay for the sets and classes of cards described in this bulletin as they pay for others. Individuals and firms are required to pay for the cards in advance and should always write for statement as to price and method of payment before sending money.

REVISED CARDS

§ 13. When a card for a publication of the U. S. Department of Agriculture is revised, a copy of the improved card is sent gratis to holders of complete sets of these cards. The main card containing a correction is always sent. If any of the indicated secondary entries are changed, a card with the corrected heading printed on is also supplied, but if the change does not affect any of the secondary headings, only the main card is sent.

These revised cards should be substituted in the file for the cards previously furnished. If the heading is so changed that the card cannot be found with a reasonable amount of search, an "Entry changed notice" is sent with it, otherwise it should be searched for under the same heading or a slightly varying heading. It is very necessary that the incorrect card be removed when the correct card is put in.

CARDS FOR THE PUBLICATIONS OF THE U. S. GEOLOGICAL SURVEY AND THE STATE SURVEYS

Printed and Distributed by the Library of Congress for the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey

§1. Attention is called in this bulletin to the cards which are being printed by the Library of Congress from copy furnished by the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey.

Cards from this source are now in stock for the four series of monographs published by the U. S. Geological Survey, for publications covering the majority of the state surveys, and for those on the general survey of Canada.

It is probable that the remainder of the publications relating to the survey of North America will be finished within a year. Publications relating to the surveys of other continents will then be taken up.

The cards printed from copy furnished by the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey are numbered separately; e. g., G S 6–300. The series is conveniently referred to as the "G S" series.

Inquiries as to the form or contents of cards in this series should be directed to the "Librarian of the U. S. Geological Survey." All inquiries as to the distribution of the cards should be addressed to the "Librarian of Congress."

CARDS NOT IN STOCK FOR THE ANNUAL REPORTS OF THE U. S. GEOLOGICAL SURVEY

§2. Many of the scientific papers of the U. S. Survey published between 1880–1901 were incorporated in its annual reports for these years. These reports are at present represented in the L. C. stock by a single open-entry card only. It is possible that analytical cards for them will be printed later and carried in stock by the Library of Congress. Libraries which desire to obtain sets of cards for these reports are invited to file requests with the Library of Congress.

SETS OF CARDS FOR PUBLICATIONS OF GEOLOGICAL SURVEYS

§3. Libraries having full sets of publications relating to the U. S. Survey or any of the state and territorial surveys will probably find it advantageous to order cards in "complete sets" (see below).

Specialists desiring the cards for bibliographical purposes only will ordinarily desire an "author set" only (i. e. one copy of each card).

All of the cards in stock for publications relating to geological surveys have subject and added entries indicated on them.

When cards are supplied in "complete sets," unless a different number of cards is requested, one card is supplied for the main entry and one card for each of the added entries indicated.

Title entry is not included in the added entries indicated. Libraries which are accustomed to use title cards freely for government documents may find it advantageous to order an extra card for title entry in every case.

If cards are desired in continuation of sets, a statement to this effect should be included in the order.

ITEMIZATION OF SETS AND PRICES

§4. In connection with the itemization of sets and prices given below, the following facts should be noted:

The prices of author sets are given in the first column, the prices of complete sets in the second column.

Prices of sets are corrected to May 15, 1906, but inasmuch as publications are issued at frequent intervals by the U. S. Survey and are likely to be issued at any time by state surveys, the cost of sets ordered later is likely to exceed the prices as stated below.

Only such series or surveys are included as are entirely covered by cards now in stock at the Library of Congress.

In the sets for state and territorial surveys cards are included for publications of the U. S. Survey which are concerned with the survey of the state or territory in question. In the case of the territories and states which have instituted no survey, the cards in stock are of course for publications of the U. S. Survey exclusively. Libraries can have cards for the publications of the U. S. Survey excluded from sets for state surveys, providing that their order contains a specific request that they be excluded.

CARDS FOR SURVEYS TO BE CATALOGED LATER

§5. Orders may be given at once for cards to be printed hereafter for other surveys. If the cards for all of the publications relating to a survey are shipped at one time when the cataloging is completed, the price will be 1c. for the first card; but if it is desired that they be shipped as fast as printed, the price for the first card will be 2c. In other respects, orders for sets of cards to be supplied later are subject to the same conditions as orders for sets already in stock.

TRAVELING SETS OF THE CARDS

§6. Libraries which have partial sets only of geological survey publications and libraries which desire to indicate number of cards wanted after an examination of the card itself, can perhaps use to advantage a traveling set of cards covering the surveys in which they are interested. Those desiring such sets must specify the items in §4 which they desire to have covered by the set. Libraries using these sets must conform to the following: (1) Use and return sets promptly, (2) Return sets arranged in the same order as when received, (3) Order by card number, in the usual way (see Bulletin 10) the number of copies of each card desired, (4) Guard against unintentional duplication resulting from the inclusion of cards for publications of the U. S. Survey in the sets for state surveys.

Several hundred cards relating to geological surveys are now in stock which are not covered by the itemization in §4, viz: (1) Cards for minor publications of the U. S. Geological Survey and for extracts from its regular publications. (2) Cards for publications of state surveys not yet fully cataloged. (3) Cards for extracts from the reports of the earlier surveys instituted by the U. S. Government. Libraries desiring to inspect this collection of cards should apply for the traveling set of "Miscellaneous cards on geological surveys." If desired, the miscellaneous cards of either class named will be sent separately.

CARDS FOR WORKS IN THE LIBRARY OF THE U. S. GEOLOGICAL SURVEY

§7. Since 1904 cards have been printed regularly for the accessions to the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey. As the Library of the Survey purchases freely publications having to do with geology and related topics (e. g. mineralogy, petrology, paleontology), libraries will obtain a high percentage of cards from orders for works in this field.

PRICE OF CARDS

§8. Variation in the price of L. C. cards affects only the "first card." The charge for additional copies of any card, supplied at the same time with the first, is always ½c.

The price for the first copy of each card supplied in the sets itemized in §4 is 1c. The price for the first copy of cards supplied in continuation of these sets will be 1c. in the case of the U. S. Survey, 2c. in the case of state surveys.

The usual price will be charged for the first card for publications relating to geological surveys if ordered otherwise than in sets, viz: 2½c. if ordered by the author and title; 2c. if ordered by series (e. g., Alabama. Geological survey. Bulletin); 2c. if ordered by card number (see §9).

CARD NUMBERS FOR PUBLICATIONS OF THE U. S. GEOLOGICAL SURVEY

§9. Card numbers for the publications of the U. S. Geological Survey have been given in the monthly Catalog of U. S. Public Documents, issued by the Superintendent of Documents, since January, 1906. Following the card number (with a slanting line between the two) is given a number indicating the number of cards required for the main entry and the added entries suggested on the card for the document in question. To order cards it is necessary to give merely the card number and the number following, e. g., G S 6–320/2. For full explanation of other methods of indicating number of cards wanted, see Bulletin No. 12.

PAYMENT FOR CARDS

§10. The most satisfactory method of paying for cards is to make a deposit of $1 or more according to the amount of cards to be purchased. The initial deposit should be large enough to cover cost of cards called for by initial shipment and leave a margin to cover cost of future shipments. When the deposit is exhausted, a notice to that effect will be sent. Remittances should be made payable to "The Librarian of Congress."

CARDS FOR THE PUBLICATIONS OF THE U. S. GEOLOGICAL SURVEY AND THE STATE SURVEYS

Printed and Distributed by the Library of Congress for the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey

§1. Attention is called in this bulletin to the cards which are being printed by the Library of Congress from copy furnished by the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey. Since 1904 cards have been regularly printed for the current accessions to the Library of the Survey. In addition, a large portion of the official publications of American and foreign surveys are now covered by printed cards in stock. These include, as a rule, analytical cards for the larger contributions and main entry cards for reports and sets of reports containing shorter papers. About 3,600 cards are now in stock for such surveys, comprising cards for: (1) the five series of monographs published by the present U. S. survey and the papers included in its annual reports from 1882 to 1902; (2) the publications of the earlier U. S. geological surveys; (3) all of the surveys thus far instituted by the States of U. S. A.; (4) the national surveys of Canada, Norway, and Sweden; (5) the surveys of the Australian provinces of New South Wales, Queensland, Victoria, and Western Australia. The surveys for the other provinces of Australia are in process of cataloging and cards for them will probably be in stock by the end of 1909. The geological surveys of Great Britain, Germany, and other European countries will then be cataloged.

The cards printed from copy furnished by the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey are numbered separately; e. g., G S 6–300. The series is conveniently referred to as the "G S" series.

Inquiries as to the form or contents of cards in this series should be directed to the "Librarian of the U. S. Geological Survey." Inquiries as to the distribution of the cards should be addressed to the "Librarian of Congress."

"AUTHOR SETS;" "DICTIONARY-CATALOG SETS"

§2. Specialists ordering cards for bibliographical purposes, ordinarily desire an "author set" only (i. e., one copy of each card).

[1] First edition was dated May 15, 1906.

85359—09

Libraries having full sets of the publications of geological surveys usually order a "dictionary-catalog set," i. e., enough copies of each card to cover the main entry and the secondary entries [1] for a dictionary catalog which are indicated on the card.

PRICES OF SETS OF G. S. CARDS

§3. Prices of sets are based on the prices charged for single cards as stated in §5. They are corrected to May 1, 1909, but inasmuch as publications are issued at frequent intervals by the U. S. Geological Survey and are likely to be issued at any time by the state surveys, the cost of sets ordered later is likely to exceed prices stated below.[2]

The sets for state and territorial surveys do not include cards for publications of the U. S. Geological Survey which are concerned with the geology of the state or territory in question. Cards for such publications will be included with the set for the state survey only when order contains a specific request that they be included.

[1] Title entry is not included in the added entries indicated on the G. S. cards. Libraries which use title cards freely may find it desirable to order an extra copy for title entry.

[2] Price of sets is sometimes increased or decreased slightly by the reprinting of cards with a longer or shorter entry or a greater or less number of headings for secondary entries.

[3] In the case of the annual reports of the Wheeler Survey and the annual reports and bulletins of the Hayden Survey, cards have been printed for the set only. Analytical cards may be issued later for the reports and bulletins of the Hayden Survey, but they are not likely to be issued for those of the Wheeler Survey. A list of the publications of these four surveys will be found in "Catalogue and Index of the Publications of the Hayden, King, Powell, and Wheeler Surveys," by L. F. Schmeckebier, published as Bulletin 222 of the U. S. Geological Survey. Excluding maps, all of the other publications of these four surveys listed in Schmeckebier's Catalogue are covered with the exception of the one listed as No. 1 of the Unclassified publications of the Wheeler Survey. No copy of this is now available for cataloging.

[4] The majority of the cards for these are for the papers issued as separates. These can, however, be used as analyticals, either without change or with slight changes in ms. as preferred.

SUBJECT ORDERS FOR CARDS ON GEOLOGY

§ 4. Although the collections on geology at the Library of Congress and in the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey are as yet only partly recataloged, there are now in stock at the Library of Congress, in addition to about 3,600 cards for official publications of surveys, about 4,200 cards for other publications on geology, paleontology, mineralogy, and mineral industries, comprising: (1) Books received by copyright at the Library of Congress since July, 1898; (2) books received by purchase or exchange at the Library of Congress since January, 1901; (3) books received by the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey since 1904; (4) books in the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey in the classes Mineralogy, Petrology, and General Geology. These cards may be ordered by author and title, by card number, by series, or by subject. The first three methods of ordering are used chiefly by libraries and are fully described in other publications of the Card Section.[3] Orders by subject will be accepted for cards on any well-defined topic in Geology. Specialists may order, in addition to the cards for the official publications of a state survey, cards for the publications of the U. S. Survey relating to the geology of that state and cards for all miscellaneous publications relating to the geology of that state.

PRICE OF CARDS

§ 5. Variation in the price of the cards supplied by the Library of Congress affects only the "first copy of the card." The charge for additional copies of any card supplied at the same time with the first is always ½c. each.

[1] The sets for the surveys of Canada, Norway, and Sweden are nearly complete.

[2] The sets for New South Wales, Victoria, and Western Australia are nearly complete. Those for Queensland are incomplete, but missing numbers will be cataloged as soon as they can be procured by the Survey library.

[3] Methods of ordering by author and title and by card number are fully explained in the Handbook of Card Distribution; orders by series are explained in Bulletin 16.

The price for the first copy of each card supplied in the sets itemized in § 3 is 1c. The price for the first copy of cards supplied in continuation of these sets is 2c.

The price of cards ordered by subject varies directly with the work required in selecting the cards, inversely with the number called for by the order. The price of the first copy of each card in an "author set" or a "dictionary-catalog set" of all the cards in stock on geology would be 1c. per card. The price of cards for all U. S. Geological Survey publications relating to the geology of a state, if ordered with cards for the publications of the state survey, would be 1c. for the first copy of each card in stock, 2c. for the first copy of current cards supplied as printed. The same price would be charged for cards for miscellaneous publications relating to a state survey.

The usual price will be chargd for the first card for publications of geological surveys if ordered otherwise than in sets or by subject, viz, 2½c. if ordered by the author and title; 2c. if ordered by series; 2c. if ordered by card number. (See above, §4, footnote 3.)

PAYMENT FOR CARDS

§ 6. Institutions which are already ordering cards for other purposes should pay for the cards noted in this bulletin as they pay for others. Other institutions are requested to pay for cards in advance if practicable; if not practicable, payment may be made at intervals, and bills will be rendered as desired.

Payment in advance is required in the case of individuals ordering cards for their own use. If an individual desires to order a set of cards with continuation, the price of the set as given in § 3 plus a margin to cover the cost of current shipments for at least three months should accompany the order. But if the order is for a set without continuation, the price of the set to date should first be ascertained and then the exact amount remitted.

If an individual desires to place a subject order for cards, an estimate of the cost of the cards should be obtained before any remittance is made. Full directions as to payment will be supplied with the estimate.

No. 15 (3d edition[1]) BULLETIN DEC. 15, 1910

CARDS FOR THE PUBLICATIONS OF THE U. S. GEOLOGICAL SURVEY AND THE STATE SURVEYS

Printed and Distributed by the Library of Congress for the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey.

§1. Attention is called in this bulletin to the cards which are being printed by the Library of Congress from copy furnished by the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey. Since 1904 cards have been regularly printed for the current accessions to the Library of the Survey. In addition, practically all of the official publications of American surveys and those for some of the foreign surveys are now covered by printed cards in stock. These include, as a rule, analytical cards for the larger contributions and main entry cards for reports and sets of reports containing shorter papers. About 4,400 cards are now in stock for such surveys, comprising cards for: (1) the five series of monographs published by the present U. S. survey and the papers included in its annual reports from 1882 to 1902; (2) the publications of the earlier U. S. geological surveys; (3) all of the surveys thus far instituted by the States of U. S. A.; (4) the national surveys of Canada, Denmark, Great Britain, Norway, Prussia, and Sweden; (5) the surveys of the Australian provinces.

The cards printed from copy furnished by the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey are numbered separately; e. g., G S 6–300. The series is conveniently referred to as the "G S" series.

Inquiries as to the form or contents of cards in this series should be directed to the "Librarian of the U. S. Geological Survey." Inquiries as to the distribution of the cards should be addressed to the "Librarian of Congress."

"AUTHOR SETS"; "DICTIONARY-CATALOG SETS"

§2. Specialists ordering cards for bibliographical purposes, ordinarily desire an "author set" only (i. e., one copy of each card). Libraries having full sets of the publications of geological surveys usually order a "dictionary-catalog set," i. e., enough copies of each card to cover the main entry and the secondary entries[2] for a dictionary catalog which are indicated on the card.

---

[1] First edition was dated May 15, 1906; second edition, May 15, 1909.

PRICES OF SETS OF G. S. CARDS

§3. Prices of sets are based on the prices charged for single cards as stated in §5. They are corrected to December 15, 1910, but inasmuch as publications are issued at frequent intervals by the U. S. Geological Survey and are likely to be issued at any time by the state surveys, the cost of sets ordered later is likely to exceed prices stated below.[1]

The sets for state and territorial surveys do not include cards for publications of the U. S. Geological Survey which are concerned with the geology of the state or territory in question. Cards for such publications will be included with the set for the state survey only when order contains a specific request that they be included.

EARLIER U. S. SURVEYS

	Author set.	Dictionary-catalog set.
Geological and geographical survey of the territories (Hayden)[2]	$0.59	$1.45
Geological exploration of the fortieth parallel (King)	.14	.42
Geographical and geological survey of the Rocky Mountain region (Powell)	.37	1.10
Geographical surveys west of the 100th meridian (Wheeler)[2]	.74	2.16

Miscellaneous unelassified publications	.75	1.72

[1] Price of sets is sometimes increased or decreased slightly by the reprinting of cards with a longer or shorter entry or a greater or less number of headings for secondary entries.

[2] In the case of the annual reports of the Wheeler Survey and the annual reports and bulletins of the Hayden Survey, cards have been printed for the set only. Analytical cards may be issued later for the reports and bulletins of the Hayden Survey, but they are not likely to be issued for those of the Wheeler Survey. A list of the publications of these four surveys will be found in "Catalogue and Index of the Publications of the Hayden, King, Powell, and Wheeler Surveys," by L. F. Schmeckebier, published as Bulletin 222 of the U. S. Geological Survey. Excluding maps, all of the other publications of these four surveys listed in Schmeckebier's Catalogue are covered with the exception of the one listed as No. 1 of the Unclassified publications of the Wheeler Survey. No copy of this is now available for cataloging.

[3] The majority of the cards for these are for the papers issued as separates. These can, however, be used as analyticals, either without change or with slight changes in ms. as preferred.

SUBJECT ORDERS FOR CARDS ON GEOLOGY

§ 4. Although the collections on geology at the Library of Congress and in the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey are as yet only partly recataloged, there are now in stock at the Library of Congress, in addition to about 4,400 cards for official publications of surveys, about 5,000 cards for other publications on geology, paleontology, mineralogy, and mineral industries, comprising: (1) Books received by copyright at the Library of Congress since July, 1898; (2) books received by purchase or exchange at the Library of Congress since January, 1901; (3) books received by the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey since 1904; (4) books in the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey in the classes Mineralogy, Petrology, and General Geology. These cards may be ordered by author and title, by card number, by series, or by subject. The first three methods of ordering are used chiefly by libraries and are fully described in other publications of the Card Section.[2] Orders by subject will be accepted for cards on any well-defined topic in geology. Specialists may order, in addition to the cards for the official publications of a State survey, cards for the publications of the U. S. Survey relating to the geology of that State and cards for all miscellaneous publications relating to the geology of that State.

PRICE OF CARDS

§ 5. Variation in the price of the cards supplied by the Library of Congress affects only the "first copy of the card." The charge for additional copies of any card supplied at the same time with the first is always $\frac{7}{10}$c. each.

[1] These sets are nearly, but not absolutely, complete. Titles of out of print publications are added from time to time as the publications are received.

[2] Methods of ordering and using the cards are fully explained in the pamphlet "L. C. Printed Cards"; additional details needed by libraries are supplied in the Handbook of Card Distribution.

The price for the first copy of each card supplied in the sets itemized n § 3 is $.012. The price for the first copy of cards supplied in continuation of these sets is 2c.

The price of cards ordered by subject varies directly with the work equired in selecting the cards, inversely with the number called for y the order. The price of the first copy of each card in an "author et" or a "dictionary-catalog set" of all the cards in stock on geology would be $.012 per card. The price of cards for all U. S. Geological Survey publications relating to the geology of a State, if ordered with ards for the publications of the State survey, would be $.012 for the irst copy of each card in stock, 2c. for the first copy of current cards upplied as printed. The same price would be charged for cards for niscellaneous publications relating to a State survey.

The usual price will be charged for the first card for publications f geological surveys if ordered otherwise than in sets or by subject, iz, $.028 if ordered by the author and title; 2c. if ordered by series; c. if ordered by card number. (See above, § 4, footnote 2.)

PAYMENT

§ 6. Those already subscribing to cards should pay for the sets nd classes of cards described in this bulletin as they pay for others. ndividuals and firms are required to pay for cards in advance and hould always write for statement as to price and method of payment efore sending money.

CARDS FOR THE PUBLICATIONS OF GEOLOGICAL SURVEYS AND BUREAUS OF MINES

Printed and Distributed by the Library of Congress for the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey.

§ 1. Attention is called in this bulletin to the cards which have been printed by the Library of Congress from copy furnished by the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey. Since 1904 cards have been regularly printed for the current accessions to the Library of the Survey. In addition, practically all of the official publications of American surveys and those for most of the foreign surveys are now covered by printed cards in stock. These include, as a rule, analytical cards for the larger contributions and main entry cards for reports and sets of reports containing shorter papers. About 6,600 cards are now in stock for such surveys, comprising cards for: (1) the five series of monographs published by the present U. S. Survey and the papers included in its annual reports from 1882 to 1902; (2) the publications of the earlier U. S. geological surveys; (3) the publications of the surveys instituted by the States of U. S. A.; (4) publications of bureaus of mines of the States of U. S. A.; (5) most of the publications of the surveys and bureaus of mines of foreign countries.

The cards printed from copy furnished by the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey are numbered separately; e. g., G S 6–300. The series is referred to as the "G S" series.

AUTHOR SETS; DICTIONARY-CATALOG SETS

§ 2. Specialists ordering cards for bibliographical purposes, ordinarily desire an "author set" only (i. e., one copy of each card). Libraries having full sets of the publications of geological surveys usually order a "dictionary-catalog set," i. e., enough copies of each card to cover the main entry and the secondary entries for a dictionary catalog which are indicated on the card.

[1] First edition was dated May 15, 1906; second edition, May 15, 1909; third edition, Dec. 15, 1910.

SETS OF CARDS FOR PUBLICATIONS OF GEOLOGICAL SURVEYS

§ 3. Prices of the sets of cards listed below are based on the charge for single cards as stated in § 5. They are corrected to December 31, 1915.

The number of cards in the sets for series still current will, of course, increase, so that the price of the cards for such sets is likely to exceed the price as given below. The price of sets for noncurrent publications sometimes varies slightly on account of the reprinting of entries on a greater or less number of cards. For further information as to price see § 5.

No copy of this is now available for cataloging.

[2] Sets of cards for publications of the U. S. Geological Survey which are concerned with the geology of a state or territory are itemized under states below.

[3] The majority of the cards for these are for the papers issued as separates. These can, however, be used as analyticals, either without change or with slight changes in ms. as preferred. The annual reports after No. 22 (1902) became administrative reports only, so no analytics are required for them.

[1] Comparatively few of the publications of the surveys and bureaus of mines of Russia and Japan have been covered by printed cards. Substantially all of the publications of the surveys and bureaus of mines of other countries that are in the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey are covered by cards in stock.

[2] The publications of the Canadian Geological survey and Bureau of mines are issued in such form that it is impracticable to separate the two. Altho the cards for the publications of the geological survey and bureau of mines of other countries have been separated, the line of separation is often not clear and it is recommended that the cards for publications of the bureau of mines be always ordered with those for the survey.

S. Geological Survey since 1904; (3) all books in the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey in he classes Mineralogy, Petrology, General geology, Historical geology, and most of those in Economic geology. These cards may be ordered by author and title, by card number, by series, or by subject. The first three methods of ordering are used chiefly by libraries and are fully described in other publications of the Card Division.[1] In addition to the sets relating to the geology of States and countries listed above, orders by subject will be accepted for cards on any well-defined topic in geology (e. g., petroleum)

PRICE OF CARDS

§ 5. Variation in the price of the cards supplied by the Library of Congress affects only the "first copy of the card." The charge for additional copies of any card supplied at the same time with the first is $^{8}/_{10}$ c. each.

The price for the first copy of each card supplied in the sets itemized in § 3 is $.012. The price for the first copy of cards in continuation of these sets is 2 c.

The price of cards ordered by subject varies directly with the work required in selecting the cards, inversely with the number called for by the order. The price of the first copy of each card in an "author set" or a "dictionary-catalog set" of all the cards in stock on geology would be $.012 per card. The price of cards for all U. S. Geological Survey publications relating to the geology of a State, if ordered with cards for the publications of the State survey, would be $.012 for the first copy of each card in stock, 2 c. for the first copy of current cards supplied as printed. The same price would be charged for cards for miscellaneous publications relating to a State survey.

The usual price will be charged for the first card for publications of geological surveys if ordered otherwise than in sets or by subject, viz, 3 c. if ordered by the author and title; 2 c. if ordered by series; 2 c. if ordered by card number.

For further information as to price and methods of ordering see the pamphlet L. C. Printed Cards, to be obtained gratis on application to the Librarian of Congress.

PAYMENT

§ 6. Those already subscribing to cards should pay for the sets and classes of cards described in this bulletin as they pay for others. Individuals and firms are required to pay for cards in advance and should always ascertain price before sending money.

No. 15 (5th edition [1]) BULLETIN January 15, 1918

CARDS FOR THE PUBLICATIONS OF GEOLOGICAL SURVEYS AND BUREAUS OF MINES

Printed and Distributed by the Library of Congress for the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey.

§1. Attention is called in this bulletin to the cards which have been printed by the Library of Congress from copy furnished by the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey. Since 1904 cards have been regularly printed for the current accessions to the Library of the Survey. In addition, practically all of the official publications of American surveys and those for most of the foreign surveys are now covered by printed cards in stock. These include, as a rule, analytical cards for the larger contributions and main entry cards for reports and sets of reports containing shorter papers. About 7,300 cards are now in stock for such surveys, comprising cards for: (1) the five series of monographs published by the present U. S. Survey and the papers included in its annual reports from 1882 to 1902; (2) the publications of the earlier U. S. geological surveys; (3) the publications of the surveys instituted by the States of U. S. A.; (4) publications of bureaus of mines of the States of U. S. A.; (5) most of the publications of the surveys and bureaus of mines of foreign countries.

The cards printed from copy furnished by the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey are numbered separately; e. g., G S 6–300. The series is referred to as the "G S" series.

AUTHOR SETS; DICTIONARY-CATALOG SETS

§2. Specialists ordering cards for bibliographical purposes, ordinarily desire an "author set" only (i. e., one copy of each card). Libraries having full sets of the publications of geological surveys usually order a "dictionary-catalog set," i. e., enough copies of each card to cover the main entry and the secondary entries for a dictionary catalog which are indicated on the card.

[1] First edition was dated May 15, 1906; second edition, May 15, 1909; third edition, Dec. 15, 1910; fourth edition, Jan. 15, 1916.

SETS OF CARDS FOR PUBLICATIONS OF GEOLOGICAL SURVEYS

§ 3. Prices of the sets of cards listed below are based on the charge for single cards as stated in § 5. They are corrected to December 31, 1917.

The number of cards in the sets for series still current will, of course, increase, so that the price of the cards for such sets is likely to exceed the price as given below. The price of sets for noncurrent publications sometimes varies slightly on account of the reprinting of entries on a greater or less number of cards. For further information as to price see § 5.

[1] In the case of the annual reports of the Wheeler Survey and the annual reports and bulletins of the Hayden Survey, cards have been printed for the set only. Analytical cards may be issued later for the reports and bulletins of the Hayden Survey, but they are not likely to be issued for those of the Wheeler Survey. A list of the publications of these four surveys will be found in "Catalogue and Index of the Publications of the Hayden, King, Powell, and Wheeler Surveys," by L. F. Schmeckebier, published as Bulletin 222 of the U. S. Geological Survey. Excluding maps, all of the other publications of these four surveys listed in Schmeckebier's Catalogue are covered with the exception of the one listed as No. 1 of the Unclassified publications of the Wheeler Survey. No copy of this is now available for cataloging.

[2] Sets of cards for publications of the U. S. Geological Survey which are concerned with the geology of a state or territory are itemized under states below.

[3] The majority of the cards for these are for the papers issued as separates. These can, however, be used as analyticals, either without change or with slight changes in ms. as preferred. The annual reports after No. 22 (1902) became administrative reports only, so no analytics are required for them.

[1] Comparatively few of the publications of the surveys and bureaus of mines of Russia and Japan have been covered by printed cards. Substantially all of the publications of the surveys and bureaus of mines of other countries that are in the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey are covered by cards in stock.

[2] The publications of the Canadian Geological survey and Bureau of mines are issued in such form that it is impracticable to separate the two. Altho the cards for the publications of the geological survey and bureau of mines of other countries have been separated, the line of separation is often not clear and it is recommended that the cards for publications of the bureau of mines be always ordered with those for the survey.

SUBJECT ORDERS FOR CARDS ON GEOLOGY

§4. Although the collection on geology in the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey is not wholly recataloged, there are now in stock at the Library of Congress, in addition to about 7,300 cards for official publications of surveys, about 9,000 cards for other publications on geology, paleontology, mineralogy, and mineral industries, comprising: (1) all books on geology at the Library of Congress; (2) all books received by the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey since 1904; (3) all books in the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey in the classes Mineralogy, Petrology, General geology, Historical geology, and most of those in Economic geology. These cards may be ordered by author and title, by card number, by series, or by subject. The first three methods of ordering are used chiefly by libraries and are fully described in other publications of the Card Division.[1] In addition to the sets relating to the geology of States and countries listed above, orders by subject will be accepted for cards on any well-defined topic in geology (e. g., petroleum).

PRICE OF CARDS

§ 5. Variation in the price of the cards supplied by the Library of Congress affects only the "first copy of the card." The charge for additional copies of any card supplied at the same time with the first is 1c. each.

The price for the first copy of each card supplied in the sets itemized in § 3 is 2c. The price for the first copy of cards in continuation of these sets is 2c.

The price of cards ordered by subject varies directly with the work required in selecting the cards, inversely with the number called for by the order. The price of the first copy of each card in an "author set" or a "dictionary-catalog set" of all the cards in stock on geology would be 1½c. per card. The price of cards for all U. S. Geological Survey publications relating to the geology of a State, if ordered with cards for the publications of the State survey, would be 2c. for the first copy of each card in stock, 2c. for the first copy of current cards supplied as printed. The same price would be charged for cards for miscellaneous publications relating to a State survey.

The usual price will be charged for the first card for publications of geological surveys if ordered otherwise than in sets or by subject, viz, $.033 if ordered by the author and title; 2c. if ordered by series; 2c. if ordered by card number.

For further information as to price and methods of ordering see the pamphlet L. C. Printed Cards, to be obtained gratis on application to the Librarian of Congress.

[1] Comparatively few of the publications of the surveys and bureaus of mines of Russia and Japan have been covered by printed cards. Substantially all of the publications of the surveys and bureaus of mines of other countries that are in the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey are covered by cards in stock.

[2] The publications of the Canadian Geological Survey and Bureau of Mines are issued in such form that it is impracticable to separate the two. Altho the cards for the publications of the geological survey and bureau of mines of other countries have been separated, the line of separation is often not clear and it is recommended that the cards for publications of the bureau of mines be always ordered with those for the survey.

SUBJECT ORDERS FOR CARDS ON GEOLOGY

§4. Although the collection on geology in the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey is not wholly recataloged, there are now in stock at the Library of Congress, in addition to about 8,200 cards for official publications of surveys, about 14,300 cards for other publications on geology, paleontology, mineralogy, and mineral industries, comprising: (1) all books on geology at the Library of Congress; (2) all books received by the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey since 1904; (3) all books in the Library of the U. S. Geological Survey in the classes Mineralogy, Petrology, General geology, Historical geology, and most of those in Economic geology. These cards may be ordered by author and title, by card number, by series, or by subject. The first three methods of ordering are used chiefly by libraries and are fully described in other publications of the Card Division.[1] In addition to the sets relating to the geology of States and countries listed above, orders by subject will be accepted for cards on any well-defined topic in geology (e. g., petroleum).

PRICE OF CARDS

§5. Variation in the price of the cards supplied by the Library of Congress affects only the "first copy of the card". The charge for additional copies of any card supplied at the same time with the first is $.015 each.

The price for the first copy of each card supplied for the series and sets itemized on pages 2–5 is $.03. The price for the first copy of cards in continuation of these series and sets is $.04.

The price of cards ordered by subject varies directly with the work required in selecting the cards, inversely with the number called for by the order. The price of the first copy of each card in an "author set" or a "dictionary-catalog set" of all the cards in stock on geology would be $.03 per card. For ordinary orders by subject, ex. "All cards relating to coal" the price would be $.04 a card.

The usual price will be charged for the first card for publications of geological surveys if ordered otherwise than by series or by subject, viz, $.045 if ordered by the author and title; $.025 if ordered by card number.

For further information as to price and methods of ordering see the pamphlet L. C. Printed Cards, to be obtained gratis on application to the Librarian of Congress.

PAYMENT

§6. Those already subscribing to cards should pay for the sets and classes of cards described in this bulletin as they pay for others. Individuals and firms are required to pay for cards in advance and should always ascertain price before sending money.

[1] The various methods of ordering are explained in the pamphlet L. C. Printed Cards. Further details are given in Handbook of Card Distribution.

ORDERS BY SERIES FOR CARDS FOR BOOKS AND MONOGRAPHS IN SERIES

Being a Restatement of Matter in Bulletin 4 and an Introduction to Bulletins 17–19

GENERAL STATEMENT AS TO ORDERS BY SERIES

§1. The Card Section is now prepared to handle advantageously rders by series for cards for books and monographs in series.

Libraries which do not have access to a complete file of the L. C. ards usually find it advantageous to employ this method of ordering in ombination with others. Libraries which have access to the complete le of cards find it more satisfactory in some cases to give a general rder for cards for all of the publications in a series, than to look up and st the card number for each.

EXCEPTIONS IN THE CATALOGING OF PUBLICATIONS IN SERIES

§2. As a rule, the Library of Congress prints cards for such publica- ons in series only as are strictly monographic, i. e. consist of a single aper, or contribution; but cards have been printed, by exception, for considerable number of series which consist partly of composite pub- cations and for a few series that are wholly made up of such iblications.[a]

A considerable percentage of the monographic publications in series ow on the shelves of the Library of Congress and within the scope of e stock, and a considerable percentage of those currently received, e not cataloged with printed cards. They are being passed by for the esent in order that the cataloging of books not in series may be fin- ied more quickly. A large percentage of the series of monographs foreign languages are not being analyzed. Occasionally a non- pyrighted series of monographs in English, the cataloging of which would require much time, is also passed by. On the other hand, series received by copyright are uniformly cataloged.

In general the scope of the stock is the same for publications in series as for other publications, but, owing chiefly to exigencies in cataloging, numerous series of monographs lying wholly or partly outside of the scope of the stock have been entirely cataloged.

LISTS OF SERIES FOR WHICH CARDS CAN BE SUPPLIED

§3. Owing to the many exceptions in the cataloging of publications in series it has been decided to issue lists of the more important non-copyrighted series, for which cards can be supplied. It being understood that cards are in stock for all copyrighted publications which are within the scope of the stock (see Bulletin 11, §3), series of copyrighted publications have been excluded from the lists as a rule. A few copyrighted series have been included in order to call attention to the fact that "series cards" have been printed for them. The lists of series for which cards are in stock are as follows:

Series in English, excluding those in American history (Bulletin 17).

Series in American history (Bulletin 18).

Series in foreign languages (Bulletin 19).

ORDERS FOR CARDS FOR SERIES NOT INCLUDED IN THE LISTS

§4. As stated in Bulletin 17, §3, and Bulletin 19, §3, certain classes of series have been excluded from the lists published in those bulletins; series started since these lists were compiled are of course not included. The lists in Bulletins 17–19 will be revised and reprinted from time to time. Libraries may order cards advantageously for the following classes of series not included in the lists:

(1) Series the successive issues of which are uniformly copyrighted and within the scope of the stock.

(2) New noncopyrighted series in English of considerable importance.

SERIES CARDS

§5. Series cards have been issued for but a small percentage of the series for which cards are in stock. In the lists in Bulletins 17–19, series for which series cards have been printed have the abbreviation s (= series card without contents) or sc (= series card with contents) affixed. Although series cards are likely to be printed for other series at any time, the chance of obtaining series cards for a series which does not have s or sc affixed is slight. Libraries which desire to obtain series cards whenever possible should make a practice of including a request for such cards (see §8, d) in every order by series.

Most of the series cards now in stock have been printed or reprinted quite recently and accordingly list publications in their respective series nearly to date. As a rule, additions will be made to series cards only when they are reprinted for stock, or when the list of new publications in the series is long enough to fill another card.

MAIN ENTRY CARDS WITH CONTENTS

§6. Occasionally main entry cards with full table of contents are issued for series of publications which are of a composite nature. Some libraries use these successfully as analyticals. A few series for which they have been issued are included in the lists in Bulletins 17–19, with the abbreviation mc (= main entry card with contents) affixed. If the entry occupies more that one card, the number of cards required for it is indicated after mc. When enough publications have been issued so that the list of their contents will fill another card, an additional card will be issued.

NUMBER OF CARDS WANTED

§7. Libraries ordering cards by series for cataloging purposes should indicate number of cards wanted for each publication in the series by one of the methods outlined in Bulletin 12. If a series card has been printed, a separate note should be added as to number of copies of it wanted (see §8. d.) In case a library fails to indicate definitely the number of cards wanted, a "complete set" will be sent.

A "complete set" of cards for a series will be held to include 2s1a cards[a] for each paper cataloged in the series and 1sa copies of the series card.[b]

An "author set" of cards for a series of publications will be held to include one card for each paper cataloged in the series and one copy of the series card.

In case a library desires to order copies of a main entry card (with contents) for use in making analyticals (see §6), the number of copies required can be ascertained most easily by inspecting a copy of the card. When the entry occupies more than one card (as shown by the figure following mc) such preliminary inspection of the card is essential in order to ascertain the number of copies of each card required. A sample copy of the mc card for any series listed in Bulletins 17–19 will be sent on request providing: (1) that the request contains a statement that the card is wanted as a "sample for analyticals", (2) that the sample is returned as an order for cards, a number having been placed on it to indicate number of copies wanted. If the number of copies wanted of main entry card with contents is not indicated, 1sa cards will be sent.

[a] See Bulletin 12, § 6, for explanation of the formulas mentioned in this paragraph. In general the practice as to indication of subject and added entries on cards for publications in series has been the same as in the case of other publications (see Bulletin 11, § 11).

[b] Series cards have subject entries indicated on them when they are sufficiently homogeneous to make this practicable. The added entry most commonly indicated is that for the editor of the series.

HOW TO ORDER CARDS BY SERIES

§8. Libraries ordering cards by series may give the order in any form desired, providing that they indicate for what portions of the series cards are desired and how many cards are wanted. But standing orders for cards to be sent in continuation of an initial order can be filed in the Card Section only on 33° slips, and it is believed that, as a rule, libraries will find it most satisfactory to place their orders on such slips in a concise and definite form.

The method of making out series orders outlined below is recommended:

(a) If the publications in a series are numbered consecutively, use the consecutive numbering in preference to any other and use arabic figures without prefixing "no.," "vol.," or an equivalent term. If it is necessary to refer to parts of volumes, use arabic numerals for volumes, small roman numerals for parts of volumes. If the series is divided into "first series," "second series," etc., use arabic numerals with the vernacular term for series, e. g. 1st series, 2. série, 3. folge.

(b) Indicate that cards are desired for certain numbers in a series by giving the first and last number connected by a dash (e. g. 1–10). Indicate that cards are desired for the series complete to date with continuation, by a dash placed after the figure 1.

(c) Indicate the number of cards wanted for each publication[a] in the series by a number or formula placed at the upper right hand corner of the slip.

(d) Indicate that series card is wanted by Ser. near right margin followed by a number or formula to indicate number of copies wanted.

(e) Indicate near the right margin the number of the week in the year (ascertained from the "calendar card") up to which your library is willing to wait to obtain cards missing within the limits of the order. Unless the period for which missing cards can be awaited is indicated by a week number, it will be assumed that they can be waited for indefinitely and they will be sent whenever they come to hand.

(f) Give name of library and date of the order at the lower edge of slip.

[a] If cards are being ordered for series having mc affixed, and cards are desired for use in making analyticals, libraries are advised to write "sample for analyticals" in place of number or formula indicating number of cards wanted, especially if there is a number following mc in the list indicating that the entry occupies more than one card.

Below is given a sample of an order slip made out in accordance with the above suggestions.

TRAVELING SETS OF CARDS FOR PUBLICATIONS IN SERIES

§9. Libraries not having access to a complete file of L. C. cards, which desire to order a specific number of cards for each publication in a series, may obtain a traveling set of cards for the series, so that cards can be ordered by card number. A traveling set for any series listed in Bulletins 17–19 will be sent as a means of making up orders, on condition (1) that the set be returned promptly, arranged in the same order as when sent out; (2) that the order made up from the set shall be kept distinct and shall be sent in with the set which is being returned; (3) that an extra charge is to be made for the use of the set, equivalent to the postage both ways (at ½c. per ounce) plus 5 cents. For an explanation of methods of making up orders from traveling sets see Bulletin 10, §7.

TIME REQUIRED TO PRODUCE CARDS

§10. As a rule only such series are included in the lists mentioned in §3 as are received regularly and promptly, but a few have been included which are received through the "International exchange[a]". These series have the abbreviation int. affixed to them in the lists and subscribers are advised that there is likely to be unusual delay in supplying cards for them.

Cards usually reach the stock in from two to four weeks after the publication has reached the Library of Congress. When there is an accumulation of cards to be printed, cards for publications in English are printed first, consequently delay is especially likely to occur in the case of publications in foreign languages. In the case of standing orders for cards by series, unless notice is received that the library cannot wait longer, cards will be sent when ready.

PRICE OF CARDS ORDERED BY SERIES

§11. Variation in the price of L. C. cards affects only the "first card." The charge for additional copies of any card supplied at the same time with the first is always ½c.

If cards are ordered by series according to the terms of this Bulletin, the price of the first card supplied for each publication is 2c., except in the case of "sets of cards" for a few of the longer series and for series supplied in groups—the price of the first card for publications in these being 1c. (see Bulletins 5, 9, 13, 14, 15).

PAYMENT FOR CARDS

§12. The most satifactory method of paying for cards is to make a deposit of $1 or more, according to the amount of cards to be purchased. The initial deposit should be large enough to cover cost of cards called for by the initial shipment and leave a margin to cover cost of future shipments. When the deposit is exhausted, a notice to that effect will be sent. Remittances should be made payable to "The Librarian of Congress."

---

[a] The term applied to the exchange service conducted by the Smithsonian Institution whereby the publications of learned societies in the Uuited States are exchanged for those of similar societies in foreign countries.

SERIES OF PUBLICATIONS IN ENGLISH (EXCLUDING THOSE IN AMERICAN HISTORY) FOR WHICH CARDS ARE IN STOCK

LISTS OF SERIES FOR WHICH CARDS ARE IN STOCK

§1. This bulletin contains the first of three lists of series of publications for which cards are in stock at the Library of Congress.

The other two lists are:

Series in American history (Bulletin 18)

Series in foreign languages (Bulletin 19)

For an explanation of methods of ordering cards by series, see Bulletin 16.

EXCEPTIONS IN THE PRINTING OF CARDS FOR PUBLICATIONS IN SERIES

§2. As a rule, the Library of Congress prints cards for publications in series only when the series is composed wholly or very largely of monographs, but there are numerous exceptions to the rule.

If a series which is made up of composite publications is included in the list it indicates that analytical cards have been made for each of the papers included in the series, unless there is specific indication to the contrary.

If the successive issues of an incomplete publication are numbered into a series, an open-entry card is usually printed if the publication is copyrighted or represents an important contribution in English. In other cases no card is printed as a rule until the publication is completed. Libraries should note carefully this general explanation to account for missing cards for incomplete publications, as an explanation of individual cases will not be given in the list.

SERIES EXCLUDED

§3. The following classes of series have been excluded from this list:

a) Series the successive issues of which are uniformly copyrighted and for which no series cards have been printed. (See Bulletin 16, §3).

b) Series no longer current, or no longer cataloged, which are represented by but few cards in stock.

c) Less important current publishers' series for which the number of cards already issued is small.

METHOD OF DESIGNATING PUBLICATION NUMBERS

§4. Arabic figures are used exclusively, except when it is necessary to refer to subdivisions of a volume. Subdivisions of a volume are indicated by small roman numerals, e. g. 2. II–VI (= parts [or numbers] 2–6 of v. 2).

A dash when used between two numbers indicates that cards are in stock for all publications between, excepting such as are incomplete (see end of §2) or unpublished. A single dash used after a number, with no number following, indicates that cards are in stock for publications from that number to date, that the series is current so far as known, and that cards can probably be supplied for all the current numbers; a double dash has the same significance except that it indicates that cards can probably be supplied for the most of the current numbers.

When the publications in a series are unnumbered, if cards are in stock for all of them, the word Complete is used in place of series numbering. If cards are not in stock for the entire series, the total number of cards is given in place of series numbering. A dash or double dash appended to these words has the same significance as when appended to numbers.

ABBREVIATIONS

int = Series received through the International exchange (see Bulletin 16, §10); unusual delay in supplying cards probable; standing order for current cards should not be placed unless cards can be awaited a year at least.

mc = Main entry card with contents has been printed but no cards for individual papers; if entry requires more than one card, number is indicated after mc; if cards are to be ordered for use in making analyticals, send for a sample (see Bulletin 16, §7, end).

s = Series (or main-entry) card without contents has been issued in addition to cards for individual papers in the series.

sc = Series (or main-entry) card with contents has been issued in addition to cards for individual papers in the series.

CARD SECTION

No. 18 BULLETIN JUNE 15, 1906

SERIES OF PUBLICATIONS IN AMERICAN HISTORY FOR WHICH CARDS ARE IN STOCK.

LISTS OF SERIES FOR WHICH CARDS ARE IN STOCK

§1. This bulletin contains the second of three lists of series of publications for which cards are in stock at the Library of Congress.

The other two lists are:

Series in English, excluding those in American history (Bulletin 17)

Series in foreign languages (Bulletin 19)

For an explanation of methods of ordering cards by series, see Bulletin 16.

THIS LIST ALSO A "WANT LIST"

§2. This list has been compiled by Mr. C. A. Flagg, assistant in charge of the cataloging of American history, who is endeavoring to complete series in this field. In addition to its use as a list of series of publications for which cards can be supplied, it may be considered a "want list" of publications in American history which the Library of Congress desires to obtain. Libraries or individuals having for exchange or sale publications unaccounted for in the list will confer a favor by notifying the Library of Congress of the fact.

EXCEPTIOSN IN THE PRINTING OF CARDS FOR PUBLICATIONS IN SERIES

§3. As a rule, the Library of Congress prints cards for publications in series only when the series is composed wholly or very largely of monographs; but there are numerous exceptions to the rule, especially in American history.

If a series is included in the list which is made up of composite publication, it indicates that analytical cards have been made for each of the papers included in the series unless there is a specific statement to the contrary or incomplete publications are included, which are excepted by the terms of the next paragraph.

If the successive issues of an incomplete publication are numbered into a series, an open-entry card is usually printed if the publication is copyrighted or represents an important contribution in English. In other cases no card is printed until the publication is completed. Libraries should note carefully this general explanation to account for missing cards for incomplete publications, as an explanation of individual cases will not be given.

METHOD OF DESIGNATING PUBLICATION NUMBERS

§4. Arabic figures are used exclusively, except when it is necessary to refer to subdivisions of a volume. Subdivisions of a volume are indicated by small roman numerals, e. g. 2. II–VI = (parts [or numbers] 2-6 of v. 2).

A dash when used between two numbers indicates that cards are in stock for all publications between, excepting such as are incomplete (see end of §3). A single dash used after a number, with no number following, indicates that cards are in stock for publications from that number to date, that the series is current so far as known, and that cards can probably be supplied for all the current numbers; a double dash has the same significance except that it indicates that cards can probably be supplied for the most of the current numbers.

When the publications in a series are unnumbered, if cards are in stock for all of them, the word Complete is used in place of series numbering. If cards are not in stock for the entire series, the total number of cards is given in place of series numbering. A dash or double dash appended to these words has the same significance as when appended to numbers.

No. 19 BULLETIN JUNE 21, 1906

SERIES OF PUBLICATIONS IN FOREIGN LANGUAGES FOR WHICH CARDS ARE IN STOCK

LISTS OF SERIES FOR WHICH CARDS ARE IN STOCK

§1. This bulletin contains the third of three lists of series of publications for which cards are in stock at the Library of Congress.

The two other lists are:

Series in English, excluding those in American history (Bulletin 17)

Series in American history (Bulletin 18)

For an explanation of methods of ordering cards by series, see Bulletin 16.

EXCEPTIONS IN THE PRINTING OF CARDS FOR PUBLICATIONS IN SERIES

§2. As a rule the Library of Congress prints cards for publications in series only when the series is composed wholly or very largely of monographs, but there are numerous exceptions to the rule.

If a series which is made up of composite publications is included in the list it indicates that analytical cards have been made for each of the papers included in the series, unless there is specific indication to the contrary.

If the successive issues of an incomplete publication are numbered into a series, an open-entry card is usually printed if the publication is copyrighted or represents an important contribution in English. In other cases no card is printed as a rule until the publication is completed. Libraries should note carefully this general explanation to account for missing cards for incomplete publications, as an explanation of individual cases will not be given in the list.

SERIES EXCLUDED

§3. The following classes of series have been excluded from this list:

a) Series no longer current, or no longer cataloged, which are represented by but few cards in stock.

b) Less important current publishers' series for which the number of cards already issued is small.

METHOD OF DESIGNATING PUBLICATION NUMBERS

§4. Arabic figures are used exclusively, except when it is necessary to refer to subdivisions of a volume. Subdivisions of a volume are indicated by small roman numerals, e. g. 2.II–VI = (parts [or numbers] 2–6 of v. 2).

A dash when used between two numbers indicates that cards are in stock for all publications between, excepting such as are incomplete (see end of §2) or unpublished. A single dash used after a number, with no number following, indicates that cards are in stock for publications from that number to date, that the series is current so far as known, and that cards can probably be supplied for all the current numbers; a double dash has the same significance except that it indicates that cards can probably be supplied for the most of the current numbers.

When the publications in a series are unnumbered, if cards are in stock for all of them, the word Complete is used in place of series numbering. If cards are not in stock for the entire series, the total number of cards is given in place of series numbering. A dash or double dash appended to these words has the same significance as when appended to numbers.

ABBREVIATIONS

int = Series received through the International exchange (see Bulletin 16, §10); unusual delay in supplying cards probable; standing order for current cards should not be placed unless cards can be awaited a year at least.

mc = Main-entry card with contents has been printed but no cards for individual papers; if entry requires more than one card, number is indicated after mc; if cards are to be ordered for use in making analyticals, send for a sample (see Bulletin 16, §7, end).

s = Series (or main-entry) card without contents has been issued in addition to cards for individual papers in the series.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

CARD SECTION

No. 16–19 (2d edition[1]) BULLETIN June 15, 1910

LIST OF SERIES OF PUBLICATIONS FOR WHICH CARDS ARE IN STOCK METHOD OF ORDERING BY SERIES

ORDERS FOR CARDS BY SERIES

§1. Libraries which do not have access to a complete file of the L. C. cards find it very advantageous to make use of orders by series in connection with other forms of orders.[2] Libraries which have access to the complete file of cards seem to find it more satisfactory in some cases to give a general order for cards for all of the publications in a series than to look up and list the card number for each. Instead of making out author and title orders for all of their current accessions in foreign languages (for which the percentage of cards obtainable is small) libraries will usually find it better to file a standing order for cards for such of their current accessions as are in the series listed below and make their own cards for others.

EXCEPTIONS IN THE SCOPE OF THE STOCK AS REGARDS PUBLICATIONS IN SERIES

§2. In general the scope of the stock is the same for publications in series as for other publications, but the exceptions are more numerous. Owing to exigencies in recataloging and in the card distribution work, numerous series which are wholly or partly outside the scope of the stock have been entirely covered. On the other hand numerous series which are wholly or largely within scope are being passed by for the present. Most of the series out of scope which have been by exception fully cataloged are in English, while most of the series within scope which have been passed by are in foreign languages.

[1] First issued separately in June, 1906.

[2] Throughout this bulletin a knowledge of the essentials of ordering and using the L. C. cards, as explained in the pamphlet "L. C. Printed Cards" (obtainable on application to "The Librarian of Congress") is assumed. An explanation of advantageous methods of ordering by series is given at the end of this bulletin.

CARDS FOR MONOGRAPHS IN SERIES; CARDS FOR COMPOSITE PUBLICATIONS IN SERIES

§3. The general practice of the Library of Congress is to print analytical cards for publications in series only when the series is wholly or mainly composed of monographic publications. If composite publications occur in a series which is mainly monographic, the rule is to print analytical cards for each of the papers in the publication provided that there are not more than three. If four or more papers are included, this number in the series is usually passed by. Libraries should note carefully this general explanation for missing cards for composite publications, as it is impracticable to indicate them in the list.

Analytical cards are sometimes printed, however, for composite publications (in series) which contain more than four papers, and analytical cards are sometimes issued for entire series and sets of composite publications. Exceptions in favor of analytical work occur most frequently in series in American history[1] and bibliography, but analytical cards have also been printed for some large and important sets analyzed by the libraries of the Department of Agriculture, the Geological Survey and the Bureau of Education[2].

CARDS FOR INCOMPLETE PUBLICATIONS INCORPORATED IN SERIES

§4. If the successive issues of an incomplete publication are numbered into a series, an open-entry card is usually printed if the publication is copyrighted or represents an important contribution in English. In other cases no card is printed as a rule until the publication is completed. Libraries should note carefully this general explanation to account for missing cards for incomplete publications, as it is impracticable to indicate them in the list.

MAIN CARDS FOR SERIES AS A WHOLE

§5. In the list below series for which a main series card has been issued, in addition to analyticals, have the abbreviation sc or s prefixed according as the series card has or has not centents of series listed on it. At present the practice is to give contents on series card only when the series is closed.

Series consisting of composite publications and series of monographs not yet analyzed are occasionally represented in stock by a

[1]As in the previous issue of the list of series, the information as to cards for series of publications in American history was supplied by Mr. C. A. Flags, assistant in charge of the cataloging of American history.

[2]A full statement as to the cards printed for the libraries of the Department of Agriculture, the Geological Survey and the Bureau of Education will be found in Bulletins 9, 14, 15 and 21, respectively.

main card with contents. As some libraries use such main cards for analytical work, it has seemed desirable to call attention to some of them in the list below, with abbreviation mc prefixed.

SERIES INCLUDED IN THE LIST

§6. About one-tenth of the cards in stock at the Library of Congress are for publications in series. It was impracticable to include in the list below all of the series represented in the stock. Series in bibliography and American history which are of any importance have been uniformly included. Series no longer current which are represented by comparatively few cards in stock are excluded. Current series published by societies and institutions are included even though the number of cards in stock is small. Current "publisher's" series are excluded unless a considerable number of publications have already appeared in the series or the circumstances of publications are such that the series promises to be important. A few sets (not series) of publications for which analytical cards have been issued are included in the list.

METHOD OF DESIGNATING PUBLICATION NUMBERS IN THE LIST

§7. Arabic figures are used exclusively, except when it is necessary to refer to subdivisions of a volume. Subdivisions of a volume are indicated by small roman numerals, e. g. 2.II–VI = (parts [or numbers] 2–6 of v. 2).

A dash when used between two numbers indicates that cards are, in stock for all publications between, excepting such as are composite (see §3), incomplete (see §4) or unpublished. A single dash used after a number, with no number following, indicates that the cards are in stock for publications from that number to date, that the series is current so far as known, and that cards can probably be supplied for all the current numbers; a double dash has the same significance except that it indicates that cards can probably be supplied for the most of the current numbers.

When the publications in a series are unnumbered, if cards are in stock for all of them, the word Complete is used in place of series numbering. If cards are not in stock for the entire series, the total number of cards is given in place of series numbering. A dash or double dash appended to these words has the same significance as when appended to numbers.

ABBREVIATIONS

int = Series received through the International exchange; unusual delay in supplying cards probable; standing order for current cards should not be placed unless cards can be awaited a year at least.

mc = Main-entry card with contents has been printed but no cards for individual papers; if entry occupies more than one card, number is indicated after mc; if cards are to be ordered for use in making analyticals, send for a sample (see §) s = Series (or main-entry) card without contents has been issued in addition to cards for individual papers in the series.

sc = Series (or main-entry) card with contents has been issued in addition to cards for individual papers in the series.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

CARD SECTION

No. 16–19 (3d edition[1]) BULLETIN MARCH 1, 1914

ORDERS FOR CARDS BY SERIES

§1. Libraries which do not have access to a complete file of the L. C. cards find it advantageous to make use of orders by series in connection with other forms of orders.[2] Libraries which have access to the complete file of cards seem to find it more satisfactory in some cases to give a general order for cards for all of the publications in a series than to look up and list the card number for each. Instead of making out author and title orders for all of their current accessions in foreign languages (for which the percentage of cards obtainable is usually small) libraries may find it better to file standing orders for cards for such of their current accessions as are in the series listed below and make their own cards for others.

THE SCOPE OF THE STOCK AS REGARDS PUBLICATIONS IN SERIES

§2. In general the scope of the stock is the same for publications in series as for other publications, but the exceptions are more numerous. Owing to exigencies in recataloging and in the card distribution work, some series which are partly outside the scope of the stock have been entirely covered. On the other hand a considerable number of series which are wholly or largely within scope are being passed by for the present. Most of the series out of scope which have been by exception fully cataloged are in English, while most of the series within scope which have been passed by are in foreign languages.

[1] First issued as four separate bulletins in June, 1906; second edition (combined and revised) printed as proof June 15, 1910.

[2] Throughout this bulletin a knowledge of the essentials of ordering and using the L. C. cards, as explained in the pamphlet "L. C. Printed Cards" (obtainable on application to The Librarian of Congress) is assumed.

SERIES INCLUDED IN THE LIST

§3. About one-tenth of the cards in stock at the Library of Congress are for publications in series. It was impracticable to include in the list below all of the series represented in the stock. Series in bibliography and American history which are of any considerable importance have been uniformly included. Series no longer current which are represented by comparatively few cards in stock are excluded. Current series of importance published by societies and institutions are included even though the number of cards in stock is small. Current "publisher's" series are excluded unless a considerable number of publications have already appeared in the series or the circumstances of publication are such that the series promises to be important. Publications of state geological surveys which have been issued in comparatively uniform and definite series are included, but irregular series of reports and bulletins are excluded although all of these have been covered by printed cards (see Bulletin 15) A considerable number of sets (not series) of publications, chiefly in American history, for which analytical cards have been isssued are included in the list.

CARDS NOT PRINTED FOR COMPOSITE AND UNIMPORTANT PUBLICATIONS IN SERIES

§4. The general practice of the Library of Congress is to print analytical cards for publications in series only when the series is wholly or mainly composed of monographic publications. If composite publications occur in a series which is mainly monographic, the rule is to print analytical cards for each of the papers in the publication provided that there are not more than four. If five or more papers are included, this number in the series is usually passed by. Analytical cards are sometimes printed, however, for composite publications (in series) which contain more than four papers, and analytical cards are sometimes issued for entire series and sets of composite publications. Exceptions in favor of analytical work occur most frequently in series in American history[1] and bibliography, but analytical cards have also been printed for most of the publications of the Department of Agriculture, the Geological Survey, the Bureau of Education, and the Smithsonian Institution and National Museum.[2]

[1] Much of the information as to cards for series of publications in American history was supplied by Mr. C. A. Flagg, formerly assistant in charge of the cataloging of American history, and by Mr. W. O. Waters, now in charge of that Section.

[2] A full statement as to the cards printed for the libraries of the Department of Agriculture, the Geological Survey, the Bureau of Education, and the Smithsonian Institution and National Museum will be found in Bulletins 9, 14, 15, 21, 23.

Occasionally an analyzed series contains a few numbers of such minor value that it is impracticable to print cards for them. Series of this type have, notwithstanding, been entered as 1– or Complete– Libraries should note carefully this general explanation for missing cards for composite publications and unimportant publications, as it is impracticable to indicate them in the list.

INCOMPLETE PUBLICATIONS INCORPORATED IN SERIES

§5. If the successive issues of an incomplete publication are numbered into a series, an open-entry card is usually printed if the publication is copyrighted or represents an important contribution in English. In other cases no card is printed as a rule until the publication is completed. Libraries should note carefully this general explanation to account for missing cards for incomplete publications, as it is impracticable to indicate them in the list.

MAIN CARDS FOR SERIES AS A WHOLE

§6. Series cards have been printed for a portion only of the series for which cards are in stock. In the list following, series for which series cards have been printed have the abbreviation s (= series card without contents) or sc (= series card with contents) affixed.[1] Although series cards are likely to be printed for other series at any time, the chance of obtaining series cards for a series which does not have s or sc affixed is slight.[2]

Hereafter in printing open-entry or main-entry cards for sets and series, if analytical cards have been made or if the series is to be regularly analyzed as its numbers appear, the word "Analyzed" will appear on the card. Standing orders for such main cards hereafter printed will be accepted. Libraries may thereby obtain information as to new series which are to be analyzed, the cards thus serving as a supplement to this list of series. The price for cards ordered in this way will be 2 cents each.

TIME REQUIRED TO PRODUCE CARDS

§7. Cards usually reach the stock within from two to six weeks after the publication has reached the Library of Congress. When there is an accumulation of cards to be printed, cards for publications in English are printed first, consequently delay is especially likely to occur in the case of publications in foreign languages. In the case of standing orders for cards by series, unless notice is received that the library can not wait longer, cards will be sent when ready and credit will not be given for cards returned because they were not received promptly.

[1] As a rule contents are not given on series cards for series which are still current. In case contents are given for such series, additions to contents are made only when the new issues added are sufficient to fill another card or the card is reprinted for stock.

[2] Series cards have subject entries indicated on them when the series is sufficiently homogeneous to make this practicable. The added entry most commonly indicated is that for the editor of the series.

A considerable number of series have been included which are received through the "International exchange[1]." These series have the abbreviation int. affixed to them in the lists, and subscribers are advised that there is likely to be unusal delay in supplying cards for them.

HOW TO ORDER CARDS BY SERIES

§8. Libraries ordering cards by series may give the order in any form found convenient, provided that they indicate whether they desire cards for each publication in the series or merely the main card for the series as a whole, and how many copies of each card are wanted. But standing orders for cards to be sent in continuation of an initial order can be advantageously filed in the Card Section only on slips of the standard size, and it is believed that, as a rule, libraries will find it most satisfactory to place their orders on such slips in the form shown below.

Standing Order

Analytics/ 2sla

MINN U 34

[1]The term applied to the exchange service conducted by the Smithsonian Institution whereby the publications of learned societies in the United States are exchanged for those of similar societies abroad.

In this form "Analytics" indicates that analytical cards are desired to cover each publication in the series; "Series card," that main cards for the series as a whole are desired. Number or formula written after these words, with slant line between, designates number of copies of each card desired. "Standing order" indicates that it is desired that slip be retained as a standing order. If "Standing order" is omitted, cards then in stock for the series will be sent, but cards printed later will not be sent. If the library can wait indefinitely for cards for back numbers in the series not yet covered by printed cards, the sign ∞ should be written in left margin below title. If this sign is not given, it will be assumed that library can not wait for such cards and they will not be sent. 1– indicates that cards are desired for the series complete to date; if they are desired for a portion of the series only, this is to be indicated, as usual, by first and last numbers, e. g. 4–7, 9–13.

PRICE OF CARDS ORDERED BY SERIES

§9. Variation in the price of L. C. cards affects only the "first card." The charge for additional copies of any card supplied at the same time with the first is always $\frac{8}{10}$c.

If cards are ordered by series according to the terms of this Bulletin, the price of the first card supplied for each publication is 2c, except in the case of full sets of analytics for certain series cataloged by libraries of the U. S. departments—the price of the first card for publications in these being .012. (See Bulletins 13, 14, 15, 21, 23)

ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF ORDERS AND SAMPLE SETS

§10. A card acknowledgment of the standing order for each series is sent by L. C. to the subscriber. It is suggested that these cards be filed as a record of series for which standing orders have been placed.

A sample set of cards for any unnumbered series will be loaned on request. Library will thus be able to order cards by card number for portions of such series.

COOPERATION DESIRED IN COMPLETING SERIES

§11. When a single issue, or a few scattering issues in a series, are noted as not covered by cards in stock, it usually indicates that these volumes are missing in L. C.'s set, unless these issues are composite or unimportant (see §4) or incomplete (see §5). Libraries desiring sets of cards for such series are invited to assist in completing the series by sending the missing volumes to the Library of Congress to be cataloged or by supplying copy for printed cards, if they are accustomed to supply copy for L. C. to print. The cooperation of university libraries in completing and in analyzing series published by their own university is especially desired, so that the next edition of this bulletin may contain a full list of complete series of publications issued by American universities. Reports as to errors of facts or typography in this list are desired.

METHOD OF DESIGNATING PUBLICATION NUMBERS IN THE LIST

§12. Arabic figures are used exclusively, except when it is necessary to refer to subdivisions of a volume. Subdivisions of a volume are indicated by small roman numerals, e. g. 2.II–VI = (parts [or numbers] 2–6 of vol. 2).

A dash when used between two numbers indicates that cards are in stock for all publications between, excepting such as are composite or unimportant (see §4), incomplete (see §5) or unpublished. A single dash used after a number, with no number following, indicates that the cards are in stock for publications from that number to date, that the series is current so far as known, and that cards can probably be supplied for all the current numbers; a double dash has the same significance except that it indicates that cards can probably be supplied for most of the current numbers.

When the publications in a series are unnumbered, if cards are in stock for all of them, the word Complete is used in place of series numbering. If "Complete" is followed by a dash it indicates, as usual, that cards can be supplied for all numbers including the current ones. Without the dash, "Complete" indicates that the series is no longer current. If cards are not in stock for the entire series, the total number of cards is given in place of series numbering. A dash or double dash appended to these words has the same significance as when appended to numbers.

int = Series received through the International exchange; unusual delay in supplying cards probable; standing order for current cards should not be placed unless cards can be awaited a year at least.

s = Series (or main-entry) card without contents has been issued in addition to cards for individual papers in the series.

sc = Series (or main-entry) card with contents has been issued in addition to cards for individual papers in the series.

[1] Under the new plan of publication work of the Department of Agriculture adopted July 1, 1913, the independent series of bulletins and circulars heretofore issued by the various bureaus, divisions, and offices have been discontinued. The scientific and technical matter heretofore published in them will hereafter appear in the Journal of Agricultural Research, while the popular and semitechnical matter will be printed in the new departmental series of bulletins, each of which will be devoted to the treatment of one subject. Owing to the fact that some numbers of the old series are still in press and that others may yet be printed to fill in vacant numbers, it is impracticable to close the entries for these at present.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

CARD DIVISION

No. 16–19 (3d ed.[1]) BULLETIN (SUPPLEMENT) AUGUST 1, 1917

LIST OF SERIES OF PUBLICATIONS FOR WHICH CARDS ARE IN STOCK

SUPPLEMENT

ADDITIONS, 1914-16

The list of series following represents additions to the list of series analyzed, published in March, 1914, in Bulletin 16–19.

Owing to the war, much uncertainty exists as to publications of the last three years in foreign series. When foreign series are listed below as current, by this is meant merely that L. C. cards have been printed for all the issues received and that no information has been received that the series has been permanently discontinued.

A considerable percentage of the series listed below are being analyzed by cooperating libraries. Such series are distinguished by the initial which is prefixed to the card numbers in the series printed for that library, viz:

A = American libraries (outside of D. C.) series.
Agr = Library of the Department of Agriculture.
BS = Library of the Bureau of Standards.
DO = Library of the Office of Superintendent of Documents.
E = Library of the Bureau of Education.
ES = Library of the Engineer School.
F = Library of the Bureau of Fisheries.
GS = Library of the Geological Survey.
H = Library of the Hygienic Laboratory.
L = Library of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.
PO = Library of the Patent Office.
S = Library of the Smithsonian Institution.
SG = Library of the Surgeon General's Office.
W = Washington Public Library.
War = Library of the Army War College.

To obviate fruitless search in the supplement for series not found in the main list, it is suggested that a minus sign (or other symbol) be inserted at left margin of page in the main list at point where entry in the supplement would have come if it had been incorporated in the main list.

Lists of additional series taken up for analysis will hereafter be issued at intervals of from one to two months in the form of slips which can be cut and pasted into interleaved copies of this supplement. Although these lists and the interleaved copies of the supplement are intended primarily for the use of assistants in the Library of Congress, they will be supplied to others at the rate of 3c. each for the slips, 5c. each for the supplement.

The method of indicating the issues covered by cards in stock which was adopted for the main list is used in this supplement, and the same abbreviations are also used (see Bulletins 16–19, p. 6–7).

NOTE.—A supplement to Bulletin 16–19 will hereafter be issued at the close of each year. These annual supplements will later be cumulated with the first Supplement or incorporated into the main list. In the mean time in order that assistants in the Library of Congress who refer to the list frequently may have the list in one alphabet, interleaved copies have been provided into which entries clipped from the supplements can be pasted. These interleaved copies, bound in buckram, will be supplied to subscribers at 50c. each. This plan for keeping the list to date has been substituted for that proposed in the first Supplement, p. 2.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

CARD SECTION

No. 20 BULLETIN March 1, 1907

CARDS FOR BOOKS PRINTED IN AMERICA BEFORE 1801

§1. Since 1902 the library of Wesleyan University (Middletown, Conn.) has been subscribing to one copy of each card printed by the Library of Congress for books, pamphlets, and newspapers printed in America before 1801.

A paper by Mr. Felix Neumann of the staff of the Library of Congress, in the Library Journal for September, 1906, called attention forcibly to the desirability of providing a printed record of publications in the Library of Congress printed in the United States prior to 1800, and recommended that, in addition to the usual L. C. author card, two other sets of cards be printed—one set constituting entries for such books under the name of the printer, the other entries for them under place of publication. In view of the fact that probably not over one-third of the books, pamphlets, and newspapers in the Library of Congress printed in America before 1801 have thus far been catalogued with printed cards, it has been decided to be impracticable, even if desirable, to issue at present the two special series of cards advocated by Mr. Neumann.

Recognizing, however, the force of Mr. Neumann's argument that the books in the collection of the Library of Congress which were printed in the United States prior to 1800 should be listed for the benefit of all interested in the "incunabula of America," there have been included in the exhibit of the Library of Congress at the Jamestown Exposition four sets of cards for publications printed in America before 1801, viz:

One set arranged by printer.
One set arranged by place.
One set arranged by date.

The same author entry card is used for each file, and the cards in the last three sets do not have place and date supplied at the top, but are merely arranged by printer, place, and date, respectively, with guides at frequent intervals.

It is believed that libraries and bibliophiles who are specializing on early Americana will find one or more sets of these cards a useful addition to their records of such publications.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION TO FULL SETS

§2. Several libraries and individuals having already subscribed to sets of L. C. cards for books printed in America before 1801, it is now practicable to offer them for subscription in full sets at a reduced price. If cards for such books are ordered in full sets, the price will be 1c. per card for the first copy of each card. The usual price of 1/2c. per card will be charged for additional copies of any card supplied with the "first" copy. Those desiring a second set of the cards to be arranged by printer, place, or date should accordingly order it with the "first" set, i. e. should order two or more copies of each card included in a full set.

CARDS CONSTITUTING A "FULL SET"

§3. About 1500 cards have now been printed for books, pamphlets, and newspapers printed in America before 1801. It is estimated that these cover not over one-third of such publications now in the collection of the Library of Congress and that it will be five years or more before printed cards will have been issued for all of the remainder.

A "full set" of cards obtainable at the price named in §2 will be held to include at least all the cards in stock at the time of ordering for publications printed before 1801 within the territory now comprised within the United States of America. But if desired the set will be held to include in addition either of the following:

a) All books printed in Canada before 1801.

b) All books printed in Mexico, South America and the West Indies before 1801.

c) All cards to be printed after the placing of the order within the limits of the order.

In submitting orders for full sets, subscribers should specify whether they desire also the cards itemized under a, b, or c. Cards sent in continuation of sets (i. e. those noted under c) will be sent monthly.

SUBSCRIPTION TO PARTIAL SETS

§4. Subscriptions will also be received for partial sets of the cards at the rate of from $1\frac{1}{5}$c. to 2c. for the first copy of each card, the rate varying according to the size and definiteness of the group of cards desired.

PAYMENTS FOR CARDS

§5. Those desiring to order full or partial sets of the cards above described should write for an estimate of the cost of the set desired. Estimates will include, as a matter of course, the cost annually of cards which may be desired in continuation of the set. If a set is ordered with continuation, it is best to send at once the estimated cost of the set with continuation for one year; but if continuation is not desired, no remittance should be made until the cards and the bill for them have been received, in order that the transaction may be completed by one payment. Subscribers who deposit money to cover continuing subscriptions will be notified when their deposit is exhausted. Remittances should be made payable to "The Librarian of Congress."

CARDS FOR BOOKS PRINTED IN AMERICA BEFORE 1801

§1. A paper by Mr. Felix Neumann in the Library Journal for September, 1906, called attention to the desirability of providing a printed record of publications in the Library of Congress printed in the United States prior to 1800, and recommended that, in addition to the usual L. C. author card, two other sets of cards be printed—one set constituting entries for such books under the name of the printer, the other entries for them under place of publication.

It was decided to be impracticable to issue the two special series of cards advocated by Mr. Neumann, but a special collection of the L. C. cards now in stock for this class of publications was made up and offered for subscription at a special price. Later it was decided to extend the selection to cover books printed between 1801 and 1820. The Library of Congress now has available for consultation four sets of these cards: one arranged by author, one by publisher, one by place of publication, and one by date of publication.

It is believed that librarians and bibliophiles who are specializing on early Americana will find one or more sets of these cards a useful addition to their records of such publications.

FULL SETS

§ 2. About 6,000 cards are now in stock for books printed in America (including Canada, Mexico, Central and South America) before 1821. If the entire set is ordered, the price is $.012 for one copy of each card, or about $72 for the collection. Additional copies, if ordered with the "first" copy, are $\frac{7}{10}$c each.

PARTIAL SETS

§ 3. The price of partial sets varies from $.015 to $.02, according to the size of the set. The price of the cards for books printed before 1821 in any state in the United States of America, or printed in Canada, Mexico, Central America, or South America, is $.015 per card.

PAYMENT

§ 4. Those already subscribing to cards should pay for the sets of cards described in this bulletin as they pay for others. Individuals and firms are required to pay for cards in advance and should always write for statement as to price and method of payment before sending money.

No. 21 BULLETIN March 1, 1908

CARDS FOR PUBLICATIONS OF U. S. BUREAU OF EDUCATION
CARDS FOR THE LITERATURE OF EDUCATION

Printed and Distributed by the Library of Congress for the Library of the U. S. Bureau of Education

§1. As a part of the work of the U. S. Bureau of Education, the Library of this Bureau has undertaken to see that documents and non-copyrighted[1] publications on education are promptly and systematically cataloged with printed cards. The cards are to be printed and distributed by the Library of Congress. This cataloging with printed cards for the present will be quite closely confined to current documents printed in the United States and to current non-copyrighted books on education.[2] Each card will have the secondary entries indicated on it which are needed for a dictionary catalog.

DEFINITION OF SOME TERMS USED

§2. For the benefit of readers of this Bulletin who are not librarians, a few of the terms used in the following sections are defined:

Main entry card (or main card) = The card which constitutes the prime record of the publication, the entry word being either the surname of the author, the first word of the society or office responsible for its compilation, or the first word of the title in case of periodicals and serials which are not official. Practically all of the cards furnished by the Library of Congress are main-entry cards, and all cards referred to in this Bulletin are main-entry cards unless there is a specific statement to the contrary.

Open-entry card = Card for an unfinished publication, e. g. annual report, yearbook, work appearing in parts, etc.

[1] This term is used instead of the more exact phrase "not copyrighted in the United States."

[2] Books received at the Library of Congress by copyright will continue to be cataloged by the Library of Congress.

Card for the series or set = Card for the series or set as a whole as distinguished from cards for the individual volumes or papers included in the series or set. (See definition for analytic.)

Analytic = Card for an individual volume or paper in a series, set, or composite work.

Author set = One card for each item cataloged in the series, set, or work, plus one card for the series.

Complete set = One card for the main entry for each item cataloged, plus an additional copy of the same card for each secondary entry indicated on it, plus one copy of the card for the series or set for main entry and one copy of the same card for each secondary entry indicated on it.

SPECIAL SETS OF CARDS

§3. Attention is especially called to the cards which are being or are to be printed and sold in sets at a reduced price for the following sets or classes of publications:

1. U. S. Bureau of Education. Circulars of information. 1870–

Cards for all the papers in this series and an open-entry card for the series are now in stock. At this date (March 1, 1908) the price of an author set is about $1.25, the price of a complete set about $2.50.

2. U. S. Bureau of Education. Bulletin. 1906, 1–

Cards for all the bulletins thus far issued and an open-entry card for the series are now in stock. At this date (March 1, 1908) the price of an author set is 8 cents, the price of a complete set 18 cents.

3. U. S. Bureau of Education. Annual report. 1907–

Analytics will be printed for the report for 1907 and for current reports thereafter. An index to the complete file of reports down to 1906 is being prepared by the Bureau of Education.

4. Cards for other U. S. documents of interest to educators.

Cards are already in stock for the more important documents of this class published since January 1, 1906; also for some older documents. Other non-current documents will be cataloged as fast as practicable.[1]

5. Documents of an educational nature published by the State governments.

[1] In ordering cards in this class, subscribers should specify whether they desire (a) all cards in stock and all cards to be printed hereafter, or (b) cards for all documents printed after a certain year, or (c) cards for current documents only. (See foot-note 2 on opposite page.)

A few cards are now in stock for such documents. Current issues will be regularly cataloged. Older documents will be cataloged as fast as practicable.[1]

6. Documents of an educational nature published by city governments in the United States.

For the present, only the current educational documents of the leading cities will be cataloged.[1]

7. Documents of an educational nature published by the British Government.

A few cards are now in stock for such documents. Current issues will be regularly cataloged.[1]

8. Main entry cards for American periodicals devoted to education.

9. Main entry cards for the proceedings of educational associations.

10. National Education Association. Proceedings. v. 51–

Analytics will be printed for v. 51 and succeeding volumes, i. e., for volumes not covered by the general index published in 1907.

11. Cards for books on education printed in America before 1801.

This selection is intended for educators who are also bibliophiles. In Bulletin 20 will be found a statement as to other cards for books printed in America before 1801.

ORDERS BY SUBJECT FOR BIBLIOGRAPHICAL PURPOSES

§4. The books classed in Education at the Library of Congress are now recataloged and all works of a monographic nature are represented by printed cards in stock. In addition to cards for all books copyrighted in the United States, the Library of Congress, with the cooperation of the library of the Bureau of Education, will hereafter be able to supply cards for most of the non-copyrighted English and foreign books currently printed. The collection of cards for books classed in Education now amounts to about 5,000. The price per card for one copy of each card in the collection is 1c. The price of an author set would therefore be about $50. The number of cards issued annually hereafter is likely to approximate to 1,000. If a subscription calls for a copy of all cards currently printed for educational literature, the price will be 1c. per card, or about $10 for the annual subscription. Subscriptions will also be accepted at the rate of 1c. per card for cards for all current[2] publications on education. The cost of a subscription to an author set of such cards would probably not exceed $5. The price per card for cards on any subdivision of education varies inversely with the number of cards in the subdivision. It exceeds 2c. only in the case of orders which call for less than 5 cards, or for cards which can be selected only by an expert.

HOW TO ORDER

§5. Subscribers may suit themselves as to method of ordering so long as they indicate clearly what cards are desired. It is recommended that orders for sets itemized in this Bulletin be defined by reference to the item in this Bulletin. If cards now in stock are ordered, a statement should be added to indicate whether or not cards issued hereafter are desired in continuation of the order. Subscribers should also state whether they desire an "author set" or a "complete set." (See §2 above.) Communications in regard to subscriptions for cards should be addressed to the Librarian of Congress.

PRICE OF CARDS

§6. Variation in the price of L. C. cards affects only the "first card." The charge for additional copies of any card supplied at the same time with the first is always ½c. The price for the first copy of each card supplied in the sets itemized in §3 is 1c. The price for the first copy of cards supplied in continuation of these sets is also 1c.

PAYMENT FOR CARDS

§7. The most satisfactory method of paying for cards is to make a deposit of $1 or more according to the amount of cards to be purchased. The initial deposit should be large enough to cover cost of cards called for by initial shipment and leave a margin to cover cost of future shipments. When the deposit is exhausted, a notice to that effect will be sent. Remittances should be made payable to "The Librarian of Congress."

It is recommended that orders for sets itemized in this Bulletin be defined by reference to the item number. If a selection of cards not listed in the Bulletin is desired, the price of the selection will be furnished on application. If cards now in stock are ordered, a statement should be added to indicate whether or not cards issued hereafter are desired in continuation of the order. Subscribers should also state whether they desire an "author set," a "dictionary-catalog set," or a set otherwise defined. Communications in regard to subscriptions for cards should be addressed to the Librarian of Congress.

PRICE OF CARDS.

§ 6. Variation in the price of L. C. cards affects only the "first card." The charge for additional copies of any card supplied at the same time with the first is $.008. The price for the first copy of each card supplied in the sets itemized in § 3 is $.012. The price for the first copy of cards supplied in continuation of these sets is $.02.

PAYMENT.

§ 7. Libraries, societies, and other institutions already subscribing to cards should pay for the sets and classes of cards described in this Bulletin as they pay for others. Individuals and firms are required to pay for cards in advance. If exact price of cards desired is known, amount should accompany order. When approximate cost of the cards is known and it is desired to receive current cards in continuation of the order, an amount sufficient to pay the cost of cards in stock plus the cost of the current cards for at least three months should accompany the order. In all other cases the cost of the cards should be ascertained before any remittance is made.

CARDS FOR PUBLICATIONS OF U. S. BUREAU OF EDUCATION
CARDS FOR THE LITERATURE OF EDUCATION

Printed and Distributed by the Library of Congress for the Library of the U. S. Bureau of Education

§1. As a part of the work of the U. S. Bureau of Education, the Library of this Bureau has undertaken to see that documents and noncopyrighted[2] publications on education, so far as received by the Bureau, are promptly and systematically cataloged with printed cards. The cards are printed and distributed by the Library of Congress. Each card will have the secondary entries indicated on it which are needed for a dictionary catalog.

DEFINITION OF SOME TERMS USED

§2. For the benefit of readers of this Bulletin who are not librarians, a few of the terms used in the following sections are defined:

Main entry card (or main card)=The card which constitutes the prime record of the publication, the entry word being either the surname of the author, the first word of the society or office responsible for its compilation, or the first word of the title in case of periodicals and serials which are not official. Practically all of the cards furnished by the Library of Congress are main entry cards, and all cards referred to in this Bulletin are main entry cards unless there is a specific statement to the contrary.

Open entry card=Cards for an unfinished publication, e. g., annual report, yearbook, work appearing in parts, etc.

Series card (or main card for series)=Card for the series or set as a whole as distinguished from cards for the individual volumes or papers included in the series or set. (Cf. definition for analytic.)

Analytic=Card for an individual volume or paper in a series, set, or composite work.

Author set=One card for each item cataloged in the series, set, or work, plus one card for the series.

[1] First edition issued March 1, 1908; second edition, December 15, 1910; third edition, November 1, 1914.

[2] This term is used instead of the more exact phrase "not copyrighted in the United States." Books received at the Library of Congress by copyright will continue to be cataloged by the Library of Congress.

Dictionary-catalog set=One card for main entry for each item cataloged, with an additional copy of the same card for each secondary entry indicated on it; plus one copy of series card with an additional copy of the same card for each secondary entry indicated on it.

ORDERS BY SUBJECT FOR BIBLIOGRAPHICAL PURPOSES

§3. The books classed in Education at the Library of Congress are now recataloged and all works of a monographic nature are represented by printed cards in stock. In addition to cards for all books copyrighted in the United States, the Library of Congress, with the cooperation of the Library of the Bureau of Education, is able to supply cards for most of the noncopyrighted English and foreign books currently printed. The collection of cards for Education, including those in the sets itemized in §5, now amounts to about 30,000. The price per card for one copy of each card in the collection is $.015. The price of an author set would therefore be about $450. The price per card for cards on any subdivision of education varies inversely with the number of cards in the subdivision. If the order calls for as many as 100 cards and can be filled by duplicating existing groups of cards in L. C. catalogs the price will not exceed 2c.

HOW TO ORDER

§4. Subscribers may suit themselves as to method of ordering so long as they indicate clearly what cards are desired. It is recommended that orders for sets itemized in this Bulletin be defined by reference to the item number. If a selection of cards not listed in the Bulletin is desired, the price of the selection will be furnished on application. If cards now in stock are ordered, a statement should be added to indicate whether or not cards issued hereafter are desired in continuation of the order. Subscribers should also state whether they desire an "author set," a "dictionary-catalog set," or a set otherwise defined. Communications in regard to subscriptions for cards should be addressed to the Librarian of Congress.

SPECIAL SETS OF CARDS

§5. Attention is especially called to the cards which are being printed for the following sets or classes of publications and sold in sets at a special price. Prices given below are for the sets on ~~October 1, 1914~~. Cards are being added to the sets currently. Price of set on any date will be supplied on application.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

CARD SECTION

No. 22 BULLETIN December 1, 1912

TABLE OF OLD AND NEW CARD NUMBERS.

§1. Previous to 1902 various experiments were tried in numbering the cards printed at the Library of Congress. Some of the numbers used, particularly those in which the day of the month is incorporated, are long and difficult to carry in mind. It has seemed best, therefore, to renumber these cards as fast as they are reprinted for stock and have the new cards substituted for the old in the depository sets, although while the renumbering is going on it will doubtless occasion some inconvenience in filling and checking orders.

The present system of numbering the cards, used exclusively since 1902, is, in brief, to start a consecutive series of numbers each year, prefixing enough of the last figures of the year number to identify the series. In the case of series of cards for which the copy is prepared outside of the Library of Congress Catalog Division, an abbreviation for the name of library, institution or division which supplied the copy is prefixed to year number, e. g., 1–7584, 10–22786, Agr. 11–468, G S 6–178.

The series printed before 1902 will be changed as follows:

(a) By omitting the year number from the several series printed in 1901 for foreign books and for bibliography, on the ground that as these series were run only during 1901 indication of year is unnecessary. In the case of the "I" (Italian) series the year number will be omitted and "I" changed to "It," e. g., 1–D–159 changed to D–159, 1–F–144 changed to F–144, 1–G–798 changed to G–798, 1–I–172 changed to It–172, 1–58 Music changed to Music–58, 1–Rc–1768 changed to Rc–1768, 1–Z–1204 changed to Z–1204.

(b) By prefixing "C" to numbers in the short "consecutively numbered" series printed before the "dated" series was started, in order to do away with the duplication between this series and the consecutive numbers in the A. L. A. Catalog, e. g., 275 changed to C–275.

(c) By numbering the "weekly" and "monthly" dated series straight through the year (with the "12–00" series placed after the series for December, 1900, and the series for Jan.–May, 1901, numbered onto the end of the regular series for 1901) and prefixing the abbreviated year number, e. g., Aug. 24, 98–67 changed to 98–113, 12–00–234 changed to 0–7218. In the new numbers 0 is used instead of 00 for 1900.

As in class c there is, after the first month of the year, no correspondence between the new number and the old, a table of the corresponding numbers is given in the following pages.

For suggestions as to the use of the table and as to checking orders involving changed numbers, see last page of this bulletin.

USE OF THE TABLE

§2. In the table the year which forms a part of both the old style and the new style number is given only once at the top of the page. The consecutive number which forms the rest of the new style number is given in left column, the corresponding old style number being given in right column opposite. The day of the month (in some cases the month only) which forms a part of the old style number is given only above No. 1 of that date, and at the head of succeeding columns containing card numbers of that date.

To find in the table a new style number corresponding to an old style number, locate first the year at top of page, second the day and the month (which form parts of the old style number) at top of column; then the individual number itself below. The number in left-hand column opposite will be the number desired.

CHECKING ORDERS INVOLVING CHANGED NUMBERS

§3. When checking an order for cards containing old style numbers which has been filled with cards having new style numbers, or vice versa, the following should be kept in mind.

1. The changes made in the case of all series except the "weekly" and "monthly" dated series are slight changes in the characters prefixed to the number, not in the numbers themselves. Attention to the explanation on page of this bulletin and a little practice will enable the cataloger to pass from one to the other without effort.

2. The "weekly" and "monthly" dated series (about 18,000 cards) contain less than 4 per cent of the total number of cards in stock and if the year number is the same in the old number as in the new it is highly probable that the card is the correct one. Ordinarily it will be unnecessary to check more accurately than this. But when it is manifest that a mistake has been made in filling the order or for other reasons it becomes necessary to check exactly, the table given in the preceding pages is to be used.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

CARD SECTION

No. 22 BULLETIN December 1, 1912 [1]

TABLE OF OLD AND NEW CARD NUMBERS.

§1. Previous to 1902 various experiments were tried in numbering the cards printed at the Library of Congress. Some of the numbers used, particularly those in which the day of the month is incorporated, are long and difficult to carry in mind. It has seemed best, therefore, to renumber these cards as fast as they are reprinted for stock and have the new cards substituted for the old in the depository sets, although while the renumbering is going on it will doubtless occasion some inconvenience in filling and checking orders.

The present system of numbering the cards, used exclusively since 1902, is, in brief, to start a consecutive series of numbers each year, prefixing enough of the last figures of the year number to identify the series. In the case of series of cards for which the copy is prepared outside of the Library of Congress Catalog Division, an abbreviation for the name of library, institution or division which supplied the copy is prefixed to year number, e. g., 1–7584, 10–22786, Agr. 11–468, G S 6–178.

The series printed before 1902 will be changed as follows:

(a) By omitting the year number from the several series printed in 1901 for foreign books and for bibliography, on the ground that as these series were run only during 1901 indication of year is unnecessary. In the case of the "I" (Italian) series the year number will be omitted and "I" changed to "It," e. g., 1–D–159 changed to D–159, 1–F–144 changed to F–144, 1–G–798 changed to G–798, 1–I–172 changed to It–172, 1–58 Music changed to Music–58, 1–Rc–1768 changed to Rc–1768, 1–Z–1204 changed to Z–1204.

(b) By prefixing "C" to numbers in the short "consecutively numbered" series printed before the "dated" series was started, in order to do away with the duplication between this series and the consecutive numbers in the A. L. A. Catalog, e. g., 275 changed to C–275.

(c) By numbering the "weekly" and "monthly" dated series straight through the year (with the "12–00" series placed after the series for December, 1900, and the series for Jan.–May, 1901, numbered onto the end of the regular series for 1901) and prefixing the abbreviated year number, e. g., Aug. 24, 98–67 changed to 98–113, 12–00–234 changed to 0–7218. In the new numbers 0 is used instead of 00 for 1900.

As in class c there is, after the first month of the year, no correspondence between the new number and the old, a table of the corresponding numbers is given in the following pages.

For suggestions as to the use of the table and as to checking orders involving changed numbers, see last page of this bulletin.

USE OF THE TABLE

§2. In the table the year which forms a part of both the old style and the new style number is given only once at the top of the page. The consecutive number which forms the rest of the new style number is given in left column, the corresponding old style number being given in right column opposite. The day of the month (in some cases the month only) which forms a part of the old style number is given only above No. 1 of that date, and at the head of succeeding columns containing card numbers of that date.

To find in the table a new style number corresponding to an old style number, locate first the year at top of page, second the day and the month (which form parts of the old style number) at top of column, then the individual number itself below. The number in left-hand column opposite will be the number desired.

CHECKING ORDERS INVOLVING CHANGED NUMBERS

§3. When checking an order for cards containing old style numbers which has been filled with cards having new style numbers, or vice versa, the following should be kept in mind.

1. The changes made in the case of all series except the "weekly" and "monthly" dated series are slight changes in the characters prefixed to the number, not in the numbers themselves. Attention to the explanation on page 1 of this bulletin and a little practice will enable the cataloger to pass from one to the other without effort.

2. The "weekly" and "monthly" dated series (about 18,000 cards) contain less than 4 per cent of the total number of cards in stock and if the year number is the same in the old number as in the new it is highly probable that the card is the correct one. Ordinarily it will be unnecessary to check more accurately than this. But when it is manifest that a mistake has been made in filling the order or for other reasons it becomes necessary to check exactly, the table given in the preceding pages is to be used.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

CARD DIVISION

No. 23 BULLETIN January 1, 1916

CARDS FOR PUBLICATIONS OF THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION AND THE U. S. NATIONAL MUSEUM

§1. Through cooperation with the Library of the Smithsonian institution, such analytical cards as seemed necessary to make the contents of the publications of the Smithsonian institution and the U. S. National museum accessible to users of card catalogs have now been printed.

The list of series covered will be found on page 3.

PRICE OF CARDS

§2. Variation in the price of L. C. cards affects only the "first card." The charge for additional copies of any card supplied at the same time with the first is always $.008.

The price of the first copy of each card supplied for any of the series listed on page 3 or for the issues in the series for five years or more is $.012. The price for the first copy of current cards supplied in continuation of orders for these series is $.02.

The number of cards in sets varies slightly owing to changes in entries when cards are reprinted for stock. To obviate the necessity of keeping track of such changes, the prices of sets in the table on page 3 are given in slightly lower round numbers.

The approximate cost of a subscription to the cards currently issued for a series can be found by multiplying the approximate number of cards per year by 2c. for author set, by 4c. for dictionary catalog set.

The prices of portions of series will be furnished on application.

The prices for "first cards" for individual publications in these series are the same as for individual books, viz, 2c. if ordered by card number, 3c. if ordered by author and title.

PAYMENT

§3. Libraries, societies, and other institutions already subscribing to cards should pay for the sets of cards described in this Bulletin as they pay for others. Individuals and firms are required to pay for cards in advance. If exact price of cards desired is known, amount should accompany order. When approximate cost of the cards is known and it is desired to receive current cards in continuation of the order, an amount sufficient to pay the cost of cards in stock plus the cost of the current cards for about a year should accompany the order. In all other cases the cost of the cards should be ascertained before any remittance is made.

DEFINITIONS

§4. For the benefit of those who are not familiar with the terms used in defining the sets listed on p. 3, the following definitions are given:

Main entry card=Card for principal or primary entry for the item cataloged, entry being usually under name of author, society or office responsible for the publication.

Analytical card=Main entry for a paper, article or monograph in a series or in some other composite work.

Series card=Main entry card for the series as a whole.

Secondary entries=The subject entries (indicated on lower part of L. C. cards, numbered in Arabic) and the entries for joint author, editor, translator, title, etc. (numbered in Roman). These are covered by using additional copies of the main entry card with indicated heading added at the top in typewriting.

Dictionary catalog=Catalog in which all the necessary entries are given arranged in one alphabet like the words in a dictionary.

Author set=One copy of each analytical card, plus one series card.

Dictionary catalog set=Enough copies of the series card and of the analytical card for each publication in the series to cover main entries and the secondary entries indicated on the cards, i. e., all of the entries required for a dictionary catalog.

NOTES ON THE SERIES

§5. The following peculiarities of the series should be noted:

Smithsonian institution. Annual report.—These reports have been analyzed very fully because they are widely distributed, and it is believed that in the case of numerous topics the smaller public libraries will have no other entries in their catalogs. The forenames and dates of numerous authors who contributed accounts of local antiquities are wanting. Information as to these will be especially appreciated.

Smithsonian institution. Miscellaneous coll.—Cards for v. 1–48, 50, 52 are not yet printed, but will probably be ready by April 1, 1916. Cards will not be included for volumes and parts of volumes noted below, because the publications are identical with publications included in series issued by the National museum or are devoted to proceedings of local scientific societies which were mainly issued in other forms and are covered by independent entries:

v. 13, 23, 24=U. S. National museum. Bulletin, 1–16.
v. 19, 22=U. S. National museum. Proceedings, 1–4.
v. 20, 25 (art. 1, 2), 33=Philosophical society of Washington. Bulletin, v. 1–10.
v. 25 (art. 3), 34 (art. 2)=Anthropological society of Washington. Transactions, v. 1, 3.
v. 25 (art. 5)=Biological society of Washington. Proceedings, v. 1.

National museum. Annual report.—Previous to 1884 and since 1904 these reports are devoted to administrative matters exclusively; no analyticals required.

National museum. Proceedings.—Are analyzed only from v. 37 (1910) because the earlier volumes contain so many small papers that analysis seems not justified.

The list of series covered will be found on page 2. All the issues in each to October 31, 1928, are included, but none beyond that date.

PRICE OF CARDS

§ 2. Variation in the price of Library of Congress cards affects only the first card. The charge for additional copies of any card supplied at the same time with the first is $0.015.

The price of the first copy of each analytical card in a set covering one or more issues of the annual report of the Smithsonian Institution is $0.025. Current cards furnished for this set on a standing order will be supplied at same rate.

The price of the first copy of each card supplied in sets covering the publications of at least 10 years in any of the other series listed on page 3 is $0.03. The price for the first copy of each current card supplied in continuation of orders for these series is $0.04.

The prices of first cards for individual publications in these series is the same as for individual books, viz, $0.025 if ordered by card number, $0.045 or $0.04 if ordered by author and title.

PAYMENT

§ 3. Libraries, societies, and other institutions already subscribing to cards should pay for the sets of cards described in this bulletin as they pay for others. Individuals and firms are required to pay for cards in advance. If exact price of cards desired is known, amount should accompany order. When approximate cost of the cards is known and it is desired to receive current cards in continuation of the order, an amount sufficient to pay the cost of cards in stock plus the cost of the current cards for about a year should accompany the order. In all other cases the cost of the cards should be ascertained before any remittance is sent.

DEFINITIONS

§ 4. For the information of those who are not familiar with the terms used in defining the sets listed on page 2, the following definitions are given:

Main entry card=Card for principal or primary entry for the item catalogued, entry being usually under name of author, society, or office responsible for the publication.

Analytical card=Main entry for a paper, article, or monograph in a series or in some other composite work.

Series card=Main entry card for the series as a whole.

Secondary entries=The subject entries (indicated on lower part of Library of Congress cards, numbered in Arabic) and the entries for joint author, editor, translator, title, etc. (numbered in Roman). These are covered by using additional copies of the main entry card with indicated heading added at top in typewriting.

Dictionary catalogue=Catalogue in which all the necessary entries are given arranged in one alphabet like the words in a dictionary.

Author set=One copy of each analytical card, plus one series card.

Dictionary catalogue set=Enough copies of the series card and of the analytical card for each publication in the series to cover main entries and the secondary entries indicated on the cards, i. e., all of the entries required for a dictionary catalogue.

NOTES ON THE SERIES

§ 5. The following peculiarities of the series should be noted:

Smithsonian Insiitution—Annual report.—These reports have been analyzed very fully because they are widely distributed, and it is believed that in the case of numerous topics the smaller public libraries will have no other entries in their catalogues. The forenames and dates of numerous authors who contributed accounts of local antiquities are wanting. Information as to these will be especially appreciated.

Smithsonian Institution—Miscellaneous collection.—Cards will not be included for volumes and parts of volumes noted below, because the publications are identical with publications already covered by printed cards included in other series issued by the National Museum or are devoted to proceedings of local scientific societies which it is not practicable to analyze.

v. 13, 23, 24=United States National Museum. Bulletin 1–16 (v. 1–3).

v. 19, 22=United States National Museum. Proceedings, v. 1–4.

v. 20, 25 (art. 1, 2), 33=Philosophical Society of Washington. Bulletin, v. 1–10.

v. 25 (art. 3), 34 (art. 2)=Anthropological Society of Washington. Transactions, v. 1, 3.

v. 25 (art. 5)=Biological Society of Washington. Proceedings, v. 1.

National Museum—Annual report.—The reports issued previous to 1884 and since 1904 are devoted to administrative matters exclusively; no analyticals required.

National Museum—Proceedings.—Are analyzed only from v. 37 (1910), because the earlier volumes contain so many small papers that analysis seems not justified.

HOW TO ORDER

§ 6. Those ordering cards for the series named in this bulletin may give the order in any form found convenient, provided that they indicate whether they desire cards for the entire series or a portion of it, whether they wish analytics as well as main cards, whether they wish cards for publications in the series hereafter issued, and how many copies of each card are wanted, e. g.:

Please send me a dictionary catalogue set of cards for the annual reports of the Smithsonian from 1885 to date and as issued hereafter, including main card for series and all analytics.

Standing orders for cards to be sent in continuation of an initial order can be advantageously filed in the card division only on slips of the standard size; and it is believed that, as a rule, libraries will find it most satisfactory to place their orders on such slips in the form shown below:

CARDS FOR PUBLICATIONS RELATING TO MEDICINE

Cards Printed and Distributed by the Library of Congress for the Library of the Surgeon-General's Office

§ 1. Cards printed from copy supplied by the Library of the Surgeon-General's Office are now being added to the stock. The first instalment of these cards was printed in August, 1916. They cover books currently added to the Library of the Surgeon-General's Office which are not in the collection at the Library of Congress. They form a separate series distinguished by prefixing SG to the year number which precedes the serial card number, ex., SG 16–48. About 1,800 cards a year are likely to be printed in this series. Fully 80 per cent of these will probably be for current publications.

Libraries subscribing to cards currently printed for medical works may have entries for non-current books excluded, if they so desire.[1]

All publications on medicine currently received by the Library of Congress, including of course those deposited for copyright, will continue to be cataloged by the Catalogue Division of the Library of Congress, the output of cards from such source being about 600 a year.

Entries prepared by the Catalogue Division of the Library of Congress continue to appear on the proofsheets under the heading "Medicine." Entries prepared at the Surgeon-General's Library appear on the proofsheets under the heading "Titles from U. S. Surgeon-General's Office."

CARDS FOR PUBLICATIONS RELATING TO MEDICINE BUT CLASSED IN OTHER SUBJECTS

§ 2. The entries which appear on the proofsheets under "Titles from U. S. Surgeon-General's Office" comprise books of any class currently received at L. S. G., but the entries which appear on the proofsheets under the class "Medicine" are limited to books classed in Medicine (Class R) at L. C. A considerable number of books which pertain more or less directly to medicine are placed in other classes at the Library of Congress. The following are the most important of such related classes:

Physiology, classed in Science, on proofsheets under Science.
Medical Chemistry, classed in Science, on proofsheets under Science.
Bacteriology, classed in Science, on proofsheets under Science.
Heredity (biological side), classed in Science, on proofsheets under Science.
Heredity (sociological side), classed in Social Sciences, on proofsheets under Social Sciences.
Eugenics, classed in Social Sciences, on proofsheets under Social Sciences.
Medical Charities, classed in Social Sciences, on proofsheets under Social Sciences.
Physiological psychology, classed in Psychology, on proofsheets under Philosophy and religion.
Medical jurisprudence, classed in Law, on proofsheets under Law.

The output of such cards is several hundred a year. In filling orders these cards will be included or excluded, as desired.[1]

THE SUBJECT HEADINGS INDICATED ON THE CARDS

§ 3. The subject headings used at the Library of the Surgeon-General's Office differ in a considerable percentage of cases from those used at the Library of Congress. Those used at L. C. are designed for the catalog of a general library, in which the headings for medicine are laid out on the same scale as those for other subjects; those used at L. S. G. are designed for a special library and close analytical work.

It is impracticable, at present, to indicate the variations in the headings used by the two libraries on the cards for books cataloged at the Library of Congress, so these cards contain only the L. C. headings.

Variations in the headings used by the two libraries are indicated on the cards in the SG series as follows:

1. Headings accepted by both libraries are given as usual, numbered in Arabic simply.
2. When heading used by one library contains word or words more than that used by other, the longer heading is given with varying word or words inclosed in ( ) when part of the L. C. heading; in [ ] when part of the L. S. G. heading.
3. When L. C. heading differs from L. S. G. heading so much that the difference cannot be indicated by method explained in 2, both headings are given in full, L. C. heading in ( ), L. S. G. heading in [ ] with same number prefixed. L. C. heading is ordinarily given first as being better suited to the average user of L. C. cards.

[1] A few cards of interest to medical libraries are likely to continue to be printed for other cooperating libraries, such as the Library of the U. S. Hygienic Laboratory and libraries of American universities. These few cards will be included in filling orders for cards on medicine unless especially excluded by the terms of the order.

4. When the heading of the one library is equivalent in scope to two or more headings of the other, the more specific headings are given first, each having a number and each inclosed in ( ) or [ ] as the case requires; the equivalent more general heading follows in [ ] or ( ) as the case requires, with the numbers of the corresponding more specific headings repeated.
5. When one library uses a heading for which other has no satisfactory equivalent, the heading is given inclosed in ( ) or [ ] as the case requires.

Much pains is being taken with the subject headings on the cards in the SG series by the Cataloger, Mr. Felix Neumann, the aim being to make them accurate as well as concise. Suggestions as to improvements will be welcomed.

Medical libraries which have their own subject headings already established will, of course, accept the subject headings found on cards received from L. C. as suggestions only. Medical libraries just starting subject catalogs will probably find it best usually to adopt the L. S. G. heading when it varies from the L. C. heading.

INDICATION OF NUMBER OF CARDS WANTED

§4. The number of copies of each card called for by an order must be indicated before the order can be filled. Specialists ordering cards for bibliographical purposes ordinarily desire an "author set" only, i. e. one copy of each card. Libraries usually order a "dictionary-catalog set," i. e. enough copies of each card to cover the main entry and the secondary entries for a dictionary catalog which are indicated on the card. Libraries which maintain a card shelf list usually order an additional card for this shelf list.

HOW TO ORDER THE CARDS

§5. Orders for cards to be used in cataloging specific books on medical subjects are to be made up like orders covering other classes of books in the way explained in the pamphlet "L. C. Printed cards," obtainable gratis from The Librarian of Congress, Washington, D. C.

Libraries which purchase nearly all the books currently printed on medicine may find it desirable to place a standing order for a dictionary-catalog set of all cards printed for such books. Specialists may find it worth while to order all the cards now in stock and all the cards printed hereafter for publications relating to their specialty. Such orders should be submitted in the form of an ordinary letter.

The proofsheets appearing under the headings "Medicine" and "Titles from U. S. Surgeon-General's Office" provide an inexpensive list of the books on medicine currently received at L. C. and L. S. G. The entries on the proofsheets are spaced to card size, and slips cut from proofsheets can be filed like cards, but are of course not durable or adapted to quick consultation. Back issues of proofsheets cannot be supplied. About 500 proofsheets a year are likely to be issued under the two headings named above.

Some samples of orders are given below:

> "Please send this library a dictionary-catalog set, with one extra for shelf list, of cards for each current publication relating to medicine for which cards are printed at L. C.; cards in the related classes mentioned in § 2 of Bulletin 24 are to be included."
>
> "Please send me one copy of each card currently printed by the Library of Congress for works such as are classed by L. C. in Medicine, excluding the cards in the related classes mentioned in § 2 of Bulletin 24."
>
> "Please send me one copy of each card printed hereafter for publications relating in any specific way to Bacteriology."
>
> "Please send this firm the proofsheets appearing hereafter under the headings 'Medicine' and 'Titles from the Surgeon-General's Office.'"

All requests for information as to the cards, prices, payment, etc., should be addressed to The Librarian of Congress, Washington, D. C.

PRICE OF CARDS AND PROOFSHEETS

§ 6. Variation in the price of L. C. cards affects only the "first card." The charge for additional copies of any card supplied at the same time with the first is always $.008.

In general, the price of cards ordered by subject varies directly with the work required in selecting the cards, inversely with the number called for by the order. The price for the first copy of each card included in an author set or a dictionary-catalog set of all cards in stock on medicine is $.015. The price of the first copy of each card currently printed on medicine is also $.015.

The price of the first copy of each card printed for current publications (see p. 1, foot-note) on medicine is $.018.

The price for the first copy of each card supplied on a subject order covering a large and well defined class in medicine is 2 c. The price for smaller selections and those more difficult to make varies from 2 c. to 5 c., according to the number of cards and the work required in selecting them.

The price of the proofsheets for Medicine or any other subject is 1 c. a strip.

PAYMENT

§ 7. Those already subscribing to cards should pay for the cards described in this bulletin as they pay for others. Individuals and firms are required to pay for cards in advance and should always ascertain price before sending money.

INDICATION OF NUMBER OF CARDS WANTED

§4. The number of copies of each card called for by an order must be indicated before the order can be filled. Specialists ordering cards for bibliographical purposes ordinarily desire an "author set" only, i. e. one copy of each card. Libraries usually order a "dictionary-catalog set", i. e. enough copies of each card to cover the main entry and the secondary entries for a dictionary catalog which are indicated on the card. Libraries which maintain a card shelf list usually order an additional card for this shelf list.

HOW TO ORDER THE CARDS

§5. Orders for cards to be used in cataloging specific books on medical subjects are to be made up like orders covering other classes of books in the way explained in the pamphlet "L. C. Printed Cards", obtainable gratis from The Librarian of Congress, Washington, D. C.

Libraries which purchase nearly all the books currently printed on medicine may find it desirable to place a standing order for a dictionary-catalog set of all cards printed for such books. Others may find it best to order a single copy of each card. Specialists may find it worth while to order all the cards now in stock and all the cards printed hereafter for publications relating to their specialty. Such orders should be submitted in the form of an ordinary letter.

The proofsheets appearing under the headings "Medicine" and "Titles from U. S. Surgeon-General's Office" provide an inexpensive list of the books on medicine currently received at the two libraries. The entries on the proofsheets are spaced to card size, and slips cut from proofsheets can be filed like cards, but are of course not durable or adapted to quick consultation. Back issues of proofsheets cannot be supplied. About 200 proofsheets a year are being issued under the two headings named above.

Some samples of orders are given below:

> "Please send this library a dictionary-catalog set, with one extra for shelf list, of cards for each current publication relating to medicine for which cards are printed at L. C.; cards in the related classes mentioned in §2 of Bulletin 24 are to be included."
>
> "Please send me one copy of each card currently printed by the Library of Congress for works such as are classed by L. C. in Medicine, excluding the cards in the related classes mentioned in §2 of Bulletin 24."
>
> "Please send me one copy of each card printed hereafter for publications relating in any specific way to Bacteriology."
>
> "Please send this firm the proofsheets appearing hereafter under the headings 'Medicine' and 'Titles from the Surgeon-General's Office'."

All requests for information as to the cards, prices, payment, etc., should be addressed to The Librarian of Congress, Washington, D. C.

PRICE OF CARDS AND PROOFSHEETS

§6. Variation in the price of L. C. cards affects only the "first card". The charge for additional copies of any card supplied at the same time with the first is always $.01½.

In general, the price of cards ordered by subject varies directly with the work required in selecting the cards, inversely with the number called for by the order. The price for the first copy of each card included in an author set or a dictionary-catalog set of all cards in stock on medicine is $.025.

The price of the first copy of each card currently printed on medicine is $.03.

The price for the first copy of each card supplied on a subject order covering a large and well defined class in medicine is $.04. The price for smaller selections and those more difficult to make varies from $.04½ to $.10, according to the number of cards and the work required in selecting them.

The price of the proofsheets for Medicine or any other subject is $.01½ a strip.

PAYMENT

§7. Those already subscribing to cards should pay for the cards described in this bulletin as they pay for others. Individuals and firms are required to pay for cards in advance and should always ascertain price before sending money.

GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE--LIBRARY BRANCH

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

CARD DIVISION

No. 24 (4th edition[1]) BULLETIN July 1, 1928

CARDS FOR PUBLICATIONS RELATING TO MEDICINE IN THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS AND THE LIBRARY OF THE SURGEON GENERAL'S OFFICE

1. Cards printed from copy supplied by the library of the Surgeon General's Office are now being added to the stock. The first installment of these cards was printed in August, 1916. They cover books currently added to the library of the Surgeon General's Office which are not in the collection at the Library of Congress. They form a separate series distinguished by prefixing SG to the year number which precedes the serial portion of the card number, example, SG 16–48. Most of these are for current publications.[2]

Libraries subscribing to cards currently printed for medical works may have entries for noncurrent books excluded if they so desire.[2]

All publications on medicine currently received by the Library of Congress, including, of course, those deposited for copyright, will continue to be catalogued by the Catalogue Division of the Library of Congress, the output of cards from such source averaging about 900 a year.[2]

Entries prepared by the Catalogue Division of the Library of Congress appear on the proof sheets under the heading "Medicine." Entries prepared at the Surgeon General's library appear on the proof sheets under the heading "Titles from U. S. Surgeon General's Office."

CARDS FOR PUBLICATIONS RELATING TO MEDICINE BUT CLASSED IN OTHER SUBJECTS

2. The entries which appear on the proof sheets under "Titles from U. S. Surgeon General's Office" comprise books of any class currently received at the Surgeon General's library, but the entries which appear on the proof sheets under the class "Medicine" are limited to books classed in Medicine (Class R) at the Library of Congress.

A considerable number of books which pertain more or less directly to medicine are placed in other classes at the Library of Congress. The following are the most important of such related classes:

Anatomy, classed in Science, on proof sheets under Science.
Physiology, classed in Science, on proof sheets under Science.
Medical Chemistry, classed in Science, on proof sheets under Science.
Bacteriology, classed in Science, on proof sheets under Science.

[1] First edition issued Nov. 1, 1916; second edition, Apr. 15, 1918; third edition, Jan. 1, 1924.

[2] In filling orders for cards for "current publications," publications are regarded as current which have publication date not earlier than the previous calendar year.

12866—28

Heredity (biological side), classed in Science, on proof sheets under Science.
Heredity (sociological side), classed in Social Sciences, on proof sheets under Social Sciences.
Eugenics, classed in Social Sciences, on proof sheets under Social Sciences.
Medical Charities, classed in Social Sciences, on proof sheets under Social Sciences.
Physiological Psychology, classed in Psychology, on proof sheets under Philosophy and Religion.
Medical Jurisprudence, classed in Law, on proof sheets under Law.

The output of such cards is several hundred a year. In filling orders these cards will be included or excluded, as desired.[3]

THE SUBJECT HEADINGS INDICATED ON THE CARDS

3. The subject headings used at the library of the Surgeon General's Office differ in a considerable percentage of cases from those used at the Library of Congress. Those used at the Library of Congress are designed for the catalogue of a general library, in which the headings for medicine are laid out on the same scale as those for other subjects; those used at the Surgeon General's library are designed for a special library and close analytical work.

It is impracticable at present to indicate the variations in the headings used by the two libraries on the cards for books catalogued at the Library of Congress, so these cards contain only the L. C. headings.

Variations in the headings used by the two libraries are indicated on the cards in the SG series, as follows:

1. Headings accepted by both libraries are given as usual, numbered in Arabic simply.
2. When heading used by one library contains word or words more than that used by other, the longer heading is given with varying word or words inclosed in ( ) when part of the L. C. heading; in [ ] when part of the S. G. heading.
3. When L. C. heading differs from S. G. heading so much that the difference can not be indicated by method explained in 2, both headings are given in full, L. C. heading in ( ), S. G. heading in [ ] with same number prefixed. L. C. heading is ordinarily given first as being better suited to the average user of L. C. cards.
4. When the heading of the one library is equivalent in scope to two or more headings of the other, the more specific headings are given first, each having a number and each inclosed in ( ) or [ ] as the case requires; the equivalent more general heading follows in [ ] or ( ) as the case requires, with the numbers of the corresponding more specific headings repeated.
5. When one library uses a heading for which the other has no satisfactory equivalent, the heading is inclosed in ( ) or [ ] as the case requires.

Much care is being taken with the subject headings on the cards in the SG series by the cataloguer, Mr. Felix Neumann, the aim being to make them accurate as well as concise. Suggestions as to improvements will be welcomed.

Medical libraries which have their own subject headings already established will of course accept the subject headings found on cards

[3] A few cards of interest to medical libraries are likely to continue to be printed for other cooperating libraries, such as the library of the U. S. Hygienic Laboratory and libraries of American universities. These few cards will be included in filling orders for cards on medicine unless especially excluded by the terms of the order.

received from the Library of Congress as suggestions only. Medical libraries just starting subject catalogues may find it best to adopt the S. G. heading when it varies from the L. C. heading.

INDICATION OF NUMBER OF CARDS WANTED

4. The number of copies of each card called for by an order must be indicated before the order can be filled. Specialists ordering cards for bibliographical purposes ordinarily desire an "author set" only, i. e., one copy of each card. >
> "Please send this firm the proof sheets appearing hereafter under the headings 'Medicines' and 'Titles from the Surgeon General's Office.'"

All requests for information as to the cards, prices, payment, etc., should be addressed to the Librarian of Congress, Washington, D. C.

PRICE OF CARDS AND PROOF SHEETS

6. Variation in the price of L. C. cards affects only the "first card." The charge for additional copies of any card supplied at the same time with the first is always 1½ cents.

In general, the price of cards ordered by subject varies directly with the works required in selecting the cards, inversely with the number called for by the order. The price for the first copy of each card included in an author set or a dictionary-catalogue set of all cards in stock on medicine is 2½ cents.

The price of the first copy of each card currently printed on medicine is 3 cents.

The price for the first copy of each card supplied on a subject order covering a large and well-defined class in medicine is 4 cents. The price for smaller selections and those more difficult to make varies from 4 to 10 cents, according to the number of cards and the work required in selecting them.

The price of the proof sheets for Medicine or any other subject is 1½ cents a strip.

PAYMENT

7. Those already subscribing to cards should pay for the cards described in this bulletin as they pay for others. Individuals and firms are required to pay for cards in advance and should always ascertain price before sending money.
